“Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta”

Ādi-līlā

Chapter 13

The Description of the Great Festival of the Lord’s Appearance

(English translation from the Bengali, following the Gauḍīya Maṭha edition and the «Anubhāṣya», 2026 — draft)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya

Summary. This thirteenth chapter describes Mahāprabhu's birth. The Ādi-līlā is the Lord's pastimes in household life, and the Antya-līlā His pastimes in sannyāsa. The first six years of the Antya-līlā are called the “Madhya-līlā”: the journeys to the south, to Vṛndāvana and to other holy places, the returns, and the preaching of the holy name. Jagannātha Miśra was the son of Upendra Miśra, a resident of Śrīhaṭṭa. He settled in Navadvīpa and married Śacīdevī, the daughter of Nīlāmbara Cakravartī. First eight daughters were born to him. These daughters, once born, left this world, and then, as the ninth child, Viśvarūpa was born. In Śaka 1407, on the evening of the full moon of the month of Phālguna, with Leo rising (siṁha-lagna) and the moon in the sign of Leo (siṁha-rāśi), at the time of a lunar eclipse, Gauracandra descended amid the chanting of Kṛṣṇa's names. Hearing of the child's birth, the respectable ladies came to see Him with many gifts. Nīlāmbara Cakravartī cast His horoscope, examined the lines of His hand, and found in them the marks of a great personality (mahāpuruṣa).

By Gaura's grace even a fallen soul becomes able to describe His pastimes —

স প্রসীদতু চৈতন্যদেবো যস্য প্রসাদতঃ ।
তল্লীলাবর্ণনে যোগ্যঃ সদ্যঃ স্যাদধমোঽপ্যয়ম্ ॥ ১ ॥

1 May Śrī Caitanyadeva be gracious to me, for by His grace even one as fallen as I at once becomes fit to describe His pastimes.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
By His grace even this fallen soul at once becomes able to describe His pastimes. May that Śrī Caitanyadeva be pleased with me.

Anubhāṣya.

13 For eighteen years He stayed in Nīlācala, flooding everyone with the nectar of His pastimes of love for Kṛṣṇa.

*The household pastimes are the Ādi-līlā, and the sannyāsa pastimes the Madhya- and Antya-līlā —*

'madhya' 'antya' by name — of the later pastimes two names

14 The Lord's pastimes as a householder are called the Ādi-līlā, and His later pastimes bear two names, Madhya and Antya.

*Murāri compiled the Ādi-līlā in the Caitanya-carita, and Svarūpa the last pastimes in the Kaḍacā —*

the Ādi-līlā within the Lord's all deeds sūtra-rūpe murāri gupta karilā grathita in the form of sūtras Murāri Gupta made strung together

15 Murāri Gupta recorded in sūtras all the Lord's deeds in the Ādi-līlā.

the Lord's which later pastimes Svarūpa-dāmodara

16 Svarūpa Dāmodara set down the Lord's later pastimes in brief notes and gathered them in his book.

*The sūtras of these two are the source of every description of the Lord's pastimes —*

এই দুই জনের সূত্র দেখিয়া শুনিয়া । বর্ণনা করেন বৈষ্ণব ক্রম যে করিয়া ॥ ১৭ ॥ ei dui janera sūtra dekhiyā śuniyā these two persons' sūtras seeing hearing varṇanā karena vaiṣṇava krama ye kariyā description make the Vaiṣṇavas the sequence which keeping 17 Reading and hearing the notes of these two, the Vaiṣṇavas describe the Lord's pastimes in their order.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

Śrī Murāri Gupta's sūtras, his brief notes, on the Ādi-līlā still exist. The Vaiṣṇavas study them, and they hear the sūtras of Śrī Svarūpa Gosvāmī's diary from the lips of Śrī Raghunātha dāsa Gosvāmī — and so they describe the Lord's pastimes.

The four parts of the Ādi-līlā —

বাল্য, পৌগণ্ড, কৈশোর, যৌবন, — চারি ভেদ । অতএব আদিখণ্ডে লীলা চারি ভেদ ॥ ১৮ ॥

bālya, paugaṇḍa, kaiśora, yauvana, — cāri bheda childhood, boyhood, early youth, youth, — four divisions ataeva ādi-khaṇḍe līlā cāri bheda therefore in the first part the pastimes four divisions

18 Childhood (bālya), boyhood (paugaṇḍa), early youth (kaiśora) and youth (yauvana) — these are the four ages, and so the Ādi-līlā falls into four divisions.

Homage to the auspicious full moon of Phālguna —

সর্ব্বসদ্গুণপূর্ণাং তাং বন্দে ফাল্গুনপূর্ণিমাম্ । যস্যাং শ্রীকৃষ্ণচৈতন্যোঽবতীর্ণঃ কৃষ্ণনামভিঃ ॥ ১৯ ॥

sarva-sad-guṇa-pūrṇāṁ tāṁ with all good qualities full that vande phālguna-pūrṇimām
I bow to the Phālguna full moon yasyāṁ śrī-kṛṣṇa-caitanyo on which Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya
'vatīrṇaḥ kṛṣṇa-nāmabhiḥ descended with the names of Kṛṣṇa

19 I bow to that full moon of Phālguna, rich in every good quality, on which Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya descended together with the names of Kṛṣṇa.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

“In the twenty-eighth yuga of Vaivasvata Manu, in the year fourteen hundred and seven, on the lovely bank of the Bhāgīrathī, from the great ocean of Śacī's womb, on the full moon seized by Rāhu, Gaurāṅga appeared.”

I worship that full moon of Phālguna, filled with every good quality, on which Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya descended together with the names of Kṛṣṇa.

Anubhāṣya.

yasyāṁ (on which, on the full moon of Phālguna) kṛṣṇa-nāmabhiḥ (together with the names of Kṛṣṇa) śrī-kṛṣṇa-caitanyaḥ (the form not different from Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa, the original source of the avatāras, the Lord of Goloka — from His own realm, from the chamber of Gaura, into the manifest world, into the earthly Navadvīpa) 'vatīrṇaḥ (descended), tāṁ sarva-sad-guṇa-pūrṇāṁ phālguna-pūrṇimām (the goddess in the form of a lunar day [tithi], descended into worldly time, beyond this world, devoted to service) (I) vande (worship).

*Using the lunar eclipse as a pretext, the Lord moves the jīvas to chant Hari's name —*

ফাল্গুনপূর্ণিমা-সন্ধ্যায় প্রভুর জন্মোদয় । সেইকালে দৈবযোগে চন্দ্রের গ্রহণ হয় ॥ ২০ ॥ phālguna-pūrṇimā-sandhyāya prabhura janmodaya on the Phālguna full moon in the evening the Lord’s birth arose sei-kāle daiva-yoge candrera grahaṇa haya at that time by providence of the moon eclipse takes place

20 The Lord appeared on the evening of the Phālguna full moon, and at that very hour, as providence would have it, the moon was eclipsed.

‘হরি’ ‘হরি’ বলে লোক হরষিত হঞা । জন্মিলা চৈতন্যপ্রভু ‘নাম’ জন্মাইয়া ॥ ২১ ॥

‘hari’ ‘hari’ bale loka haraṣita hañā ‘Hari’ ‘Hari’ say the people joyful becoming janmilā caitanya-prabhu ‘nāma’ janmāiyā was born Caitanya Prabhu the Name causing to be born 21 The people were joyfully calling out, “Hari! Hari!” — and Caitanya Prabhu took birth, having first brought the Name to birth.

Throughout the Ādi-līlā the Lord moves everyone to chant Hari's name —

জন্ম-বাল্য-পৌগণ্ড-কৈশোর-যুবাকালে । হরিনাম লওয়াইলা প্রভু নানা-ছলে ॥ ২২ ॥

janma-bālya-paugaṇḍa-kaiśora-yuvā-kāle at birth, in childhood, boyhood, early youth, youth hari-nāma laoyāilā prabhu nānā-chale
the name of Hari made take the Lord by various pretexts

22 At His birth, in childhood, boyhood, early youth and youth, the Lord found one pretext or another to make people take the name of Hari.

To make everyone chant the name He cries, and the name alone stops Him —

বাল্যভাব-ছলে প্রভু করেন ক্রন্দন । ‘কৃষ্ণ’ ‘হরি’ নাম শুনি’ রহয়ে রোদন ॥ ২৩ ॥

bālya-bhāva-chale prabhu karena krandana of a child’s mood on the pretext the Lord does crying ‘kṛṣṇa’ ‘hari’ nāma śuni’ rahaye rodana
‘Kṛṣṇa’ ‘Hari’ the names hearing stops weeping

23 In the guise of an ordinary infant the Lord would cry, but the moment He heard the names “Kṛṣṇa” and “Hari”, He would fall silent.

