Sri Chaitanya-chandramrita

"The Nectar of the Moon Chaitanya"

Prabodhananda Sarasvati

Translated from the Sanskrit

Sanskrit text, transliteration, word-for-word translation and the "Gaudiya-bhashya" of Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati (translated from the Bengali)

Translator's note

The Sri Chaitanya-chandramrita is a Sanskrit collection of a little over a hundred verses glorifying Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Its author is Prabodhananda Sarasvati, a contemporary of Mahaprabhu who later lived in Vrindavana (tradition regards him as the uncle and teacher of Gopala Bhatta Gosvami). The book is divided into twelve sections: praise, obeisance, benediction, the glory of Gaura's devotees, censure of the non-devotees, humility, fidelity to the object of worship, instruction to the world, the supremacy of Chaitanya, the glory of His descent, the beauty and dance of Gaura, and finally lament over His disappearance.

Source. The Sanskrit text is taken from the edition Sri Chaitanya-chandramritam tatha Sri Sangita-madhavam, Mathura, 1951 (ed. Baba Krishnadasa, with a Hindi translation by Gosvami Krishna Chaitanya; eGangotri scan at archive.org). The verse numbering follows that edition (142 verses and one verse in brackets without a number). Poorly recognized passages have been checked against the Bengali edition with the translation of Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati (which has 143 verses: one verse stands in a different place, so from the seventh section on its numbers are one higher). Only Prabodhananda's Sanskrit text has been translated. The Hindi and Bengali translations and commentaries of the editions helped to make out corrupt passages but are not reproduced.

Verification. After the first translation the Sanskrit text was restored line by line from both editions (checking the metre and relying on Bhaktisiddhanta's word-for-word analysis), and the translation of every verse was compared afresh with it; places where the translation departed from Bhaktisiddhanta's interpretation in meaning were corrected according to him. The English translation was made from the Sanskrit, in agreement with the Russian translation (same numbering and notes).

Full version. For each verse are given: the Sanskrit text in Devanagari, restored from the 1951 edition and Bhaktisiddhanta's Bengali edition (where they differ, Bhaktisiddhanta's reading is preferred; this is our own corrected text, not a reprint of any single edition); an IAST transliteration; a word-for-word translation — the complete translation of Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya (word-for-word analysis) in his word order (words he supplies as implied are in square brackets); and the translation.

After each verse follows a translation of the "Gaudiya-bhashya" of Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati (1874–1937) — his Bengali translation and commentary from the Gaudiya Math edition (Calcutta, 1st ed.); his preface to that edition is given at the beginning of the book. For each verse the summary heading and the continuous commentary (anuvada) are translated; glosses from the word-for-word analysis that are not in the continuous text appear in the anvaya above. The Bengali text is known from an OCR copy; illegible places are marked "[…]". The verse numbers follow the 1951 edition; in the Bengali edition verse 17 is repeated once more as
No. 75, so from No. 75 on its numbers are one higher. The commentary and the anvaya were translated into English from the Bengali, in agreement with the Russian translation.

Contents

- Preface by Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati
- Part One — Praise. Obeisance. Benediction. The glory of Sri Chaitanya's devotees (verses 1–28)
- Part Two — Censure of the non-devotees. Humility (verses 29–56)
- Part Three — Fidelity to the object of worship. Instruction to the world (verses 57–98)
- Part Four — The supremacy of Sri Chaitanya. The glory of His descent. The beauty and dance of Gaura. Lament (verses 99–142)

Preface by Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati

"Sri Sri Chaitanya-chandramritam" and "Sri Sri Navadvipa-shatakam," composed by the crest-jewel of the tridandi-gosvamis, the wandering acharya, the foremost of Gaura's associates, Srila Prabodhananda Sarasvati Gosvamipada — with the "Gaudiya-bhashya" and Bengali translation of Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, which refute all false conclusions. Published by Sri Atindranatha Devasharma Bandyopadhyaya, Gaudiya Math (1, Ultadingi Junction Road, Calcutta). First edition; offering — one and a half rupees. Printed by Ananta Vasudeva Brahmachari, B.A., at the Gaudiya Printing Works (243/2, Upper Circular Road, Calcutta).

About the author

At the beginning of the year 1433 of the Shaka era Sri Gaurasundara, under the pretext of a pilgrimage, distributed mercy to the devotees in South India. Setting out from Nilachala in the province of Utkala, He first came to the confluence of the Godavari with the sea and then visited many holy places of the present Madras Presidency. On the bright ekadashi of the month of […] Sri Mahaprabhu arrived at […]. Seeing that […] had come, the Lord […], following the rule of the dashanami sannyasis, resolved to spend four months at the holy place of Sri Ranganatha. Vaishnavas […] lived there. The adherence of the sampradaya Vaishnavas of the South to righteous conduct […]. In the villages of the South where genuine Vaishnavas [live], the smarta brahmanas do not find it convenient to live. […] was at that time a holy place served exclusively by Sri Vaishnavas. Therefore Sri Mahaprabhu spent four months among righteous Vaishnavas who had taken shelter of devotion to Vishnu, and, taking darshana of Sri Ranganatha and preaching the topics of Krishna, He instructed the living beings. At that time three brothers — Tirumalla, Venkata and Gopala-guru — who had come from the province of Mysore, lived in Srirangam. In fact they were natives of Andhra, or the Northern province. Sri Mahaprabhu, greatly pleased with this brahmana family, spent four months in their house. The son of the middle brother, Venkata, then in his boyhood (pauganda), is the famous Sri Gopala Bhatta, one of the six Gosvamis.

The Vaishnavas of the Sri-sampradaya love the worship of Sri Lakshmi-Narayana. By the inner mercy of Sri Mahaprabhu this Bhatta family became expert in attaining Krishna-rasa. Although we do not know much about Sri Tirumalla, it can be understood that Sri Chaitanya was his life as well.

Sri Venkata's conversation with Sri Mahaprabhu is described in the Sri Chaitanya-charitamrita (Madhya-lila, ninth chapter). Sri Prabodhananda's attachment to Sri Chaitanya was incomparable. Through the influence of Sri Prabodhananda's good instruction […]'s son Sri Gopala Bhatta attained the position of acharya of the Gaudiya Vaishnavas. Among the servants of Sri Chaitanya the place of Sri Prabodhananda is very high. Sri Kavi-karnapura in his Sri Gaura-ganoddesha-dipika has proclaimed Sri Prabodhananda Sarasvati to be Tungavidya in the pastimes of Sri Krishna.[1] In the Sri Hari-bhakti-vilasa […] it is written that Sri Gopala Bhatta, the disciple of Srila Prabodhananda, who is dear to the Lord, composed the Sri Hari-bhakti-vilasa to please Sri Rupa, Sri Sanatana and Sri Raghunatha Dasa.[2] In the Sri Bhakti-ratnakara it is written:

> Some say: great are the virtues of Prabodhananda; […] he became renowned as "Sarasvati."
>
> The complete Brahman […] Bhagavan — is dear to him; apart from Him, [Prabodhananda knows] nothing else even in a dream.
>
> Supreme renunciation, love, […] enchanting; a great poet, matchless in song, instrumental music and dance.
>
> Hearing his words, everyone's joy increases; boundless is the great glory of Prabodhananda.

After Sri Mahaprabhu returned to Nilachala, within a few years Sri Prabodhananda Sarasvati, having entered deeply into the worship hidden in the heart of Sri Krishna-Chaitanya, leaving […] for the sake of the desired bhajana […], without delay, under the shelter of Sri Gaura's feet, settled in Kamyavana in the district of Mathura. In Sri Gopala Bhatta too the desire to live in Vraja gradually awoke; later he also followed in the footsteps of his paternal uncle.

Many people ask: if Sri Prabodhananda Sarasvati was so dear to Sri Gauranga, why did […] Kaviraja Gosvami not record his life and glories for the pleasure of the readers who are devotees of Sri Gaura? […] the writing of the Sri Bhakti-ratnakara seems quite sufficient. Its author, Sri Ghanashyama Sri Narahari Chakravarti, says:

> These accounts of Sri Gopala Bhatta some describe in part, others do not describe at all.
>
> Whoever, without understanding the heart of this, […] — in his heart the seed of offence takes root.
>
> The supreme rasikas, the earlier poets, though able to describe it, did not describe it.
>
> They left a description only here and there; […] the poets for this reason.
>
> Sri Gopala Bhatta, pleased, gave the order […], forbidding them to describe what concerned himself.
>
> Why did he forbid it — who can understand that? He always regards himself as most lowly.
>
> Kaviraja could not transgress his order.