Everyone who comes to see Him utters the name —

অতএব ‘হরি’ ‘হরি’ বলে নারীগণ । দেখিতে আইসে যেবা সর্ব্ব-বন্ধুজন ॥ ২৪ ॥

ataeva ‘hari’ ‘hari’ bale nārīgaṇa therefore ‘Hari’ ‘Hari’ say the women dekhite āise yebā sarva-bandhu jana to see come who all friends and kin

24 So all the women among His friends and kin who came to see Him would chant, “Hari! Hari!”

The first appearance of the name “Gaurahari” —

‘গৌরহরি’ বলি’ তারে হাসে সর্ব্ব নারী । অতএব হৈল তাঁর নাম ‘গৌরহরি’ ॥ ২৫ ॥

‘gaurahari’ bali’ tāre hāse sarva nārī ‘Gaurahari’ calling Him laugh all the women ataeva haila tāṁra nāma ‘gaurahari’ therefore became His name ‘Gaurahari’

25 Laughing, the women all called Him “Gaurahari”, and so Gaurahari became His name.

*As He grows, He moves the jīvas to chant the name at all times —*

বাল্য-বয়স — যাবৎ হাতে খড়ি দিল । পৌগণ্ড-বয়স — যাবৎ বিবাহ না কৈল ॥ ২৬ ॥

bālya-vayasa — yāvat hāte khaḍi dila childhood age — until in His hand chalk was given paugaṇḍa-vayasa — yāvat vivāha nā kaila boyhood age — until marriage not was made

26 His childhood lasted until the chalk was put in His hand for His first lesson; His boyhood, until He married.

বিবাহ করিলে হৈল নবীন যৌবন । সর্ব্বত্র লওয়াইল প্রভু নাম-সঙ্কীর্ত্তন ॥ ২৭ ॥

vivāha karile haila navīna yauvana marriage having made began fresh youth sarvatra laoyāila prabhu nāma-saṅkīrtana everywhere made take the Lord the saṅkīrtana of the name 27 With His marriage began the bloom of youth, and everywhere the Lord led people to chant the name together.

In His boyhood, studying and teaching, He explains Kṛṣṇa's name in every subject and moves others to chant it —

পৌগণ্ড-বয়সে পড়েন, পড়ান শিষ্যগণে । সর্ব্বত্র করেন কৃষ্ণনামের ব্যাখ্যানে ॥ ২৮ ॥

paugaṇḍa-vayase paḍena, paḍāna śiṣyagaṇe in boyhood age He studies, teaches the pupils sarvatra karena kṛṣṇa-nāmera vyākhyāne everywhere makes of Kṛṣṇa's name the explanation

28 In His boyhood He studied and also taught pupils, and everywhere He explained the name of Kṛṣṇa.

সূত্র-বৃত্তি-টীকায় কৃষ্ণনামের তাৎপর্য্য । শিষ্যের প্রতীত হয়, — সবার আশ্চর্য্য ॥ ২৯ ॥ sūtra-vṛtti-ṭīkāya kṛṣṇanāmera tātparya in sūtra, gloss, commentary of Kṛṣṇa's name the purport śiṣyera pratīta haya, — sabāra āścarya to the pupils clear becomes, — to all a wonder

29 He showed that the purport of every sūtra, gloss and commentary was the name of Kṛṣṇa, and His pupils came to see it plainly — a wonder to all.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

While explaining to His students the sūtras of grammar and their commentaries, the vṛtti and the ṭīkā, the Lord taught them the meaning of Kṛṣṇa's name. Building on that teaching, the venerable Gosvāmīs (Śrī Jīva Prabhu) later wrote two grammars called Harināmāmṛta-vyākaraṇa, the "Laghu" (short) and the "Bṛhat" (long). Whoever studies these two grammars gains a knowledge of words, and devotion to Kṛṣṇa awakens in him.

Anubhāṣya.

The Caitanya-bhāgavata (Madhya-khaṇḍa, Chapter 1) says: “Absorbed, the Lord explains: in every sūtra, vṛtti and ṭīkā there is only the name of Hari. The Lord says, ‘At all times Kṛṣṇa's name is true. All the scriptures speak of Kṛṣṇa and nothing else. Whoever leaves Kṛṣṇa's feet and explains anything else wastes his life in unspeakable talk. Whoever explains the scriptures while giving up the worship of Kṛṣṇa is low and will never know their inner meaning. Not knowing the inner meaning of the scriptures, he takes up teaching them — and, like an ass, he only carries the scriptures about until he dies.’”

He moves everyone without exception to chant Kṛṣṇa's name —

যারে দেখে, তারে কহে, — কহ কৃষ্ণনাম । কৃষ্ণ-নামে ভাসাইল নবদ্বীপ-গ্রাম ॥ ৩০ ॥

yāre dekhe, tāre kahe, — kaha kṛṣṇa-nāma whom He sees, to him says — say Kṛṣṇa’s name kṛṣṇa-nāme bhāsāila navadvīpa-grāma with Kṛṣṇa’s name flooded Navadvīpa town

30 Whomever He met He would tell, “Chant the name of Kṛṣṇa!” — and He flooded the town of Navadvīpa with Kṛṣṇa’s name.

*In His youth He Himself performs kīrtana and so moves everyone to the name —*

কিশোর-বয়সে আরম্ভিলা সংকীর্ত্তন । রাত্র-দিনে প্রেমে নৃত্য, সঙ্গে ভক্তগণ ॥ ৩১ ॥

kiśora-vayase ārambhilā saṁkīrtana in early youth age began saṅkīrtana rātra-dine preme nṛtya, saṅge bhakta-gaṇa night and day in love dancing, with the devotees

31 In His early youth He began the saṅkīrtana, dancing in love night and day together with His devotees.

নগরে নগরে ভ্রমে কীর্ত্তন করিয়া । ভাসাইল ত্রিভুবন প্রেমভক্তি দিয়া ॥ ৩২ ॥

nagare nagare bhrame kīrtana kariyā from town to town wanders kīrtana doing bhāsāila tri-bhuvana prema-bhakti diyā flooded the three worlds love and devotion giving 32 He wandered from town to town singing kīrtana, and flooded the three worlds with loving devotion.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Śrī Navadvīpa-dhāma is encircled by the Jāhnavī (the Gaṅgā) and lies within a circumference of sixteen krośas. Nine islands (dvīpas) shine within it, the seats of the nine kinds of bhakti: Antaḥ, Sīmanta, Godruma, Madhya, Kola, Ṛtu, Jahnu, Modadruma and Rudra. In the middle of Antardvīpa, in the village of Śrī Māyāpura, stands the home of Śrī Jagannātha Miśra. Going with kīrtana through all these towns, the Lord flooded the three worlds with prema-bhakti.

*For all 24 years in Navadvīpa He moves the jīvas to the name —*

চব্বিশ বৎসর ঐছে নবদ্বীপ-গ্রামে । লওয়াইলা সর্ব্বলোকে কৃষ্ণপ্রেম-নামে ॥ ৩৩ ॥

cabbiśa vatsara aiche navadvīpa-grāme twenty-four years thus in Navadvīpa town laoyāilā sarva-loke kṛṣṇa-prema-nāme made take all people to love for Kṛṣṇa and the name

33 Thus for twenty-four years in Navadvīpa He led everyone to the name of Kṛṣṇa and to love for Him.

*Six of the last 24 years, spent in Nīlācala: preaching the name and prema from the ocean to the Himālayas —*

34 After accepting sannyāsa He remained twenty-four years more, living with His devotees in Nīlācala.

35 Of those years in Nīlācala, He spent six in ceaseless dancing and singing, giving away loving devotion.

সেতুবন্ধ, আর গৌড়-ব্যাপি বৃন্দাবন । প্রেম-নাম প্রচারিয়া করিলা ভ্রমণ ॥ ৩৬ ॥

setubandha, āra gauḍa-vyāpi vṛndāvana Setubandha, and pervading Gauḍa Vṛndāvana

love and the name preaching made journeying

36 He journeyed as far as Setubandha in the south, through Gauḍa and on to Vṛndāvana, spreading the holy name and love wherever He went.

These six years are the Madhya-līlā, and it is entirely the preaching of the name —

এই 'মধ্যলীলা' নাম — লীলা-মুখ্যধাম । শেষ অষ্টাদশ বর্ষ — 'অন্ত্যলীলা' নাম ॥ ৩৭ ॥ ei 'madhya-līlā' nāma — līlā-mukhyadhāma this 'madhya-līlā' by name — of the pastimes the chief abode śeṣa aṣṭādaśa varṣa — 'antya-līlā' nāma

the last eighteen years — 'antya-līlā' by name

37 These six years are called the Madhya-līlā, the very heart of His pastimes; the last eighteen years are called the Antya-līlā.

*Of the remaining 18 years, six: preaching prema by kīrtana and dance alone —*

তার মধ্যে ছয় বৎসর ভক্তগণ-সঙ্গে । প্রেমভক্তি লওয়াইল নৃত্যগীত-রঙ্গে ॥ ৩৮ ॥

tāra madhye chaya vatsara bhaktagaṇa-saṅge of them within six years with the devotees prema-bhakti laoyāila nṛtya-gīta-raṅge loving devotion made take in the joy of dancing and singing

38 For six of those years, in the joy of dancing and singing with His devotees, He led people to loving devotion.

*The last 12 years: in separation from Kṛṣṇa He Himself tastes love for Kṛṣṇa at every moment and displays the states of prema —*

দ্বাদশ বৎসর শেষ রহিলা নীলাচলে । প্রেমাবস্থা শিখাইলা আস্বাদন-চ্ছলে ॥ ৩৯ ॥

dvādaśa vatsara śeṣa rahilā nīlācale twelve years the last remained in Nīlācala premāvasthā śikhāilā āsvādana-cchale
the states of love taught on the pretext of tasting

39 The last twelve years He stayed in Nīlācala, and, tasting love Himself, He taught everyone its highest states.

Anubhāṣya.
One in whom prema has awakened abides in the transcendental vipralambha-rasa, the rasa of separation, which nourishes sambhoga, union. Śrī Gaurasundara wished to taste this state of prema Himself, and in this way He taught it to the jīvas of the world. Unless vipralambha arises, sambhoga is not nourished.

Anubhāṣya.

Śrī Gaurasundara is the living ideal of the long, long vipralambha-rasa: He is filled with the mood of citra-jalpa, "varied talk," that seized Śrīmatī Vṛṣabhānujā (Rādhā) when She saw Uddhava. With envy (asūyā), jealousy (īrṣyā) and pride (mada), in a manner of open disdain, Rādhikā set out to declare Kṛṣṇa's want of courtesy (akauśala) and, addressing the bumblebee, spoke prajalpa, words full of reproach. Śrī Gaurasundara was immersed in all those moods (see Ādi 4.107–108).

Anubhāṣya.

Vidyāpati was a Vaiṣṇava poet who lived in Mithilā. He flourished during the reign of King Śivasiṁha and Queen Lachimādevī; that is, he composed his songs in the first quarter of the fourteenth century of the Śaka era. He appeared about a hundred years before Śrī Mahāprabhu's manifest pastimes. He was a Maithila brāhmaṇa, and his descendant in the twelfth generation is alive today. His songs about Kṛṣṇa abound in examples of transcendental vipralambha-rasa. Those moods were what Śrī Mahāprabhu relished.

Jayadeva was born, during the reign of Lakṣmaṇasena, the king of Bengal, to Bhojadeva and Vāmādevī. That period, according to some, is the eleventh or the twelfth century of the Śaka era. He lived for a long time in the city of Navadvīpa, the capital of Bengal. Jayadeva's birthplace is the village of Kenduvilva in the district of Birbhum; according to others, Utkala (Orissa); according to still others, the South. He spent the last part of his life at Śrī Jagannātha-kṣetra. His book of poetry is called the Gīta-govinda, or Aṣṭapadī. It too abounds in transcendental vipralambha-rasa. It describes the vipralambha-rasa that nourishes the rasa of sambhoga — the separation that arose when the prince of Vraja left the place of the rāsa dance, as the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam tells. For the commentaries on the Aṣṭapadī and the names of the commentators, see the Vaiṣṇava-mañjuṣā (issue 1).

Caṇḍīdāsa was born in a brāhmaṇa family in the village of Nānnura in the district of Birbhum, at the close of the first quarter of the fourteenth century of the Śaka era. He was probably a friend of Vidyāpati Ṭhākura. His writings abound in transcendental vipralambha-rasa.

The moods that blossomed in Caṇḍīdāsa and other devotees were Śrī Mahāprabhu's most beloved delicacy. Steeped in the mood of Śrī Rādhā, Kṛṣṇacandra tasted vipralambha-rasa with His two intimate devotees, Śrī Dāmodara Svarūpa and Śrī Rāmānanda Rāya, and so fulfilled His own desire.

Svayaṁ Bhagavān Śrī Gaurasundara, together with unequalled knowers of the truth of spiritual kṛṣṇa-rasa — Śrī Dāmodara Svarūpa, the crest jewel of the paramahaṁsas, and Śrī Rāya Rāmānanda — relished the transcendental songs composed by these three devotees. These songs unfold the countless varieties of the mahābhāva of Śrī Rādhikā, "full of Kṛṣṇa" (kṛṣṇamayī), toward Śrī Nandanandana, the unequalled Enjoyer, whose form is eternity, knowledge and bliss. Only the most fortunate person can always follow them: one who is indifferent both to enjoyment and to renunciation in this perishable gross and subtle world, who is supremely liberated and owns nothing (niṣkiñcana), and who eternally longs to serve Śrī Rādhā. People who delight in mundane poetic rasa, who love godless literature, who take pleasure in the body — for the sake of research — and the prākṛta-sahajiyā sect — to gratify their material senses, fancying themselves rāgānuga — show the impudence of discussing the songs of Caṇḍīdāsa, Vidyāpati and Jayadeva. As a result, licentiousness and atheism grow in the world, and this leads them to hell. Unqualified people, who take the body for the self, are full of thirst for what is unworthy and burdened with anarthas, may take the supramundane pastimes of Śrī Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa, worshipped by the supremely liberated, to be the tasteless, vile amorous sports of a mundane hero and heroine, or something like them — and end up gratifying their senses. Therefore any kind of discussion of the pastimes of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa is strictly forbidden to them.

By tasting the love for Kṛṣṇa that arises from Śrī Rādhā's actions in separation from Kṛṣṇa, He fulfills His three desires —

কৃষ্ণের বিয়োগে যত প্রেম-চেষ্টিত । আস্বাদিয়া পূর্ণ কৈল আপন-বাঞ্ছিত ॥ ৪৩ ॥

Nīlāmbara Cakravartī. The Gaura-gaṇoddeśa (verse 104) says: “Nīlāmbara Cakravartī foretold Gaura's future birth in an assembly, and so he is called ‘Garga.’ As the father of Śrī Śacī he is considered the cowherd Sumukha.” His kinsmen live in the village of Magaḍobā in the district of Faridpur. His nephew Jagannātha Cakravartī, or “Māmu Ṭhākura,” a disciple of Paṇḍita Gosvāmī, was the servant of Ṭoṭā-Gopīnātha at Śrī Kṣetra. The Prema-vilāsa records that Nīlāmbara's home in Navadvīpa was in Belpukuriyā. On the other hand, he also had a home in Kāzīpāḍā, and so, by village kinship, the Kazi too is spoken of as the Lord's maternal uncle. The Kazi's house, together with his tomb, could not have moved; hence it is known that all those places of the Belpukuriyā quarter mentioned above have become part of the present-day quarter called Bāmanpukur.

Anubhāṣya.

In Rāḍha-deśa: in the village of Ekacakrā in the district of Birbhum. It lies about eight miles east of Mallārpur station on the loop line of the East Indian Railway. From north to south the village of Ekacakrā stretches four krośas. Vīracandrapura, or Vīrabhadrapura, lies within the bounds of Ekacakrā. The place got the name Vīracandrapura, or Vīrabhadrapura, from the name of Vīrabhadra Prabhu.

Last year, 1331, in the month of Āṣāḍha, lightning struck the temple and broke its spire, and the temple itself has become badly dilapidated. Never before had such a calamity befallen the temple.

In the temple stands the Deity of Kṛṣṇa installed by Śrīman Nityānanda Prabhu, named “Śrī Baṅkima Rāya,” or “Bāṅkā Rāya.” To the right of Śrī Baṅkima Rāya stands Jāhnavā, and to the left Śrīmatī Rādhikā. The temple servants say that Śrīman Nityānanda Prabhu entered into Śrī Baṅkima Rāya, and that is why Jāhnavā-mātā was later installed on His right. Later still, other Deities were installed in the temple. On another throne in the temple are the Deities “Muralīdhara” and “Rādhā-Mādhava.” And on a third, separate throne, Śrī Manomohana, Śrī Vṛndāvanacandra and Śrī Nitāi-Gaura, brought to Ekacakrā from the gādi (seat) of Vipraghāṭī in the district of Murshidabad, have been served for a year now. Only Śrī Baṅkima Rāya is said to be the ancient Deity installed by Nityānanda Prabhu. Legend has it that the Deity of Śrī Baṅkima Rāya was floating in the waters of the Yamunā at Kadambakhaṇḍī Ghāṭ, east of the temple. Śrīman Nityānanda Prabhu lifted the Deity out of the water and installed Him for service. And Śrīmatī appeared under a nimba tree at a place called Bhaḍḍāpura, about half a mile west of Vīracandrapura. That is why many people used to call Baṅkima Rāya's Śrīmatī “the Ṭhākurāṇī of Bhaḍḍāpura.” On yet another throne in the temple, to the right of Bāṅkā Rāya, stands “Yogamāyā.” The temple and the jagamohana stand on a high brick plinth. Directly in front is a modest nāṭa-mandira. It is said that in the northern part of Śrī Bāṅkā Rāya's temple there was a Śiva named “Bhāṇḍīśvara,” and Hāḍāi Paṇḍita worshipped that Śiva, the king of Vaiṣṇavas. That Śiva-liṅga has now disappeared, and in its place a Deity of Śrī Jagannātha is installed.