Some say that in the words written by Sri Prabodhananda support for the doctrine of svakiya is seen, […], seeing the superiority of parakiya-bhajana, […] says little about Srila Sarasvati Gosvami Prabhu. Be that as it may, all devotees who follow […], impartial like Sri Narahari Dasa, are fortunate; so let them, like him, leaving aside […], ever relish Sri Prabodhananda's pure following of Gaura and the sweetness of parakiya service to Sri Vrindavaneshvari.

Sri Prabodhananda's moods are supremely clear; in his language […] and sweetness are present at the same time. All Vaishnavas who have taken shelter at the feet of Sri Chaitanya obtain incomparable joy by daily reading Sri Prabodhananda's Sri Vrindavana-shataka. The Sri Navadvipa-shataka composed by him, like the Sri Vrindavana-shataka, also […]. Sri Prabodhananda's poem Sri Radha-rasa-sudhanidhi is truly incomparable in the world. Although an ordinary reader fond of poetry may not experience […] in reading this book, it is supremely dear to devotees whose hearts have been softened by Hari-rasa. Therefore how highly [it] is valued depends on differences of taste, on the reader's sukriti, and […] the transcendental moods rooted in the rasa of Vraja […]. He also has a book called Viveka-shataka; it is mentioned in the work of Professor Aufrecht, and the late Ramadasa Sen Mahashaya of Baharampur has seen this book.

The book Sri Chaitanya-chandramrita has been published […]. Even the opponents of Sri Gaura, on reading it, will feel the purity of their hearts. And it goes without saying that the followers of Sri Gaura, reading it, will be immersed in supreme bliss in an indescribable ocean of happiness. Those for whom the Lord of Goloka Himself became the object of service for four months, and to whom He granted […] — they possess an inexhaustible treasury of […], and the little circle of living beings certainly cherishes the hope of obtaining some part of it.

Some try to identify Prabodhananda, the foremost of Vaishnavas, with Prakashananda, the mayavadi of Kashi; but we can in no way believe their words. For about the mayavadi sannyasi of Kashi named Prakashananda it is written thus in the Sri Chaitanya-bhagavata, […], third chapter:

> Thus in Navadvipa […] Vishvambhara floats in the bliss of bhakti together with all His followers.

One day, hearing a verse about the mood of the Boar, He went roaring of His own accord to the house of Murari.

Pleased with Gupta's words, the Lord, the Boar, angry with the Vedas, says in reply:

"As if I had no hands, no feet, no face, no eyes — so the Vedas [describe] Me, […].

That fellow Prakashananda who teaches in Kashi — that fellow cuts My body to pieces.

He explains that the Vedas do not accept My form; leprosy has struck his whole body, and still he does not understand.

[…] My body, which is supremely pure, whose deeds Aja (Brahma), Bhava (Shiva) and the others sing, by touching which piety and purity themselves become pure — that fellow calls it 'false.' What audacity!"

This event took place between the years 1425 and 1430 of the Shaka era. Sri Mahaprabhu, auspiciously arriving at Srirangam in 1433 Shaka, saw Sri Prabodhananda-pada among the three brothers. They were then […] Vaishnavas of the Sri-sampradaya, that is, adherents of vishishta-advaita, servants of the eternal form of Sri Narayana; while Prakashananda was then the foremost of the servants of the mayavada founded by Shankara. To try to make these two persons "one," or to equate them, is sheer madness.

In the twentieth chapter of the Sri Chaitanya-bhagavata this too is said about Prakashananda:

As He was speaking, the Lord was filled with the mood of Ishvara; gnashing His teeth, He says emphatically:

"The sannyasi Prakashananda lives in Kashi; that fellow thoroughly cuts My […] to pieces.

He teaches Vedanta and does not accept My form; […] I have struck his body with leprosy, and still he does not understand.

The body in which countless […] rest — that fellow calls it 'false.' What audacity!

I tell you the truth, Murari: you are My servant. Whoever does not accept My body […] goes to ruin.

True are My pastimes and deeds, true is My abode; calling them 'false,' he cuts Me to pieces.

The glory by hearing which ignorance is destroyed today — those pastimes the sinful teacher calls 'false.'

Whoever disregards Him whose glory is so holy will never know […] My descent."

Sri Prakashananda was the […] of the ekadandi sannyasis of Shankara's sampradaya of that time; while Sri Prabodhananda was a Ramanujiya tridandi-jiyar-svami, who had come from the land of Mysore and lived in Ranga-kshetra. Prakashananda was a mayavadi living in Kashi, while Prabodhananda was a […] living in Kamyavana. One was a resident of Aryavarta, the other a Vaishnava of the South; one was a nirvishesha-vadi (an advocate of the impersonal), the other […] a savishesha-vadi (an advocate of the personal), and later an adherent of the doctrine of achintya-bhedabheda. One, an opponent of Vishnu [and the Vaishnavas], became a devotee only after being delivered; the other is an eternally perfect associate of Gaura and the guru of the Vaishnava acharya Sri Gopala Bhatta Gosvami. To call and […] the most worshipful paternal uncle and guru of Sri Gopala Bhatta Gosvami not the crest-jewel of eternally perfect devotees but a hater of Vishnu and the Vaishnavas, a mayavadi and [formerly] a conditioned soul is a terrible offence against a Vaishnava, leading to hell.

In the Sri Chaitanya-charitamrita, in the twenty-fifth chapter of the Madhya-lila and in the seventh chapter of the Adi-lila, only the mayavadi Prakashananda is spoken of. It is incomprehensible how a person who from 1425 to 1430 Shaka was a mayavadi could in 1433 Shaka be in the South […] a Ramanujiya, and then in 1435 Shaka […] become a mayavadi again. Therefore the attempt to identify Prakashananda with Sri Prabodhananda shows only extreme ignorance. […] Such a tendency to uproot traditions is no small sorrow. Because Sri Prabodhananda Sarasvati, moved by his […] and humility, forbade through Sri Gopala Bhatta the discussion of his personal life […], and […] Kaviraja Gosvami did not transgress his order — this calamity has now arisen. Had Srila Prabodhananda known that after his disappearance, in order to count him among the offenders against Vishnu and the Vaishnavas, this terrible whirlpool of error would arise in the future, he […] would not have forbidden Sri Kaviraja Gosvami in that way. The readers of the Bhakti-ratnakara will understand this. About Srila Prabodhananda it is written thus in the Bhakti-ratnakara:

> […], Venkata and Prabodhananda — the treasure of the life of the three brothers is Gaurachandra.
>
> These three brothers, worshippers of Lakshmi-Narayana, by the Lord's […] became intoxicated with the rasa of Radha-Krishna.
>
> Tirumalla, Venkata, Prabodhananda — all three reflect: "How shall we live without the Lord?
>
> Who will joke with us? Who will take us along to bathe in the Kaveri?"
>
> After four months the Lord took His leave; the three brothers weep aloud.
>
> The Lord, […] the three brothers, spoke to them many words of consolation.
>
> Some say: great are the virtues of Prabodhananda, […] he became renowned as the sannyasi "Sarasvati."
>
> […] Sri Krishna-Chaitanya Bhagavan — is dear to him; apart from Him, [he knows] nothing else even in a dream.

In the catalogue of the esteemed Professor Aufrecht a book called Sri Sangita-madhava is listed among the works of Srila Prabodhananda Sarasvati. We have obtained this book. It has been published in full in the journal Sri Sajjana-toshani, from issue […] to issue 12 of its 18th year.

The householder Vaishnavas of the "Sri" sampradaya, when leaving home, never take ekadanda sannyasa; they all take tridanda sannyasa and are known as Ramanujiya svamis. Some, having studied Srila Prabodhananda's Sri Chaitanya-chandramrita, conclude that he was a "brahma-sannyasi," but in the absence of definite evidence, accepting this raises many difficulties.

[On the following leaves of the edition there is an illustration, "Sri Gauranga in the mood of Sri Radha," with the caption "Radha-bhava-dyuti-suvalitam naumi krishna-svarupam" ("I bow to Krishna in His own form, adorned with the mood and lustre of Radha"), provided by courtesy of […] Bhakti-visharada Mahashaya, and alphabetical indexes of the verses of the "Chaitanya-chandramrita" and the "Navadvipa-shataka."]