Śrīman Nityānanda Prabhu built no temples or other buildings. When the temple from Vīrabhadra Prabhu's time collapsed in 1298, a brahmacārī named Śivānanda Svāmī restored it. Seventeen seers and ten chaṭāks of rice are allotted every day for the Deity's offering (bhoga).

The servitors, the “Gosvāmīs,” are a branch of the family of Śrī Gopījana-vallabhānanda, a descendant of Nityānanda. An estate (zamindari) is settled in the Gosvāmīs' name for the service, and the service is maintained from its income. The “Gosvāmīs” are three shareholders, and they serve by turns. Śrīyukta Goṣṭhavihārī “Gosvāmī” holds a share of eight annas eight gaṇḍās in the estate; Śrīyukta Vijayacandra “Gosvāmī” and others, five annas fourteen gaṇḍās; and Śrīyukta Prasanna Kumāra Bandyopādhyāya (a daughter's son of the “Gosvāmīs”), one anna eighteen gaṇḍās[2].

Not far from the temple is a place called Viśrāmatalā. Legend has it that here, in His childhood, Śrī Nityānanda Prabhu acted out various pastimes of Vraja and the rāsa dance with His friends.

At a place called Āmlītalā stands a spreading tamarind tree. The Neḍās and similar sects have invented many fanciful stories about this place. Legend has it that a pond called “Śvetagaṅgā” was dug by Vīrabhadra Prabhu's twelve hundred Neḍās. A little farther on are the memorial pillars over the Gosvāmīs' tombs. Crossing the Yamunā, which flows north from Mauḍeśvara to the river Dvārakeśvara, one comes within half a mile to the temple at Śrī Nityānanda Prabhu's birthplace (sūtikā-mandira). In front of it stood an old nāṭa-mandira; it is now in ruins and covered by a spreading banyan. Later a temple was built in that courtyard, and the Deities of Śrī Gaura and Nityānanda reside in it. A stone tablet in the jagamohana records that this temple was restored in the month of Vaiśākha, 1323, in memory of the late Prasannakumāra, the steward (kārpharmā).

The place where the sūtikā-mandira stands is called “Garbhavāsa.” About 43 bighās of land are set aside for the service; of these, 20 bighās are tax-free — this is land of the Mahārāja of Dinajpur. Near Garbhavāsa stood the school (ṭol) of Hāḍāi Paṇḍita.

The servitors of this place: (1) Śrī Rāghavacandra Gosvāmī (in Vraja, Campakalatā, Gaura-gaṇoddeśa 162; he lived at Govardhana; the day of his departure, the thirteenth lunar day of the bright fortnight of Jyaiṣṭha); (2) Jagadānanda dāsa (day of departure, Rādhāṣṭamī); (3) Kṛṣṇadāsa (of Ciḍiyā-kuñja; day of departure, Kṛṣṇa-janmāṣṭamī); (4) Nityānanda dāsa; (5) Rāmadāsa; (6) Vrajamohana dāsa; (7) Kānāi dāsa; (8) Gauradāsa; (9) Śivānanda dāsa; (10) Haridāsa (the present servitor).

Not far from Garbhavāsa, the sūtikā-mandira, is Bakulatalā. Here Śrī Nityānanda Prabhu played the game of jhāl-jhapeṭā with His friends. This bakula tree is a great wonder: its branches and twigs look exactly like snakes, with heads and hoods. Probably they appear this way by the will of Anantadeva Himself, Śrī Nityānanda. The tree itself is very old. It is said that two of its branches once grew apart. Nityānanda Prabhu saw that during play His friends found it hard to cross from one branch to the other, and He joined the two branches.

Hāṅṭugāḍā. Tradition says that Śrī Nityānanda Prabhu gathered all the holy places (tīrthas) at this spot. To this day the residents of this dhāma do not go to the Gaṅgā or other tīrthas, but bathe at this tīrtha. Śrīman Nityānanda Prabhu held a festival of dadhi-ciḍā, yogurt with flat rice, here. Legend has it that He sat here on His knees eating dadhi-ciḍā, and the spot sank into a hollow; that is why it is called “Hāṅṭugāḍā” (“knees sunk in”). This pond (kuṇḍa) holds water all year round.

In the month of Kārttika, at the time of the Goṣṭha festival, a large fair takes place here. A huge fair is also held at Vīracandrapura for the festival of Śrī Nityānanda Prabhu's birth, on the thirteenth lunar day of the bright fortnight of Māgha. The Gaura-gaṇoddeśa (verse 11) says: “Nityānanda, who in Vraja is Śrī Halāyudha, in the form of a devotee”; and (verses 58–59): “Baladeva is Viśvarūpa, considered the vyūha Saṅkarṣaṇa. And Nityānanda Avadhūta is also called He, by way of prakāśa (manifestation).” He is the Balarāma of Vraja.

jñāna-karma nindi' kare bhaktira baḍāi knowledge work decrying makes of bhakti the glory

64 There Ācārya Gosāñi expounded the Gītā and the Bhāgavata, decrying the paths of knowledge and fruitive work and extolling bhakti.

*He teaches that devotion to Kṛṣṇa alone is the means (abhidheya) —*

সর্ব্বশাস্ত্রে কহে কৃষ্ণভক্তির ব্যাখ্যান । জ্ঞান, যোগ, তপো-ধর্ম্ম নাহি মানে আন ॥ ৬৫ ॥ sarva-śāstre kahe kṛṣṇa-bhaktira vyākhyāna in all scriptures speaks of devotion to Kṛṣṇa the explanation jñāna, yoga, tapo-dharma nāhi māne āna knowledge, yoga, austerity, dharma not accepts other 65 He showed that all the scriptures speak of devotion to Kṛṣṇa, and would accept no other path — not knowledge, yoga, austerity or ritual dharma.

Accepting Him as their head, all the Vaiṣṇavas worship Kṛṣṇa —

তাঁর সঙ্গে আনন্দ করে বৈষ্ণবের গণ ।
কৃষ্ণকথা, কৃষ্ণপূজা, নামসংকীর্ত্তন ॥ ৬৬ ॥

66 In His company the Vaiṣṇavas delighted in talks of Kṛṣṇa, worship of Kṛṣṇa and the saṅkīrtana of the holy name.

*Having appeared in the world, the Ācārya sees the jīvas bent on sense pleasure and grieves —*

কিন্তু সর্ব্বলোক দেখি’ কৃষ্ণবহির্ম্মুখ ।

67 But when He saw that all people had turned away from Kṛṣṇa and were sunk in worldly things, He grieved.

The Ācārya thinks deeply how to deliver the people —

লোকের নিস্তার-হেতু করেন চিন্তন । কেমতে এ সর্ব্বলোকের হইবে তারণ ॥ ৬৮ ॥

lokera nistāra-hetu karena cintana

kemate e sarva-lokera haibe tāraṇa

68 He pondered how they might be delivered: how could all these people be saved?

Only the descent of Kṛṣṇa Himself will surely deliver the people —

69 "If Kṛṣṇa descends and spreads bhakti, then indeed all people will be delivered."

To bring Kṛṣṇa Himself down, the Ācārya worships Kṛṣṇa —

70 Vowing to bring Kṛṣṇa down, the Ācārya worshipped Him with tulasī and Gaṅgā water.

The Ācārya calls Kṛṣṇa, and Kṛṣṇa is drawn —

কৃষ্ণের আহ্বান করে সঘন হুঙ্কার ।

72 Eight daughters were born one after another to Śacī, the wife of Jagannātha Miśra, and each died soon after her birth.

Miśra's grief and his worship of Viṣṇu for a son —

অপত্য-বিরহে মিশ্রের দুঃখী হৈল মন ।

73 Grieving at the loss of his children, Miśra worshipped the feet of Viṣṇu, praying for a son.

Their ninth child, Viśvarūpa —

তবে পুত্র জনমিল 'বিশ্বরূপ' নাম । মহা-গুণবান্ তেঁহ — 'বলদেব'-ধাম ॥ ৭৪ ॥

tabe putra janamila 'viśvarūpa' nāma then a son was born 'Viśvarūpa' by name mahā-guṇavān teṁha — 'baladeva'-dhāma greatly virtuous He — the abode of 'Baladeva'

74 Then a son was born, named Viśvarūpa. He was rich in great virtues, a manifestation of Baladeva.

Anubhāṣya.