Contents

1. Indication of the subject (vastu-nirdesha) — verses 1–7
2. Obeisance (namaskara) — verses 8–12
3. Benediction (ashir-vada) — verses 13–17
4. The glory of Sri Chaitanya's devotees — verses 18–30
5. Censure of those not devoted to Sri Chaitanya — verses 31–45

6. Censure in the form of humility (dainya) — verses 46–56
7. Fidelity to the object of worship — verses 57–79
8. Instruction to the world (loka-shiksha) — verses 80–99
9. The supremacy of Sri Chaitanya — verses 100–109
10. The glory of the descent — verses 110–130
11. The beauty, jubilation, dance and so on of Sri Gaura — verses 131–136
12. Lament (shochaka) — verses 137–143

1. "She who in Vraja was Tungavidya, learned in all the shastras, is now the ascetic Prabodhananda, a Sarasvati in singing of Gaura" (Sri Gaura-ganoddesha-dipika, 163).

2. "[…] Gopala Bhatta, the disciple of Prabodhananda, who is dear to the Lord, compiles the Bhakti-vilasa to please Raghunatha Dasa, and also Rupa and Sanatana" (Sri Hari-bhakti-vilasa, 1st vilasa, verse 2).

Part One

Praise. Obeisance. Benediction. The glory of Sri Chaitanya's devotees (verses 1–28)

Praise (stuti)

Verse 1

स्तुमस्तं चैतन्याकृतिमतिविमर्यादपरमा- द्भुतौदार्यं वर्यं व्रजपतिकुमारं रसयितुम् । विशुद्धस्वप्रेमोन्मदमधुरपीयूषलहरीं प्रदातुं चान्येभ्यः परपदनवद्वीपप्रकटम् ॥ १ ॥ stumastaṁ caitanyākṛtimativimaryādaparamā-dbhutaudāryaṁ varyaṁ vrajapatikumāraṁ rasayitum | viśuddhasvapremonmadamadhurapīyūṣalaharīṁ

pradātuṁ cānyebhyaḥ parapadanavadvīpaprakaṭam || 1 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): vrajapati-kumaram — [to give a taste] to Himself, non-different from the son of the lord of Vraja; vishuddha-sva-prema-unmada-madhura-piyusha-laharim — the sweet nectar waves in the form of joy and other feelings, rising from His own pure prema; rasayitum — to give a taste; anyebhyah ca — and to others; pradatum — to bestow; [yah — He who]; para-pada-navadvipa-prakatam — appeared in the supreme abode called Navadvipa, the seat of the ninefold bhakti; tam — Him; varyam — the best of all avataras; ati-vimaryada-parama-adbhuta-audaryam — the embodiment of boundless and supremely wonderful mercy; caitanya-akritim — the person named Sri Krishna Chaitanya; [vayam — we, the Gaudiya sampradaya]; stumah — praise.

1. We praise the best of all — Him who has the form of Chaitanya, whose generosity is boundless and supremely wonderful; who appeared in the supreme abode of Navadvipa to give the son of the lord of Vraja — Himself — a taste of the nectar waves of His own pure, maddening, sweet love, and to distribute them to others.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Praise of Gaurahari, who, to taste His own sweetness and to distribute prema, accepted the mood and lustre of the ashraya (Radha) and appeared in Navadvipa.

To give Himself, non-different from the son of the lord of Vraja, a taste of the nectar waves of sweet feelings such as joy and the rest, rising from the ocean of His own most pure prema, and to distribute them to others, He appeared in the supreme abode called "Sri Navadvipa," the seat of the ninefold bhakti. That person named Sri Krishna Chaitanya — the best of all avataras, the embodiment of boundless and supremely wonderful mercy — we praise.

Verse 2

धर्मास्पृष्टः सततपरमाविष्ट एवात्यधर्मे
दृष्टिं प्राप्तो न हि खलु सतां सृष्टिषु क्वापि नो सन् ।
यद्दत्तश्रीहरिरससुधास्वादमत्तः प्रनृत्य-त्युच्चैर्गायत्यथ विलुठति स्तौमि तं कञ्चिदीशम् ॥ २ ॥ dharmāspṛṣṭaḥ satataparamāviṣṭa evātyadharme dṛṣṭiṁ prāpto na hi khalu satāṁ sṛṣṭiṣu kvāpi no san | yaddattaśrīharirasasudhāsvādamattaḥ pranṛtya-tyuccairgāyatyatha viluṭhati staumi taṁ kañcidīśam || 2 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [yah janah — the man who]; dharma-asprishtah — untouched by dharma, that is, in whom there is not a drop of piety and the like; ati-adharme — in great sin; satata-parama-avishtah eva — constantly, wholly immersed; na hi khalu satam drishtim praptah — of whom it is known that he has not received the merciful glance of the saints; samsrishtishu kvapi ca no san — and has not stayed in any place connected [with the saints]; [tadrisha janah — even such a man]; yat-datta-shri-hari-rasa-sudha-asvada-mattah [san] — intoxicated by tasting the nectar of the loving rasa bestowed by Him: "Sri" means Srimati Radhika, the source of all beauty, and "Hari" [Sri Krishna]; intoxicated by tasting the nectar of Their prema; pranrityati — dances exceedingly; uccaih gayati — sings aloud; atha viluthati ca — and rolls on the ground; tam kancit isham — that powerful, indescribable person; staumi — I praise.

2. A man never touched by dharma, always sunk in lawlessness, who has never come into the sight of the saints and has never been anywhere among them — intoxicated by the taste of the nectar of Sri-Hari-rasa, the rasa of the love of Radha and Krishna, which this Lord has bestowed, he dances, sings aloud and rolls on the ground. I praise this indescribable Lord.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Praise of Gaurahari, who by the causeless shower of His mercy bestows the intoxication of prema even on one who has abandoned dharma.

One whom dharma has never touched, that is, in whom there is not a trace of piety; who is always sunk in great sin; who has never received the merciful glance of the saints and has never stayed in any holy place established by the righteous and inaccessible to sin — even such a great sinner, intoxicated by the taste of the nectar of the loving rasa of Radha and Krishna which He bestowed, He makes dance, sing aloud and roll on the ground. That powerful, indescribable person I praise.

Verse 3

यन्नाप्तं कर्मनिष्ठैर्न च समधिगतं यत्तपोध्यानयोगै- र्वैराग्यैस्त्यागतत्त्वस्तुतिभिरपि न यत्तर्कितञ्चापि कैश्चित् । गोविन्दप्रेमभाजामपि न च कलितं यद्रहस्यं स्वयं त-न्नाम्नैव प्रादुरासीदवतरति परे यत्र तं नौमि गौरम् ॥ ३ ॥ yannāptaṁ karmaniṣṭhairna ca samadhigataṁ yattapodhyānayogai-rvairāgyaistyāgatattvastutibhirapi na yattarkitañcāpi kaiścit | govindapremabhājāmapi na ca kalitaṁ yadrahasyaṁ svayaṁ tannāmnaiva prādurāsīdavatarati pare yatra taṁ naumi gauram || 3 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): karma-nishthaih janaih — by people attached to karma, that is, [the karmis]; yat — that which; na aptam — is not obtained; tapo-dhyana-yogaih ca — and by austerity, meditation, yoga and the like; yat na samadhigatam — that which no one can realize; kaishcit api [janaih] vairagyaih tyaga-tattva-stutibhih api yat na tarkitam ca — that which no one can perceive through renunciation, abandonment of karma, [knowledge of the truth], [the reciting of hymns of praise] and the like; govinda-prema-bhajam api [jananam] — even of people full of love for Sri Krishna; na ca yat kalitam — that which is not obtained; tat rahasyam — that secret prema; yatra pare avatarati [sati] — when the Supreme, Sri Gauranga, descends; namna eva — through nama-sankirtana alone; svayam pradur asit — manifested of its own accord; tam gauram — that Gaurasundara; naumi — I praise.

3. That secret which those devoted to ritual did not attain, which was not won by austerity, meditation and yoga, which no one even guessed at in spite of renunciation, abandonment of the world, knowledge of the truth and hymns of praise, which even those who love Govinda did not know — that revealed itself of its own accord through the Holy Name alone, when the Supreme descended. I bow to that Gaura.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Praise of Gaurahari, the giver of the secret prema unattainable even by the devotees of Krishna.

That which people devoted to ritual action (karma) cannot obtain; that which no one can realize by the power of austerity, meditation and the eightfold yoga; that which no one is able to perceive even through renunciation, abandonment of works, knowledge of the truth, the reciting of hymns of praise and the like; more than that, that which is unattainable even by devotees dedicated to the loving service of Sri Govinda (that is, unattainable even by the devotees of the Nimbarka sampradaya, who are dedicated to loving service in the svakiya relationship and lack skill in understanding parakiya-rasa) — that secret prema, upon His appearance, revealed itself of its own accord through nama-kirtana alone. That Gaurasundara I praise.

Verse 4

दृष्टः स्पृष्टः कीर्तितः संस्मृतो वा
दूरस्थैरप्यानतो वादृतो वा । प्रेम्णः सारं दातुमीशो य एकः श्रीचैतन्यं नौमि देवं दयालुम् ॥ ४ ॥ dṛṣṭaḥ spṛṣṭaḥ kīrtitaḥ saṁsmṛto vā dūrasthairapyānato vādṛto vā | premṇaḥ sāraṁ dātumīśo ya ekaḥ

śrīcaitanyaṁ naumi devaṁ dayālum || 4 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yah — He who; drishtah sprishtah kirtitah [san] — becoming the object of sight, touch and glorification; dura-sthaih api [janaih] samsmritah anatah adritah va — or becoming the object of remembrance, obeisance and great honour of people who are far away; premnah saram datum ekah ishah — alone is able to give the essence of prema; [tam] dayalum — that merciful; devam shri-caitanyam — Sri Chaitanyadeva; naumi — I praise.

4. I bow to the merciful Lord, Sri Chaitanya, who alone is able to give the essence of love to anyone who has seen Him, touched Him, glorified Him or remembered Him, or even from afar has bowed to Him or honoured Him.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Praise of Sri Chaitanya, who bestows the highest prema merely by being seen, touched and so on.

He who, becoming the object of sight, touch or glorification, or the object of remembrance, obeisance or honour even of those who are far away, alone is able to give the essence of prema (the rasa of separation, vipralambha) — that merciful Lord, Sri Chaitanya, I praise.

Verse 5

कैवल्यं नरकायते त्रिदशपूराकाशपुष्पायते
दुर्दान्तेन्द्रियकालसर्पपटली प्रोत्खातदंष्ट्रायते ।
विश्वं पूर्णसुखायते विधिमहेन्द्रादिश्च कीटायते यत्कारुण्यकटाक्षवैभववतां तं गौरमेव स्तुमः ॥ ५ ॥

kaivalyaṁ narakāyate tridaśapūrākāśapuṣpāyate
durdāntendriyakālasarpapaṭalī protkhātadaṁṣṭrāyate | viśvaṁ pūrṇasukhāyate vidhimahendrādiśca kīṭāyate

yatkāruṇyakaṭākṣavaibhavavatāṁ taṁ gaurameva stumaḥ || 5 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yat-karunya-kataksha-vaibhavavatam — for those whose wealth is His mercy, that is, His merciful glance; kaivalyam — liberation in the form of merging into Ishvara; narakayate — seems like hell; tridasha-puh — the city of the tridashas: "tridasha" is three times ten plus three, that is, the number thirty-three; among [the gods] the chief are the twelve Adityas, the eleven Rudras, the eight Vasus and the two Ashvini-kumaras — these thirty-three gods are the tridashas, and their city is heaven (svarga); akasha-pushpayate — seems as unreal as a flower in the sky; durdanta-indriya-kala-sarpa-patali — the host of senses, which are like serpents: "durdanta" — untamable, "kala" — extremely wrathful; protkhata-damshtrayate — behaves like snakes whose poison fangs have been pulled out; vishvam purna-sukhayate — the universe is felt as an abode of complete happiness, that is, everywhere the presence of Bhagavan is seen; vidhi-mahendra-adih ca — and Brahma, Indra and the other gods; kitayate — seem like worms, that is, the positions of the lordship of Brahma, the lordship of Indra and the rest seem as insignificant as that of a worm; tam — that; gauram eva — Gaurasundara alone; [vayam — we]; stumah — praise.

5. For those who possess the wealth of His merciful glance, kaivalya (liberation) becomes like hell, the city of the gods like a flower in the sky, the pack of untamed senses — those serpents of death — like snakes whose fangs have been pulled out; the whole world becomes full of happiness, and Brahma, Indra and the rest become like worms. Gaura alone we praise.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Praise of Gaurahari, the master of the devotees who possess incomparable wealth and scornfully reject liberation and the like.

For Gaura's devotees, rich with the treasure of Gaurasundara's merciful glance, kaivalya, or merging into Ishvara, attainable by yogis, is like hell; Amarapuri (the city of the gods) — the desired or already obtained fruit of those who perform their dharma with selfish desires — is as unreal as a flower in the sky; the hosts of untamed senses, like black serpents of death, are like snakes whose poison fangs have been pulled out; the whole world appears as an abode of complete happiness, that is, […]; and the position of Brahma, the lord of the gods and others appears as the position of a worm. That Sri Gaurasundara we praise.

Verse 6

माद्यन्तः परिपीय यस्य चरणाम्भोजस्रवत्प्रोज्ज्वल-प्रेमानन्दमयामृताद्भुतरसान् सर्वे सुपर्वेडिताः ।
ब्रह्मादींश्च हसन्ति नातिबहु मन्यन्ते महावैष्णवान्
धिक्कुर्वन्ति च ब्रह्मयोगविदुषस्तं गौरचन्द्रं नुमः ॥ ६ ॥ mādyantaḥ paripīya yasya caraṇāmbhojasravatprojjvalapremānandamayāmṛtādbhutarasān sarve suparveḍitāḥ | brahmādīṁśca hasanti nātibahu manyante mahāvaiṣṇavān

dhikkurvanti ca brahmayogaviduṣastaṁ gauracandraṁ numaḥ || 6 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): suparva-iditah — honoured even by the gods; sarve — all, that is, all of Gaura's devotees; yasya — whose, that is, Gaurachandra's; carana-ambhoja-sravat-projjvala-prema-ananda-maya-amrita-adbhuta-rasan — the wondrous nectar rasa, full of prema and bliss, supremely radiant, flowing from His lotus feet; paripiya — having drunk; madyantah [santah] — intoxicated by drinking; brahma-adin — at Brahma and the others; hasanti — laugh; maha-vaishnavan ca — and the great Vaishnavas, the mahabhagavatas, the devotees of Vishnu; atibahu na manyante — do not honour very much; brahma-yoga-vidushah — the knowers of Brahman, who worship on the principle "I am He" (ahamgraha-upasaka), and the yogis of the eightfold yoga; dhik kurvanti — censure; tam gaurachandram — that Gaurachandra; [vayam — we]; stumah — praise.

6. His devotees, worshipped even by the gods, having drunk and become intoxicated with the wondrous nectar juices of radiant love and bliss that flow from His lotus feet, laugh at Brahma and the others, do not think much even of great Vaishnavas, and censure the knowers of Brahman and of yoga. We praise that Gaurachandra.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Praise of Gaurahari, the master of the devotees who laugh at the good fortune of Brahma and the others and censure the endeavours of the knowers of undifferentiated knowledge and of the yogis.

Gaura's devotees, honoured by all the gods, having drunk to the full the wondrous nectar rasa full of supremely radiant prema and bliss which flows from His lotus feet, absorbed in the madness of love, look even at Brahma and the others and lament: "Alas, alas! They are deprived of the honey of Gaurasundara's lotus feet!"; they do not greatly honour even great Vaishnavas who lack devotion to Gaura, and they censure the knowers of Brahman and the followers of the eightfold yoga for their [futile endeavours]. That Sri Gaurasundara we praise.