Viśvarūpa was the elder brother of Śrī Gaurahari. Before marrying He took sannyāsa and received the name "Śaṅkarāraṇya." In Śaka 1431 He departed from this world at Pāṇḍerapura in the district of Sholapur, in the Bombay Presidency. He is both causes of the universe, the "material" (upādāna) and the "efficient" (nimitta). The Gaura-gaṇoddeśa (verses 58–59) says: "Because the part and the whole are not different, the son of Śacī is the original vyūha; Baladeva is Viśvarūpa, considered the vyūha Saṅkarṣaṇa; and Nityānanda Avadhūta is also called He, by way of prakāśa." In the Gauracandrodaya, Kali says to Dharma: "His elder brother, without ever taking a wife — Saṅkarṣaṇa, that Bhagavān who on earth was Viśvarūpa — gave, it is said, His own effulgence to Purīśvara, took sannyāsa before Him and left this world."

And there too: "…Nityānanda Avadhūta, glorified as the Effulgence — indeed, Saṅkarṣaṇa…"[3] And further: "When this eternal Śrī Viśvarūpa left this world, He joined with Nityānanda Avadhūta and remained [in Him]."

Viśvarūpa is the Mahā-Saṅkarṣaṇa of Vaikuṇṭha —

বলদেব-প্রকাশ — পরব্যোমে 'সঙ্কর্ষণ' । তেঁহ — বিশ্বের উপাদান-নিমিত্ত-কারণ ॥ ৭৫ ॥

baladeva-prakāśa — para-vyome 'saṅkarṣaṇa' Baladeva's manifestation — in the spiritual sky 'Saṅkarṣaṇa' temha — viśvera upādāna-nimitta-kāraṇa
He — of the universe the material efficient cause

75 Baladeva's manifestation in the spiritual sky is Saṅkarṣaṇa, and He is both the material and the efficient cause of the universe.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

Viśvarūpa is the avatāra of Mahā-Saṅkarṣaṇa, who dwells in Paravyoma.

76 Apart from Him I see nothing in the universe, and so He is called Viśvarūpa, "He whose form is the universe".

77 "O King, this is no wonder for Bhagavān, the unlimited Lord of the universe, in whom this whole world is woven, warp and weft, like cloth upon its threads." (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.15.35)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Nothing is astonishing in the unlimited Bhagavān, the Lord of the universe: in Him this whole universe appears woven lengthwise and crosswise, like the threads in a cloth.

Anubhāṣya.
Referring to the pastime in which Baladeva killed the demon Dhenuka, Śukadeva says to Parīkṣit: aṅga (O king), yasmin idaṁ (this universe) tantuṣu paṭaḥ (cloth) yathā (as) otaṁ protam (woven lengthwise and crosswise), (in that) anante (unlimited) jagad-īśvare bhagavati (in that Viṣṇu) etat (the killing of demons and the like) citram (astonishing) na hi (not at all) (is).

Why the Lord calls Him "elder brother" —

অতএব প্রভু তাঁরে বলে, 'বড় ভাই' । কৃষ্ণ, বলরাম দুই — চৈতন্য, নিতাই ॥ ৭৮ ॥ ataeva prabhu tāṁre bale, 'baḍa bhāi' therefore the Lord Him calls 'elder brother' kṛṣṇa, balarāma dui — caitanya, nitāi Kṛṣṇa, Balarāma the two — Caitanya, Nitāi

78 That is why the Lord called Him His elder brother. Kṛṣṇa and Balarāma — these two are Caitanya and Nitāi.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Mahā-Saṅkarṣaṇa pervades the universe lengthwise and crosswise as its "material" (upādāna) and "efficient" (nimitta) cause; that is why Mahāprabhu calls Him His "elder brother." But Kṛṣṇa and Balarāma in Kṛṣṇaloka are Caitanya and Nitāi themselves. Therefore Nityānanda Prabhu is the original Saṅkarṣaṇa, that is, Baladeva.

Thirteen months before His appearance, Kṛṣṇa enters Śacī's womb —

Miśra is astonished to see Śacī changed in a way not of this world —

81 Miśra said to Śacī, "I see something wonderful. Your body is radiant, and our house has become the abode of Lakṣmī.

Śacī is astonished to see the gods offering prayers —

83 Śacī replied, "And I see beings of divine form appear in the sky above and offer prayers."

Kṛṣṇa enters first Miśra's heart, then Śacī's —

84 Jagannātha Miśra said, "I had a dream: a radiant abode entered my heart.

86 Speaking thus, the two were filled with joy, and they served the śālagrāma with special care.

Anubhāṣya.

The conclusion is this. Jagannātha and Śacī are eternally perfect (nitya-siddha), and so their hearts and bodies consist of pure goodness (śuddha-sattva) and are not at all like those of ordinary mundane jīvas. Pure goodness (viśuddha-sattva) is called "Vasudeva"; it is in Vasudeva that Vāsudeva, who enjoys spiritual pastimes, becomes manifest (see the Vivṛti in the Gauḍīya-bhāṣya on Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 4.3.23). The union of Śrī Jagannātha and Śacīdevī and the conception in Śacīdevī were not like the amorous play and the pregnancy of men and women with mundane bodies of blood and flesh, absorbed in gratifying their material senses. Therefore even to think so in one's mind is an offense. One who reflects with a heart turned toward the service of Bhagavān will grasp the glory of the transcendental womb of Śrī Śacīdevī, who is made entirely of pure goodness. The Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam (10.2.16) says: "Bhagavān, the Soul of the universe, who frees His devotees from fear, entered the mind of Ānakadundubhi with His portion." Śrīdhara Svāmī comments: "'Entered the mind' — He became manifest in the mind; the meaning is that He has no connection with bodily elements (dhātu), as the jīvas do." In this connection see also Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.2.18 and 19.

On the same subject, here is a rendering of the sense of verses 160–165 from the section on the manifestation of the manifest pastimes in Śrī Rūpa Gosvāmī Prabhu's Laghu-bhāgavatāmṛta. The words of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam (10.2.16), "He entered the mind of Ānakadundubhi with His portion," mean that Kṛṣṇa first became manifest in the heart of Ānakadundubhi. Then from Ānakadundubhi's heart He became manifest in Devakī's heart. Fondled by the nectar of loving bliss, Devakī's parental love, Śrī Kṛṣṇa grew more and more in her heart, like the waxing moon. Then Śrī Kṛṣṇa vanished from Devakī's heart and appeared on her bed in the birth chamber of Kaṁsa's prison. Devakī and the others, under the sway of yogamāyā, then thought that the child had been born in the ordinary way, easily and happily. Such humanlike yet transcendental feelings of the devotee and Bhagavān, supremely delightful, serve the most wonderful spiritual pastimes. They bewilder even great sages enchanted by māyā, and they establish that Mathurā-dhāma is higher even than Paravyoma-Vaikuṇṭha. Thus Śrī Kṛṣṇa eternally remains the eternal son of the eternal Yaśodā, and in the same way He enjoys pastimes in the endless unmanifest līlā as well. Śrī Līlā-puruṣottama Śrī Kṛṣṇa eternally sports in Vraja, rejoicing in such pastimes: they give bliss to His dearest devotees and astonish Him as well. Under the sway of the transcendental parental love of the transcendental Nanda and Yaśodā — a love that has no equal and none higher — Bhagavān eternally knows Himself as their eternal son. In the Tenth Canto (10.5.1): “When a son was born to the great-hearted Nanda, he was overjoyed.” In the same Tenth Canto (10.6.43): “Generous-hearted Nanda, returning from abroad, took his son Kṛṣṇa on his lap, smelled His head and was filled with supreme bliss.” And again (10.9.21): “This Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the son of a cowherd woman, so easily reached by devotees, is never easily attained by those who take the body for the self, by ascetics, or by jñānīs who contemplate the self.”

Śrīpāda Baladeva Vidyābhūṣaṇa writes: “This [portion], having become one with Kṛṣṇa — Svayaṁ Bhagavān in His form, who dwelt in Ānakadundubhi's heart — becomes manifest in Devakī's heart. For Śrī Śuka says: ‘Then the goddess (“meaning: made of pure goodness,” says Svāmipāda) held in her mind the portion of Acyuta — the auspiciousness of the world, the Soul of all, the Self — placed in her (“properly placed, that is, imparted through initiation according to the rules,” says Svāmipāda) by the son of Śūra, as the east holds the delightful moon’ (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.2.18). Although it says ‘in Devakī's heart,’ it should be understood that He was in her womb, as the gods' prayer shows: ‘Fortunately, O mother, the Supreme Person is in your womb’ (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.2.41).  And in the section on the birth: ‘In Devakī, whose form is divine, Viṣṇu, who dwells in everyone's heart, appeared, like the full moon in the east’ (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.3.8).”

“Then, as the east reveals the rising moon, so Devakī, made of pure goodness, having received from Śūrasena (Vasudeva) initiation into Kṛṣṇa's mantra, held in her heart Śrī Acyuta — the auspiciousness of the world, the Soul of all and the Supreme Soul.” From these words of the Bhāgavatam it is known that Svayaṁ Bhagavān became manifest from the heart of Ānakadundubhi (Vasudeva) in the heart of Devakī. Although “in Devakī's heart” is said here, it must be understood to mean that He was in Devakī's womb, for in the Bhāgavatam there is the gods' prayer: “O mother, the Supreme Person resides in your womb.” And in the section on the Lord's birth these words of the Bhāgavatam should be especially noted: “As the full moon rises in the east, so Viṣṇu, who dwells in everyone's heart, appeared in Devakī's heart.”

Here, by the words “served the feet of Govinda with still greater devotion” (Ādi 13.79), it should be understood that Śrī Gaurasundara appeared in the very hearts of Miśra and Śacī, which were always immersed in the service of Govinda's feet.

Even after thirteen months there is no sign of His descent —

Mars, the lord of the ninth house, is exalted (ucca); Venus and Saturn are nearly exalted. Jupiter, in its own house (svagṛha), aspects Venus, which stands in the house of dharma. Venus, the lord of the tenth house, aspected by Jupiter (Guru), stands in the ninth house.

Anubhāṣya.
At the end of the play Śrī Caitanya-candrodaya: “In the Śaka year fourteen hundred joined with the horses of the sun[1], Gaura Hari appeared in the circle of the earth.” Many events and known dates do not agree with Śrī Mahāprabhu's appearance in this Śaka year; therefore some think that Śaka 1426 or some other year is correct.

The ṣaḍ-varga: kṣetra, horā, dreṣkāṇa, navāṁśa, dvādaśāṁśa and triṁśāṁśa — these six are called the ṣaḍ-varga, the six divisions of a sign. Nīlāmbara examined the lords of this ṣaḍ-varga according to the exact degree (spaṣṭāṁśa) of the ascendant and established the auspicious signs.

The aṣṭa-varga: the aṣṭa-varga is calculated by drawing prescribed lines from the positions of the planets at the moment, as described in the Bṛhaj-jātaka and other books. Experts in horā-śāstra, astrology, apply the stated results to it and determine what is auspicious and what is not. By this calculation too Cakravartī saw auspicious signs in Mahāprabhu.

94 The whole world was filled with people crying, "Hari! Hari!" — and at that very moment Gaura-Kṛṣṇa descended to the earth.

At that time even the Yavanas, mocking, utter Hari's name —

প্রসন্ন হইল সব জগতের মন ।
'হরি' বলি' হিন্দুকে হাস্য করয়ে যবন ॥ ৯৫ ॥ prasanna haila saba jagatera mana glad became all of the world the mind

'hari' bali' hinduke hāsya karaye yavana
'Hari' saying at the Hindus mockery makes the Muslim

95 Every heart in the world was glad; even the Muslims, mocking the Hindus, cried out, "Hari!"

The joy of the gods in heaven —

'হরি' বলি' নারীগণ দেই হুলাহুলি । স্বর্গে বাদ্য-নৃত্য করে দেব কুতূহলী ॥ ৯৬ ॥

'hari' bali' nārīgaṇa dei hulāhuli
'Hari' saying the women give ululation svarge vādya-nṛtya kare deva kutūhalī in heaven music and dance make the gods eager

96 Calling "Hari!", the women raised their joyful ululation, while in heaven the gods, full of eager delight, played music and danced.

Joy plays everywhere —

প্রসন্ন হৈল দশ দিক্, প্রসন্ন নদীজল । স্থাবর-জঙ্গম হৈল আনন্দে বিহ্বল ॥ ৯৭ ॥

prasanna haila daśa dik, prasanna nadījala bright became the ten directions, clear the river water sthāvara-jaṅgama haila ānande vihvala the unmoving and the moving became with bliss overwhelmed

97 The ten directions grew bright, the waters of the rivers grew clear, and all beings, moving and unmoving, were overwhelmed with bliss.

*The sūtra of the Lord's birth: Gaurahari appears amid the kīrtana of Hari's name —*

নদীয়া-উদয়গিরি, পূর্ণচন্দ্র গৌরহরি, কৃপা করি' হইল উদয় ৷ পাপ-তমো হৈল নাশ, ত্রিজগতের উল্লাস, of sin the darkness became destroyed, of the three worlds the joy jagabhari' hari-dhvani haya the world filling the sound of 'Hari' is 98 Over Nadīyā, the eastern mountain, the full moon Gaurahari has risen in His mercy. The darkness of sin is destroyed, the three worlds rejoice, and the sound of "Hari!" fills the world.

Advaita dances, overflowing with joy —

সেইকালে নিজালয়, উঠিয়া অদ্বৈত রায়, নৃত্য করে আনন্দিত-মনে ৷ হরিদাসে লঞা সঙ্গে, হুঙ্কার-কীর্ত্তন-রঙ্গে কেনে নাচে, কেহ নাহি জানে ॥ ৯৯ ॥ sei-kāle nijālaya, uṭhiyā advaita rāya, at that time in His own home, rising Advaita Rāya nṛtya kare ānandita-mane dance does joyful at heart haridāse lañā saṅge, huṅkāra-kīrtana-raṅge Haridāsa taking with Him, in the delight of roaring kīrtana kene nāce, keha nāhi jāne why He dances, anyone not knows

99 At that very time, in His own home, Advaita Rāya rose and began to dance, joyful at heart. With Haridāsa beside Him He roared and sang kīrtana in delight — and no one knew why He was dancing.

Anubhāṣya.

“In His own home”: in His house at Śāntipura. On the day of the Lord's birth Haridāsa Ṭhākura was in Śāntipura.

The lunar eclipse: the people chant Hari's name —

দেখি’ উপরাগ হাসি’, শীঘ্র গঙ্গাঘাটে আসি’, আনন্দে করিল গঙ্গাস্নান ।
পাঞা উপরাগ-ছলে, আপনার মনোবলে, ব্রাহ্মণেরে দিল নানা দান ॥ ১০০ ॥ dekhi’ uparāga hāsi’, śīghra gaṅgā-ghāṭe āsi’, seeing the eclipse laughing, quickly to the Gaṅgā’s bathing place coming ānande karila gaṅgā-snāna in joy made bath in the Gaṅgā pāñā uparāga-chale, āpanāra mano-bale, taking the eclipse as pretext, His own by the power of mind brāhmaṇere dila nānā dāna to the brāhmaṇas gave various gifts

100 Seeing the eclipse, He laughed, hurried to the bathing place on the Gaṅgā and bathed there joyfully. Then, as though for the eclipse, He gave the brāhmaṇas many gifts in His mind.

Anubhāṣya.

Uparāga means an eclipse. Manobale: with eagerness of mind; or else, He gave gifts to the brāhmaṇas in His mind. The Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam (10.3.11) says: “Then Ānakadundubhi, his eyes wide with wonder, saw that his son was Hari. Stirred by the festival of Kṛṣṇa's descent, he joyfully bathed [in his mind] and [in his mind] gave ten thousand cows to the brāhmaṇas.” Seeing Bhagavān Hari as his son, Vasudeva rejoiced at the festival of Kṛṣṇa's birth and in the prison gave ten thousand cows to the brāhmaṇas in his mind.

Advaita hints to Haridāsa of the Lord's auspicious appearance —

জগৎ আনন্দময়, দেখি' মনে সবিস্ময়, ঠারেঠোরে কহে হরিদাস ৷৷ তোমার ঐছন রঙ্গ, মোর মন পরসন্ন, jagat ānandamaya, dekhi' mane sa-vismaya,

tomāra aichana raṅga, mora mana parasanna,
Your such delight, my mind is pleased dekhi — kichu kārye āche bhāsa
I see — some in the deed there is a hint

101 Seeing the whole world full of bliss, Haridāsa was astonished and spoke in hints: "This joyful play of Yours delights my heart. I see that something lies behind it."

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

"Dekhi kichu kārye āche bhāsa" ("I see something is behind this"): in this one seems to sense the manifestation of some special work.

Anubhāṣya.

Ṭhāre-ṭhore: by hints.

Śrīvāsa, overflowing with joy, chants Hari's name —

আচার্যরত্ন, শ্রীবাস, হৈল মনে সুখোল্লাস,

Ācāryaratna, Śrīvāsa, became in mind joyful ānande vihvala mana, kare hari-saṁkīrtana with bliss overwhelmed mind, do saṅkīrtana of Hari

102 Ācāryaratna and Śrīvāsa were filled with joy. They went and bathed in the Gaṅgā, and, overwhelmed with bliss, sang the saṅkīrtana of Hari and gave many gifts in their minds.