Verse 7

रक्षोदैत्यकुलं हतं कियदिदं योगादिवर्त्मक्रिया- मार्गो वा प्रकटीकृतः कियदिदं सृष्ट्यादिकं वा कियत् ।
मेदिन्युद्धरणादिकं कियदिदं प्रेमोज्ज्वलाया महा- भक्तेर्वर्त्मकरीं परं भगवतश्चैतन्यमूर्तिं स्तुमः ॥ ७ ॥ rakṣodaityakulaṁ hataṁ kiyadidaṁ yogādivartmakriyā-mārgo vā prakaṭīkṛtaḥ kiyadidaṁ sṛṣṭyādikaṁ vā kiyat | medinyuddharaṇādikaṁ kiyadidaṁ premojjvalāyā mahā-bhaktervartmakarīṁ paraṁ bhagavataścaitanyamūrtiṁ stumaḥ || 7 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [rama-nrisimha-adibhih — by the avataras Rama, Nrisimha and the others]; rakshah-daitya-kulam — the race of Rakshasas and Daityas; hatam — was destroyed; idam kiyat — what is so important in this deed?; [kapiladeva-adibhih — by Kapiladeva and the others]; yoga-adi-vartma-kriya-margah — the path of action on the ways of yoga and the like; va prakatikritah — was revealed; idam kiyat — what is so great in this?; [guna-avatara-brahma-adina kritam — done by the guna-avataras, Brahma and the others]; srishti-adikam — the deeds of creation, maintenance, destruction and so on; va kiyat — what is so excellent in this too?; [shri-varaha-adina kritam — done by Sri Varaha and other avataras]; medini-uddharana-adikam — the lifting of the earth and other deeds; idam kiyat — what is there in this either?; [vayam tu — we, however]; bhagavatah — to Bhagavan; prema-ujjvalayah maha-bhakteh — of the highest (para) bhakti, radiant with prema; vartma-karim — showing the path; caitanya-murtim — the form of Chaitanya; param stumah — praise exclusively.

7. What is so great in the destruction of the race of Rakshasas and Daityas? What is so great in revealing the path of yoga and other practices? What is so great in the creation of the world and the rest, in the rescue of the earth and so on? We praise only the form of Chaitanya, who has revealed the path of the highest bhakti to Bhagavan, radiant with prema.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Praise of Sri Chaitanya, who revealed the elevated, radiant bhakti never given before.

Is the destruction of the race of Rakshasas and the race of Daityas in the avataras Rama, Nrisimha and the others such a beneficial and great deed? Is the showing of the path of action of Sankhya, yoga and so on in the avataras Kapila and the others so important? How great is the significance of the pastimes of creation, maintenance and destruction of the guna-avataras, Brahma and the others? Is the feat of rescuing the earth sunk in the waters of the deluge in the avatara Varaha and the others so beneficial? (We do not attach great importance to all this: beside Gaurasundara's gift of prema it is all insignificant.) We praise the form of Sri Chaitanya, the best of all avataras, who shows the path of the highest bhakti to the Lord, radiant with prema.

Obeisance (namaskara)

Verse 8

नमश्चैतन्यचन्द्राय कोटिचन्द्राननत्विषे ।
प्रेमानन्दाब्धिचन्द्राय चारुचन्द्रांशुहासिने ॥ ८ ॥ namaścaitanyacandrāya koṭicandrānanatviṣe |

premānandābdhicandrāya cārucandrāṁśuhāsine || 8 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): koti-candra-anana-tvishe — to Him whose radiance of face is more beautiful even than millions of moons; prema-ananda-abdhi-candraya — to Him who is like the moon in the ocean of bliss born of prema; caru-candra-amshu-hasine — to Him whose smile is like beautiful moonbeams; caitanya-candraya — to Chaitanya-chandra; namah — obeisance.

8. Obeisance to Chaitanya-chandra, the Moon, whose face shines like millions of moons — the moon over the ocean of love and bliss, whose smile is like beautiful moonbeams.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Obeisance to Gaurachandra, the moon over the ocean of prema and bliss.

To Him whose radiance of face is more beautiful than the splendour of millions upon millions of full moons, who is the moon over the ocean of prema and bliss, whose sweet smile on His lotus face is more charming than the moonbeams — to that Chaitanya-chandra we offer obeisance.

Verse 9

यस्यैव पादाम्बुजभक्तिलभ्यः
प्रेमाभिधानः परमः पुमर्थः ।
तस्मै जगन्मङ्गलमङ्गलाय चैतन्यचन्द्राय नमो नमस्ते ॥ ९ ॥

yasyaiva pādāmbujabhaktilabhyaḥ
premābhidhānaḥ paramaḥ pumarthaḥ | tasmai jaganmaṅgalamaṅgalāya
caitanyacandrāya namo namaste || 9 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): prema-abhidhanah paramah puma-arthah — the highest goal of man, called prema; yasya eva — only by whose; pada-ambuja-bhakti-labhyah — is attainable by devotion to the lotus feet; [bhavati — is]; tasmai — to Him; jagat-mangala-mangalaya — to Him who is the good of the good of the world: the good of the world is the worship (bhajana) of Sri Krishna, and still more auspicious is the supreme prema obtained from Him; that is, to Him who is the good of the good of the world; caitanya-candraya te — to You, Chaitanya-chandra; namah namah — obeisance again and again.

9. By devotion to His lotus feet alone is attained the highest goal of man, called love (prema). To Him, the good of all the good of the world, to Chaitanya-chandra — obeisance, again obeisance!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Obeisance to Chaitanya-chandra, the good of all the good of the world.

Only from exclusive devotion to Your lotus feet is the highest goal of man — prema — obtained. You are that Chaitanya-chandra, the good even of the good of the world; to You we bow again and again.

Verse 10

उच्चैरास्फालयन्तं करचरणमहो हेमदण्डप्रकाण्डौ
बाहू प्रोद्धृत्य सत्ताण्डवतरलतनुं पुण्डरीकायताक्षम् ।
विश्वस्यामङ्गलघ्नं किमपि हरिहरीत्युन्मदानन्दनादै- र्वन्दे तं देवचूडामणिमतुलरसाविष्टचैतन्यचन्द्रम् ॥ १० ॥ uccairāsphālayantaṁ karacaraṇamaho hemadaṇḍaprakāṇḍau

bāhū proddhṛtya sattāṇḍavataralatanuṁ puṇḍarīkāyatākṣam | viśvasyāmaṅgalaghnaṁ kimapi hariharītyunmadānandanādairvande taṁ devacūḍāmaṇimatularasāviṣṭacaitanyacandram || 10 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): hema-danda-prakandau bahu — huge arms like golden pillars; proddhritya — raising; aho — ah!; kara-caranam — hands and feet; uccaih asphalayantam — Him who, absorbed in the dance, swings them high; sat-tandava-tarala-tanum — Him whose body has become mobile through a beautiful vigorous dance: "sat" — sweet, "tandavena" — by a vigorous dance, "tarala" — the body has become mobile; that is, Him whose body sways in a beautiful vigorous dance; pundarika-ayata-aksham — Him whose eyes are wide as lotuses; kimapi hari hari iti unmada-ananda-nadaih — with indescribable sounds of the bliss of prema arising from the words "Hari, Hari"; vishvasya — of the universe; amangala-ghnam — Him who destroys the inauspicious; deva-cudamanim — the crown-ornament of the gods; tam — that; atula-rasa-avishta-caitanya-candram — Chaitanya-chandra, absorbed in incomparable rasa; [aham — I]; vande — worship.

10. He vigorously swings His arms and legs — oh wonder! — raising His arms, which are like pillars of gold; His body sways in a beautiful dance, His eyes are long like lotuses; with indescribable cries of "Hari! Hari!", full of ecstatic bliss, He destroys all that is inauspicious in the universe. I bow to that Chaitanya-chandra, the crest-jewel of the gods, absorbed in incomparable rasa.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Glorification of Gaurahari, who dances wildly to the loud nama-kirtana.

Oh! He who in the mood of Radha is immersed in the most exalted secret rasa directed towards Krishna; who, absorbed in the dance, throws up His huge arms, like golden pillars, and swings His arms and legs this way and that; whose beautiful body sways in the wondrous tandava dance; who with the cries "Hari! Hari!" — indescribable sounds of loving bliss, full of feelings such as joy and pride — destroys everything inauspicious in the whole world — that Sri Chaitanya-chandra with eyes as wide as lotus petals, the crown of all avataras, I glorify.

Verse 11

आनन्दलीलामयविग्रहाय
हेमाभदिव्यच्छविसुन्दराय ।
तस्मै महाप्रेमरसप्रदाय चैतन्यचन्द्राय नमो नमस्ते ॥ ११ ॥

ānandalīlāmayavigrahāya
hemābhadivyacchavisundarāya | tasmai mahāpremarasapradāya
caitanyacandrāya namo namaste || 11 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ananda-lila-maya-vigrahaya — to Him whose form is made of pastimes of bliss; hema-abha-divya-cchavi-sundaraya — beautiful with a divine radiance like gold; maha-prema-rasa-pradaya — the giver of the rasa of the most exalted radiant prema, never given before; tasmai caitanya-candraya te — to Him, to You, Chaitanya-chandra; namo namah — obeisance again and again.

11. To Him whose body is made of pastimes of bliss, who is beautiful with a golden divine lustre, who bestows the rasa of great love — to Chaitanya-chandra — obeisance, again obeisance!

Gaudiya-bhashya. The name, form, qualities and pastimes of Gauranga; obeisance to Gauranga, who shines like molten gold, the embodiment of separation (vipralambha), the giver of the secret prema.

To that Sri Chaitanya-chandra — the form made of the rasa of pastimes of bliss, beautiful with a radiance like gold, the giver of the rasa of the elevated, radiant prema never given before — I bow again and again.

Verse 12

प्रवाहैरश्रूणां नवजलदकोटी इव दृशौ
दधानं प्रेमर्द्ध्या परमपदकोटीप्रहसनम् ।
वमन्तं माधुर्यैरमृतनिधिकोटीरिव तनु- च्छटाभिस्तं वन्दे हरिमहह सन्न्यासकपटम् ॥ १२ ॥

pravāhairaśrūṇāṁ navajaladakoṭī iva dṛśau dadhānaṁ premarddhyā paramapadakoṭīprahasanam | vamantaṁ mādhuryairamṛtanidhikoṭīriva tanucchaṭābhistaṁ vande harimahaha sannyāsakapaṭam || 12 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ahaha — oh!; ashrunam pravahaih — with streams of tears; nava-jalada-koti iva drishau dadhanam — Him whose eyes are like millions of new clouds; prema-ardhya — by the wealth of prema; parama-pada-koti-prahasanam — Him who laughs at millions of supreme abodes, that is, at millions of Vaikunthas; tanu-cchatabhih madhuryaih va — by the radiance of His body, or by the sweetness of the beauty and charm of His form; amrita-nidhi-kotih iva vamantam — Him who seems to pour forth millions of oceans of nectar; tam sannyasa-kapatam — Him who under a pretext accepted the dress of a sannyasi, that is, enacts the role of a sannyasi in order to spread the example of an acharya; harim — Gaurahari; vande — I worship.

12. With streams of tears His eyes are like millions of new rain-clouds; by the wealth of His love He laughs at millions of supreme abodes; by the lustre of His body He seems to pour forth the sweetness of millions of oceans of nectar. I bow to that Hari, who has assumed the guise of a sannyasi.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Glorification of Gaurahari, who [laughs at] Vaikuntha and enacts the pastime of sannyasa.

Oh! He whose eyes, in streams of tears, are like millions of new rain clouds; whose wealth of prema makes even millions of supreme abodes, that is, Vaikunthas, appear insignificant, like objects of ridicule; whose bodily beauty and sweetness seem to pour forth millions upon millions of oceans of nectar; who (so that people, seeing Him in the dress of a sannyasi and bowing to Him, might obtain bhakti to Krishna by the fruit of unknown piety, ajnata-sukriti) under a pretext accepted the dress of a sannyasi — that Sri Gaurahari I glorify.

Benediction (ashir-vada)

Verse 13

सिंहस्कन्धं मधुरमधुरस्मेरगण्डस्थलान्तं
दुर्विज्ञेयोज्ज्वलरसमयाश्चर्यनानाविकारम् ।

बिभ्रत्कान्तिं विकचकनकाम्भोजगर्भाभिरामा- मेकीभूतं वपुरवतु वो राधया माधवस्य ॥ १३ ॥ siṁhaskandhaṁ madhuramadhurasmeraganḍasthalāntaṁ

durvijñeyojjvalarasamayāścaryanānāvikāram | bibhratkāntiṁ vikacakanakāmbhojagarbhābhirāmā-mekībhūtaṁ vapuravatu vo rādhayā mādhavasya || 13 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): simha-skandham — Him whose shoulders are raised like a lion's; madhura-madhura-smera-ganda-sthala-antam — Him at the edges of whose cheeks a sweet, sweet smile blossoms; durvijneya-ujjvala-rasa-maya-ashcarya-nana-vikaram — "durvijneya" — hard to comprehend even for the worshippers of Bhagavan, "ujjvala-rasamaya" — full of shringara-rasa, "ashcarya-nana-vikaram" — possessing wondrous transformations of feeling, such as the form of a tortoise, caused by tasting rasa; that is, possessing most wondrous transformations, such as the form of a tortoise, caused by tasting the most exalted ujjvala-rasa, hard to comprehend even for the worshippers of Bhagavan; vikaca-kanaka-ambhoja-garbha-abhiramam kantim — a lustre as charming as the filaments of a full-blown golden lotus; [yah — He who]; bibhrat — bears; radhayah madhavasya ca — of Radha and Madhava; ekibhutam vapuh — the united body; vah — you; avatu — may protect.

13. With the shoulders of a lion, with cheeks smiling ever so sweetly, with many wondrous transformations born of the inconceivable radiant rasa, with a beauty as charming as the heart of a blossoming golden lotus — may the body of Madhava, become one with Radha, protect you.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurasundara — the body in which Radha and Krishna are united.

He whose neck is raised like the neck of a lion; whose cheeks are lit at their edges by the sweetest gentle smile; who (incomprehensibly even to the bhagavatas who worship Sri Krishna, the embodiment of the rasa of union, sambhoga) from the excess of the rasa of separation (vipralambha) displays wondrous transformations of feeling, such as the form of a tortoise; whose bodily lustre is more charming than the filaments of a full-blown golden lotus — may that Sri Gaurasundara, the body in which Radha and Madhava are united, protect you.

Verse 13a

वन्दे श्रीकृष्णचैतन्यं गौरं कृष्णमपि स्वयम् । यो राधाभावसंलुब्धः स्वभावं नितरां जहौ ॥

vande śrīkṛṣṇacaitanyaṁ gauraṁ kṛṣṇamapi svayam |
yo rādhābhāvasaṁlubdhaḥ svabhāvaṁ nitarāṁ jahau ||

Word for word: vande — I bow to; shri-krishna-caitanyam — Sri Krishna Chaitanya; gauram — Gaura, the golden; krishnam — Krishna; api — though; svayam — Himself; yah — who; radha-bhava-samlubdhah — longing for the moods of Radha; svabhavam — His own nature; nitaram — entirely; jahau — gave up.

(I bow to Sri Krishna Chaitanya, Gaura, who is Krishna Himself, but who, longing for the moods of Radha, entirely gave up His own nature.)[1]

Verse 14

दृष्ट्वा माद्यति नूतनाम्बुदचयं संवीक्ष्य बर्हं भवे- दत्यन्तं विकलो विलोक्य वलितां गुञ्जावलीं वेपते ।

दृष्टे श्यामकिशोरकेऽपि चकितं धत्ते चमत्कारिता- मित्थं गौरतनुः प्रचारितनिजप्रेमा हरिः पातु वः ॥ १४ ॥ dṛṣṭvā mādyati nūtanāmbudacayaṁ saṁvīkṣya barhaṁ bhavedatyantaṁ vikalo vilokya valitāṁ guñjāvalīṁ vepate | dṛṣṭe śyāmakiśorake'pi cakitaṁ dhatte camatkāritāmitthaṁ gauratanuḥ pracāritanijapremā hariḥ pātu vaḥ || 14 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [yah — He who]; nutana-ambuda-cayam — a mass of new clouds; drishtva — seeing; madyati — becomes intoxicated; [yah ca — and who]; barham — a peacock feather; samvikshya — seeing; atyantam vikalah bhavet — becomes extremely agitated; valitam — coiled in a ring like a bracelet; gunja-avalim — a string of gunja berries; vilokya — seeing; vepate — trembles; shyama-kishorake drishte api — even on seeing a dark youth; cakitam — starting; camatkaritam — wondrousness; dhatte — assumes; ittham — thus; pracarita-nija-prema — He who has spread His own prema; gaura-tanuh harih — Gauranga Hari; vah — you; patu — may protect.

14. Seeing a mass of new clouds, He becomes intoxicated; seeing a peacock feather, He becomes utterly overwhelmed; at the sight of a string of gunja berries, He trembles; and when He sees a dark youth, He is filled with wonder and awe. Thus Hari in the form of Gaura spreads His own love. May He protect you!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Krishna, imbued with the mood of Radha, who preaches the longing to seek Krishna.