The hearts of all the devotees in the world are gladdened —

এই মত ভক্তযতি, যাঁর যেই দেশে স্থিতি,

নাচে, করে সংকীর্ত্তন, আনন্দে বিহ্বল মন,

dance, do saṅkīrtana, with bliss overwhelmed the mind dāna kare grahaṇera chale gifts give on the pretext of the eclipse

103 So too all the devotees, in whatever land they dwelt, danced and sang saṅkīrtana there, overwhelmed with bliss, and, as though for the eclipse, gave gifts in their minds.

Men and women rejoice to see the child shining like gold —

ব্রাহ্মণ-সজ্জন-নারী, নানা-দ্রব্যে পাত্র ভরি’

104 Brāhmaṇas, good men and women all came with plates heaped with gifts, and when they saw the child, radiant as molten gold, they blessed Him with delight.

105 Sāvitrī, Gaurī, Sarasvatī, Śacī, Rambhā, Arundhatī and all the other goddesses came dressed as brāhmaṇa ladies, bearing trays laden with gifts, to see Him.

Anubhāṣya.

Sāvitrī is Brahmā's wife; Gaurī, Śiva's wife; Sarasvatī, Nṛsiṁha's consort, as in Śrīdhara Svāmī's commentary: "I worship Nṛsiṁha, on whose lips is the goddess of speech, on whose chest is Lakṣmī, and in whose heart is knowledge"; Śacī, Indra's wife; Rambhā, a heavenly dancer; Arundhatī, Vasiṣṭha's wife.

The gods and others in the sky rejoice, bow down, offer prayers and dance —

অন্তরীক্ষে দেবগণ, সিদ্ধ, গন্ধর্ব্ব, চারণ,

106 In the sky the gods, siddhas, gandharvas and cāraṇas offered praises, danced, played and sang; and the dancers, musicians and bards who performed in Navadvīpa all came and danced with delight.

Anubhāṣya.

Siddhas: beings of divine birth who attained that birth through perfection in mantras. Gandharvas: heavenly singers, born from Brahmā's luster; their abode is Guhyaloka. Cāraṇas: "The singers of the gods, the reciters of hymns of praise, are the Cāraṇas"; a particular class of celestial beings.

কেবা আসে কেবা যায়, কেবা নাচে কেবা গায়, miśra hailā ānande vihvala

Miśra became with bliss overwhelmed

107 Who was coming, who going, who dancing, who singing — no one could make out anyone's words. Sorrow and grief were cut away, the people were filled with gladness, and Miśra was overwhelmed with bliss.

Anubhāṣya.

Sambhālite: to understand. Gods, humans, Siddhas and the rest belong to different orders of beings, and so they cannot understand one another's words.

*The Lord's birth ceremony (jātakarma) —*

আচার্য্যরত্ন, শ্রীনিবাস, জগন্নাথমিশ্র-পাশ,

108 Ācāryaratna and Śrīvāsa came to Jagannātha Miśra and recalled him to his duty. They had the birth rite performed as the scriptures prescribe, and then Miśra gave many gifts.

Anubhāṣya.
Ācāryaratna is Candraśekhara; Śrīvāsa is Śrīnivāsa Paṇḍita.

Miśra gives gifts on the occasion of the auspicious rite —

যৌতুক পাইল যত, ঘরে বা আছিল কত,

111 Advaita Ācārya's wife, the noble lady revered by all the world, was named Sītā Ṭhākurāṇī. With the Ācārya's leave she set out with gifts to see that jewel among children.

Anubhāṣya.

One day after the Lord's birthday, Advaita Prabhu's wife Sītādevī, with His permission, came with gifts from Śāntipura to Navadvīpa to see the child. Although Advaita Prabhu also had a house in Navadvīpa at that time, the words "in His own home" (Ādi 13.99) show that He was then staying in Śāntipura.

The ornaments of the Lord in the form of a child —

113 There was also a tiger's claw set in gold, a silken waist-cord, every kind of ornament for hands and feet, many-coloured silk saris, a little shirt woven with a silk border, and a wealth of gold and silver coins.

Anubhāṣya.

Hemajaḍi: a jeweled ornament set with a tiger's claw; kaṭi-paṭṭasūtra-ḍorī: a ghunsi, a waist string; citravarṇa paṭṭasāḍī: a colorful silk cloth; buni photo paṭṭapāḍī: a phatuyā with a woven silk border, that is, a little shirt for a baby.

114 Riding in a curtained palanquin with her maidservants, she came with baskets full of clothes and ornaments, and plates heaped with auspicious things — dūrvā grass, paddy, gorocanā, turmeric, saffron and sandal.

Anubhāṣya.

Gorocana: a bright yellow substance obtained from a cow's head, or dried bile. Kuṅkuma: a fragrant substance native to Kashmir. "Kuṅkuma from the fields of Kashmir — with fine filaments, reddish, with the fragrance of a lotus — is the best. Kuṅkuma from the land of Bāhlīka — pale, with the fragrance of ketakī, with fine filaments — is middling. Persian kuṅkuma is said to smell of honey; it is slightly pale, with coarse filaments, and is the lowest."

Vastragupta-dolā: a litter (ḍuli or thāñjām) covered with cloth; ceḍī: a maidservant.

varṇamātra dekhi viparīta
the colour only seeing the opposite

115 Bringing many loads of sweets and other foods, she arrived at Śacī's house. When she saw the child, He was Kāna of Gokula Himself — only His colour was the opposite.

Anubhāṣya.

Ṭhāma: build; kāna: Kānu, that is, Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa's color is dark, like a dense indranīla sapphire; Viśvambhara's color is the opposite, golden (gaura).

Seeing the child's golden body, the women are filled with parental love —

সর্ব্ব অঙ্গ — সুনির্ম্মাণ, সুবর্ণ-প্রতিমা-ভান, সর্ব্ব অঙ্গ — সুলক্ষণময়।

sarva aṅga — sulakṣaṇamaya every limb — with auspicious marks full bālakera divya jyoti, dekhi' pāila bahu prīti, of the child the divine radiance, seeing she got much delight vātsalyete dravila hṛdaya with parental love melted her heart

116 Every limb was finely formed, He seemed an image of gold, and every limb bore auspicious marks. Seeing the child's divine radiance, she was filled with delight, and her heart melted with a mother's love.

Anubhāṣya.

Sunirmāṇa: beautifully formed limbs; bhāna: appearance.

The child is blessed and a protective amulet is tied on Him —

দুর্ব্বা ধান্য দিল শীর্ষে, কৈল বহু আশীষে, চিরজীবী হও দুই ভাই । ডাকিনী-শাঁখিনী হৈতে, শঙ্কা উপজিল চিতে, ḍare nāma thuila 'nimāi'

out of fear the name gave 'Nimāi'

117 She placed dūrvā grass and paddy on His head and blessed Him again and again: "May the two brothers live long!" Fearing the witches and evil spirits, she gave Him the name Nimāi.

Anubhāṣya.

The two brothers are Viśvarūpa and Viśvambhara. Ḍākinīs and śākhinīs are the companions of Pārvatī and Maheśa, a particular class of malevolent ghosts (preta) born in female form. These lower deities (apadevatās) cannot approach the sacred nimba tree or places connected with it.

118 On the day the mother and child were bathed, she gave them clothes and ornaments and honoured Miśra together with his son. Then, honoured in turn by Śacī and Miśra, Sītā Ṭhākurāṇī returned home glad at heart.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

"Putra-mātā-snāna-dine": that is, on the fifth day, the pāñcaṭa, and on the ninth, the day of the nattā.

Anubhāṣya.

"On the day of the mother's bath": that is, on the day of the niṣkrāmaṇa, the child's first going out of the house. In Bengal in former times the brāhmaṇas and other varṇas observed the impurity of childbirth (jananāśauca) for four months, followed by the rite of seeing the sun (sūrya-darśana). Later, instead of four months, twenty-one days of birth impurity were prescribed for the twice-born varṇas, the brāhmaṇas and others, while among the śūdras and others a month is still observed. Among the Kartābhajās and in the Satīmā group the birth impurity ends at once, with a harinuṭ (a scattering of sweets in Hari's name).

This custom at parting is still seen in Bengali social life. When relatives or in-laws visit someone's home, the householder honors them at their departure with cloth and other gifts. Having received such honor from Jagannātha Miśra and Śacīdevī, Sītā Ṭhākurāṇī returned to Śāntipura.