He who, at the sight of a garland of new clouds that awaken the remembrance of Krishna, becomes frenzied; who at the sight of a peacock feather becomes extremely agitated; whose body trembles at the sight of a string of gunja berries coiled like a bracelet; who at the sight of a dark youth starts and assumes a wondrously beautiful appearance, and who has thus spread His own prema everywhere — may that Gauranga-Hari protect you.

Verse 15

कृपासिन्धुः सन्ध्यारुणरुचिविचित्राम्बरधरो- ज्ज्वलः पूर्णः प्रेमामृतमयमहाज्योतिरमलः ।
शचीगर्भक्षीराम्बुधिभव उदाराद्भुतकलः कलानाथः श्रीमानुदयतु तव स्वान्तनभसि ॥ १५ ॥ kṛpāsindhuḥ sandhyāruṇarucivicitrāmbaradharo-jjvalaḥ pūrṇaḥ premāmṛtamayamahājyotiramalaḥ | śacīgarbhakṣīrāmbudhibhava udārādbhutakalaḥ

kalānāthaḥ śrīmānudayatu tava svāntanabhasi || 15 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kripa-sindhuh — the ocean of mercy; sandhya-aruna-ruci-vicitra-ambara-dharah — wearing wondrous garments of a red colour, like the sun at evening twilight; ujjvalah purnah prema-amrita-maya-maha-jyotih — radiant, undivided, full of the nectar of prema, possessing the lustre of the sattvika and other bhavas; amalah — pure; shaci-garbha-kshira-ambudhi-bhavah — born from the milk ocean, the womb of Shachi; udara-adbhuta-kalah — possessing the beautiful and wondrous sixty-four arts of rasa, beginning with refined skill (vaidagdhya); shriman — the body united with Srimati Radhika, who is full of supreme beauty, or: full of supreme beauty; kalanathah — the moon, or in another sense: Svayam Bhagavan, the source even of the partial avataras such as Matsya; tava — in your (here: in your, plural); svanta-nabhasi — in the sky of the heart; udayatu — may He rise.

15. The ocean of mercy, in a wondrous garment the colour of the red dawn, radiant and full — a pure great light made of the nectar of love — born in the milk ocean of Shachi's womb — the beautiful lord of the digits of the moon, with generous and wondrous rays — may He rise in the sky of your heart!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurachandra, who appeared from the ocean of Shachi's womb.

He who is the ocean of mercy, who wears a lovely garment of a red colour like [the sun] at evening twilight — that radiant, complete one, made of the nectar of prema, illumined by the lustre of the sattvika-bhavas and the rest, spotless, charming and endowed with the wondrous sixty-four arts of rasa, beginning with vaidagdhya (refinement), born from the milk ocean of Shachi's womb, the most beautiful Sri Chaitanya-chandra — may He rise in the sky of your hearts.

Verse 16

बध्नन् प्रेमभरप्रकम्पितकरो ग्रन्थीन् कटीडोरकैः
सङ्ख्यातुं निजलोकमङ्गलहरेकृष्णेति नाम्नां जपन् ।
अश्रुस्नातमुखः स्वमेव हि जगन्नाथं दिदृक्षुर्गता- यातैर्गौरतनुर्विलोचनमुदं तन्वन् हरिः पातु वः ॥ १६ ॥ badhnan premabharaprakampitakaro granthīn kaṭīḍorakaiḥ saṅkhyātuṁ nijalokamaṅgalaharekṛṣṇeti nāmnāṁ japan | aśrusnātamukhaḥ svameva hi jagannāthaṁ didṛkṣurgatāyātairgauratanurvilocanamudaṁ tanvan hariḥ pātu vaḥ || 16 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): nija-loka-mangala-hare-krishna-iti namnam — of His own names "Hare Krishna," which are the good of the world; sankhyatum — to keep count of the repetitions; kati-dorakaih — with the waist-cord; granthin — knots; badhnan — tying; japan [ca] — and chanting; prema-bhara-prakampita-karah — He whose hands tremble from the excess of prema; ashru-snata-mukhah — His face bathed in tears of prema; svam eva hi jagannatham — Jagannatha, non-different from Himself; didrikshuh — wishing to see; gata-ayataih — by going to and fro; vilocana-mudam — the joy of the eyes; tanvan — spreading; gaura-tanuh harih — Gauranga Sri Hari; vah — you; patu — may protect.

16. To count His own names, "Hare Krishna," the blessing of the whole world, He chants them and ties knots in the cord at His waist with a hand that trembles from the excess of love; His face is bathed in tears; He walks to and fro, longing to see Himself — Jagannatha.[2] May Hari in the form of Gaura, the delight of the eyes, protect you!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurahari, who loudly chants the maha-mantra.

He who, chanting the maha-mantra Hare Krishna, which brings blessing to the whole world, and tying knots on His waist-cord to keep count of the names — while His hands tremble [from the excess of prema] — who, longing to see Sri Jagannathadeva, non-different from Himself, His face bathed in tears, walks to and fro and thus increases the joy of people's eyes — may that Gauranga, Sri Hari, protect you.

Verse 17

अन्तर्ध्वान्तचयं समस्तजगतामुन्मूलयन्ती हठात्
प्रेमानन्दरसाम्बुधिं निरवधि प्रोद्वेलयन्ती बलात् । विश्वं शीतलयन्त्यतीव विकलं तापत्रयेणानिशं

युष्माकं हृदये चकास्तु सततं चैतन्यचन्द्रच्छटा ॥ १७ ॥

antardhvāntacayaṁ samastajagatāmunmūlayantī haṭhāt premānandarasāmbudhiṁ niravadhi prodvelayantī balāt | viśvaṁ śītalayantyatīva vikalaṁ tāpatrayeṇāniśaṁ
yuṣmākaṁ hṛdaye cakāstu satataṁ caitanyacandracchaṭā || 17 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): samasta-jagatam — of the whole world; antar-dhvanta-cayam — the mass of the darkness of ignorance abiding in the heart; hathat — suddenly; unmulayanti — uprooting; balat — by force; prema-ananda-rasa-ambudhim — the ocean of the rasa of the bliss of prema; niravadhi — incessantly; prodvelayanti — increasing exceedingly; tapa-trayena — by the three miseries; anisham — incessantly; vikalam — overwhelmed; vishvam — the universe; ativa — exceedingly; shitalayanti — refreshing by sprinkling the nectar of prema; caitanya-candra-cchata — the bodily radiance of Chaitanya-chandra; yushmakam — your; hridaye — in the hearts; satatam — always; cakastu — may it shine.

17. It suddenly uproots the darkness accumulated within all the worlds, forcefully makes the ocean of the rasa of love and bliss overflow without end, and cools the universe, tormented day and night by the threefold miseries — may the radiance of Chaitanya-chandra ever shine in your hearts![3]

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurachandra, who destroys the inner darkness, makes the ocean of His prema swell and refreshes the universe.

That moonlight of the body of Sri Chaitanya-chandra which suddenly uproots the masses of the darkness of ignorance in the hearts of all living beings; which with mighty force incessantly makes the ocean of the rasa of prema and bliss swell and increase; which, sprinkling the nectar of prema, deeply refreshes the world of living beings, incessantly tormented by the three kinds of misery — may it ever shine in your hearts.

Gaudiya-bhashya (Bengali ed., No. 75 — the verse repeated). The bodily radiance of Gaurachandra, which makes the ocean of love swell and destroys impurity

That moonlight of the Chaitanya-moon which suddenly uproots the masses of the darkness of ignorance in the hearts of living beings, incessantly makes the ocean of the rasa of the bliss of love swell by force, and every moment cools the world scorched by the three kinds of misery — adhyatmika and the rest — may that radiance of the Chaitanya-moon shine even for a moment in our hearts.