দিনে দিনে হয় আনন্দিত ॥ ১১৯ ॥

aiche śacī-jagannātha, putra pāñā lakṣmīnātha, thus Śacī and Jagannātha, a son obtaining, the Lord of Lakṣmī pūrṇa haila sakala vāñchita fulfilled became all desires dhana-dhānye bhare ghara, lokamānya-kalevara, with wealth and grain is filled the house, honoured by all the body dine dine haya ānandita day by day become joyful

119 So Śacī and Jagannātha had gained a son who was the Lord of Lakṣmī, and all their desires were fulfilled. Their house was filled with wealth and grain; everyone honoured their child, and day by day their joy grew.

Anubhāṣya.

Lokamānya-kalevara, “a body honored by the world”: gods, humans and all others, drawn by the sight of Śrī Mahāprabhu's beauty, majesty and loveliness, showed honor to His body; seeing this, His father and mother rejoiced.

Miśra, a peaceful, self-controlled and generous Vaiṣṇava —

মিশ্র — বৈষ্ণব, শান্ত, অলম্পট, শুদ্ধ, দান্ত, ধনভোগে নাহি অভিমান ৷
পুত্রের প্রভাবে যত, ধন আসি’ মিলে তত, বিষ্ণুপ্রীতে দ্বিজে দেন দান ॥ ১২০ ॥

miśra — vaiṣṇava, śānta, alampaṭa, śuddha, dānta, Miśra — a Vaiṣṇava, peaceful, free from lust, pure, self-controlled dhana-bhoge nāhi abhimāna in enjoying wealth not conceit putrera prabhāve yata, dhana āsi' mile tata, by the son's power as much wealth coming is gained so much viṣṇu-prīte dvije dena dāna for Viṣṇu's pleasure to brāhmaṇas gives in charity

120 Miśra was a Vaiṣṇava — peaceful, free from lust, pure and self-controlled — with no thought of enjoying wealth. Whatever wealth came to him through his son's power, he gave to the brāhmaṇas for the pleasure of Viṣṇu.

Anubhāṣya.
Mundane, worldly people, for the sake of wife, sons and the like, take pride in enjoying wealth and bustle after it. The pure devotee Jagannātha Miśra was not like that. He offered everything he had to Bhagavān and gave the remnants to worthy recipients, brāhmaṇas and others. He accepted nothing for the sake of his own enjoyment.

Cakravartī casts the Lord's horoscope —

লগ্ন গণি' হর্ষমতি, নীলাম্বর চক্রবর্ত্তী, গুপ্তে কিছু কহিল মিশ্রেরে ৷ মহাপুরুষের চিহ্ন, লগ্নে অঙ্গে ভিন্ন ভিন্ন, lagna gaṇi' harṣamati, nīlāmbara cakravartī, the ascendant calculating joyful at heart, Nīlāmbara Cakravartī gupte kichu kahila miśrere mahāpuruṣera cihna, lagne aṅge bhinna bhinna, of a great person the marks, in the horoscope on the body various dekhi, — ei tāribe saṁsāre

I see — this one will deliver the world

121 Nīlāmbara Cakravartī cast the horoscope with joy in his heart and told Miśra in secret, “I see many marks of a great person (mahāpuruṣa), both in the horoscope and on His body. This child will deliver the world.”

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

“Lagne aṅge bhinna bhinna” (“separately, in the lagna and on the body”): according to sāmudrika, the science of bodily marks — in the lagna, that is, in the birth chart (jātaka-kuṇḍalī), and on the aṅga, that is, on the body.

Thus ends the thirteenth chapter of the “Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.”

Anubhāṣya.

Gupte: in private.

The glory of hearing of the Lord's birth —

ঐছে প্রভু শচী-ঘরে, কৃপায় কৈল অবতারে, যেই ইহা করয়ে শ্রবণ ।
গৌরপ্রভু দয়াময়, তাঁরে হয়েন সদয়, সেই পায় তাঁহার চরণ ॥ ১২২ ॥

aiche prabhu śacī-ghare, kṛpāya kaila avatāre, thus the Lord in Śacī’s house in mercy made descent
yei ihā karaye śravaṇa whoever this does hearing
gaura-prabhu dayāmaya, tāṁre hayena sadaya, Gaura Prabhu merciful, to him becomes kind sei pāya tāṁhāra caraṇa
he attains His feet

122 Thus the Lord in His mercy descended in Śacī’s house. Whoever hears of this receives the kindness of merciful Gaura Prabhu and attains His feet.

The misfortune of worldly people hostile to Gaura —

পাইয়া মানুষ-জন্ম, যে না শুনে গৌরগুণ, হেন জন্ম তার ব্যর্থ হৈল ।
পাইয়া অমৃতধুনী, পিয়ে বিষগর্ত্ত-পানি, জন্মিয়া সে কেনে নাহি মৈল ॥ ১২৩ ॥

pāiyā mānuṣa-janma, ye nā śune gaura-guṇa, having obtained human birth, who not hears Gaura's qualities hena janma tāra vyartha haila such birth his wasted became pāiyā amṛtadhunī, piye viṣa-garta-pāni, having found the river of nectar, drinks from a poison pit water janmiyā se kene nāhi maila being born he why not died

123 One who has gained a human birth yet will not hear of Gaura's qualities has wasted that birth. He has found the river of nectar, yet drinks water from a poisoned pit. Why did he not die as soon as he was born?

Anubhāṣya.

Amṛta-dhunī: a river of nectar. Whoever refuses to drink the water of the nectarean stream of devotion to Kṛṣṇa and drinks the water of the poisonous well of sense objects (harmful to the soul) is utterly dead, and should not go on living.

In Śrīmat Prabodhānanda Sarasvatīpāda's Caitanya-candrāmṛta: "This world is without consciousness (acaitanya) if it does not worship Caitanya, the Lord whom the best of the immortals worship: death surrounds it on every side." "This world is without consciousness if it does not know Caitanya, the Lord: such people, though they know all the scriptures, wander astray." "Now that the moon of Caitanya has risen and the ocean of the nectarean rasa of great prema has spread wide, whoever remains poor is poor indeed." "Now that Gauracandra has descended, the ocean of prema has spread wide and its heaps of jewels shine brightly, whoever remains poor is poor indeed."

The Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam (2.3.19, 20, 23) says: "A man into whose ears the name of Gadāgraja has never entered is an animal, praised by dogs, dung-eating hogs, camels and asses." "O Sūta, the ears of a man who does not hear of the exploits of Urukrama are mere holes; and the wicked tongue that does not sing the songs of Urugāya is like the tongue of a frog." "A mortal who has never taken on himself the dust of the feet of a bhāgavata is a corpse though alive; and a man who has never known the fragrance of the tulasī from Śrī Viṣṇu's feet is a breathing corpse." (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.1.4): "The recounting of Uttamaśloka's qualities is sung by those free of thirst; it is the medicine for the disease of worldly existence and a delight to the ear and the mind. Who, except a killer of animals, would turn away from it?" (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 3.23.56): "… whoever does not live for the service of Him whose feet are holy places is dead though alive."

124 Honouring upon my head, as my own treasure, the holy feet of Śrī Caitanya and Nityānanda, Ācārya Advaitacandra, Svarūpa, Rūpa and Raghunātha dāsa, I, Kṛṣṇadāsa, have sung the pastime of His birth.

Anubhāṣya.

The lotus feet of Śrī Mahāprabhu, Nityānanda, Advaita, Dāmodara Svarūpa, Rūpa and Raghunātha dāsa are the very own wealth of Śrī Kṛṣṇadāsa Kavirāja Gosvāmī and of the pure, or intimate, devotees who follow him. The wealth of worldly people is a price set by māyā; in truth it deserves the name "debt." The jīva who has turned away from Kṛṣṇa does not know that the highest goal is wealth, and takes lust (kāma), a debt in the form of material enjoyment, to be "wealth." Worldly jīvas bustle after the things they take for wealth, but in these the servants of Hari see only a growth of debt, not a growth of wealth. On the other hand, when Bhagavān makes someone rich by giving him the wealth of His mercy, He takes away his material riches. “Upon whom I bestow My mercy, I gradually take away his wealth”[5]. Ṭhākura Narottama says: “My wealth is Nityānanda”; “The holy feet of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa are the wealth of my life”; “Glory to You, O purifier of the fallen! Give me this wealth; nothing but You appeals to me”; “The feet of Śrī Rūpa-mañjarī are my treasure, my worship and adoration, the wealth of my life”; “Carelessly I lost the jewel-wealth of prema. Striving for what is no wealth, I gave up true wealth” — and so on.

The smārtas, guided by the notion of kinship by seed, impute śūdra-hood — the lack of brāhmaṇa status — to the lotus feet of Śrī Raghunātha dāsa; in their wealth of devotion this is only a debt. But to realize transcendental brāhmaṇa-hood in his lotus feet is the devotee's very own wealth.

Thus ends the thirteenth chapter of the “Anubhāṣya.”