The glory of Sri Chaitanya's devotees

Verse 18

भ्रान्तं यत्र मुनीश्वरैरपि पुरा यस्मिन् क्षमामण्डले
कस्यापि प्रविवेश नैव धिषणा यद्वेद नो वा शुकः ।
यन्न क्वापि कृपामयेन च निजेऽप्युद्घाटितं शौरिणा तस्मिन्नुज्ज्वलभक्तिवर्त्मनि सुखं खेलन्ति गौरप्रियाः ॥ १८ ॥ bhrāntaṁ yatra munīśvarairapi purā yasmin kṣamāmaṇḍale kasyāpi praviveśa naiva dhiṣaṇā yadveda no vā śukaḥ | yanna kvāpi kṛpāmayena ca nije'pyudghāṭitaṁ śauriṇā tasminnujjvalabhaktivartmani sukhaṁ khelanti gaurapriyāḥ || 18 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): pura — in ancient times; muni-ishvaraih api — even by the lords of sages; yatra [bhakti-marge] — on which [path of bhakti]; bhrantam — went astray;

kshama-mandale — on the whole earth; kasyapi — no one's; dhishana — intelligence; yasmin — into which [path of bhakti]; na pravivesha eva — did not enter at all; shukah va — even Shuka; yat — which [path]; na veda — did not know; kripamayena shaurina — by the merciful Sri Krishna; kvapi — ever; nije api jane — even to His own devotees; na udghatitam — was not revealed; gaura-priyah — the devotees dear to Gaura; tasmin ujjvala-bhakti-vartmani — on that radiant path of bhakti; sukham khelanti — joyfully play.

18. On that path where once even the lords of sages went astray, into which no one's mind on the whole earth has penetrated, which even Shuka did not know, which the merciful Shauri (Krishna) never revealed anywhere even to His own intimates — on that radiant path of bhakti the beloved devotees of Gaura joyfully play.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaura's devotees, who play in the rasa of the prema never given before.

On that path of the bhakti of sweet rasa on which in ancient times even the best of sages and rishis went astray, into which no one's intelligence in the whole circle of the earth could penetrate, of which even Shukadeva did not know — more than that, which the all-merciful Sri Krishna Himself did not reveal even to His own devotees — on that elevated, radiant path of bhakti the dear devotees of Sri Gaura now play in supreme bliss.

Verse 19

तावद्ब्रह्मकथा विमुक्तिपदवी तावन्न तिक्तीभवे- त्तावच्चापि विशृङ्खलत्वमयते नो लोकवेदस्थितिः । तावच्छास्त्रविदां मिथः कलकलो नानाबहिर्वर्त्मसु श्रीचैतन्यपदाम्बुजप्रियजनो यावन्न दृग्गोचरः ॥ १९ ॥

tāvadbrahmakathā vimuktipadavī tāvanna tiktībhavettāvaccāpi viśṛṅkhalatvamayate no lokavedasthitiḥ | tāvacchāstravidāṁ mithaḥ kalakalo nānābahirvartmasu
śrīcaitanyapadāmbujapriyajano yāvanna dṛggocaraḥ || 19 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yavat — as long as; shri-caitanya-pada-ambuja-priya-janah — one absorbed in drinking the nectar of Sri Chaitanya's lotus feet, that is, an intimate of Gaura; na drik-gocarah [bhavet] — does not become visible; tavat — only so long; brahma-katha — discussion of the impersonal Brahman; tavat — so long; vimukti-padavi — the path of liberation; na tiktibhavet — does not seem bitter; tavat ca — and so long; loka-veda-sthitih api — even the order of worldly and Vedic duties; no vishrinkhalatvam ayate — does not fall into disorder, that is, the respective boundaries are not transgressed; in other words, having learned, in association with Gaura's people, of the supremely wondrous bhakti radiant with prema, a person gives up the mind fixed in the world and in the Vedas; tavat eva — only so long, that is, only until one sees the beauty of the radiance of the toenails of the lotus feet of Gaura's people; nana-bahih-vartmasu — about the many false external paths born of mental speculation; shastra-vidam — of the knowers of the shastras, that is, of those who consider themselves panditas; mithah — among themselves; kalakalah [bhavet] — there are disputes and quarrels.

19. Only so long does talk of Brahman, the path of liberation, not taste bitter; only so long does adherence to the order of the world and the Vedas not slacken; only so long does the noisy dispute of the learned about the many external paths go on — as long as one has not seen one who loves the lotus feet of Sri Chaitanya.

Gaudiya-bhashya. As long as there has been no association with a devotee of Gaura, the soul retains a taste for Brahman, liberation and speculative argument.

As long as an intimate associate of Sri Chaitanya — a bee drinking the nectar of His lotus feet — has not come within one's sight, only so long do discussions of the impersonal Brahman and the paths of liberation, such as merging into Ishvara, not taste bitter; only so long do worldly and Vedic norms not fall into disorder, that is, "the mind fixed in the world and in the Vedas" is not given up; only so long are disputes and quarrels about the various paths turned away from the Lord inevitable, that is, […].

Verse 20

क्व तावद्वैराग्यं क्व च विषयवार्तासु नरके- ष्विवोद्वेगः क्वासौ विनयभरमापूर्यलहरी । क्व तावत्तेजोऽलौकिकमथ महाभक्तिपदवी क्व सा वा सम्भाव्या यदवकलितं गौरगतिषु ॥ २० ॥

kva tāvadvairāgyaṁ kva ca viṣayavārtāsu narake-ṣvivodvegaḥ kvāsau vinayabharamāpūryalaharī |
kva tāvattejo'laukikamatha mahābhaktipadavī
kva sā vā sambhāvyā yadavakalitaṁ gauragatiṣu || 20 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): gaura-gatishu — among those whose "gati," that is, refuge or goal, is Gaurahari; yat avakalitam — that [renunciation and the rest] which is seen, that is, felt; tavat vairagyam — such renunciation, that is, yukta-vairagya, or attachment to Bhagavan; kva — where?; kva ca — and where; tavan — such; vishaya-vartasu — towards talk of sense objects; narakeshu iva — as towards hell; udvegah — alarm; kva ca — and where; asau vinaya-bhara-apurya-lahari — this overflowing wave of abundant humility; tavat alaukikam tejah va — such unearthly power; kva — where?; atha sa maha-bhakti-padavi va — and this wondrous path of bhakti, full of mahabhava; kva sambhavya — where is it possible?

20. Where else is such renunciation, where such aversion to talk of sense objects as to hell, where this wave overflowing with humility, where that unearthly power, where that path of great bhakti — all that is seen in those whose refuge is Gaura?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Only Gaura's devotees are the mine of all virtues.

In those whose only refuge is Gaurahari, causeless renunciation, or attachment to Bhagavan, is seen — where else is such renunciation to be found? Where else is there such fear, as of falling into hell, at worldly talk or village gossip? Where else is there such a wave of the perfect beauty of humility and meekness? Where else is there such unearthly power? And where else is such a wondrous path of bhakti, full of mahabhava, possible?

Verse 21

सकृन्नयनगोचरीकृततदश्रुधाराकुल-प्रफुल्लकमलेक्षणप्रणयकातरश्रीमुखः ।
न गौरचरणं जिहासति कदापि लोकोत्तर-स्फुरन्मधुरिमार्णवं नवनवानुरागोन्मदः ॥ २१ ॥ sakṛnnayanagocarīkṛtatadaśrudhārākulapraphullakamalekṣaṇapraṇayakātaraśrīmukhaḥ | na gauracaraṇaṁ jihāsati kadāpi lokottarasphuranmadhurimārṇavaṁ navanavānurāgonmadaḥ || 21 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [yah — he who]; sakrit-nayana-gocarikrita-tat-ashru-dhara-akula-praphulla-kamala-ikshana-pranaya-katara-shri-mukhah — "pranaya-katara" — overcome by love, "shri" — supreme beauty, the face endowed with it; what is it like? — "ashru-dhara-akula" — full of streams of tears, with eyes like full-blown lotuses; it has "sakrit" — even once — become the object of his sight; that is, he who has even once seen the beautiful face overcome by love, with lotus eyes full-blown and full of streams of tears; nava-nava-anuraga-unmadah [san] — filled with transformations of feeling, such as joy, pride and the rest, born of ever newer anuraga; lokottara-sphurat-madhurima-arnavam — the ocean of sweetness manifest in an unearthly way; gaura-caranam — Gaura's feet; kadapi — ever; na jihasati — does not wish to leave.

21. One who has even once seen Gaura's beautiful face, shy with love, with eyes like full-blown lotuses brimming with streams of tears — intoxicated with ever-new loving attachment (anuraga), will never wish to leave Gaura's feet, an ocean of unearthly, sparkling sweetness.

Gaudiya-bhashya. For […] Gaura, attachment to anything other than Gaura is impossible.

One who has even once seen the beautiful face of Sri Gaurasundara, full of the rasa of separation, shy with love, adorned with lotus eyes bathed in streams of tears — filled with ever-new transformations of feeling, such as joy and pride, born of ever newer attachment (anuraga), will never wish to leave the feet of that Gaurahari, the ocean of sweetness manifest in an unearthly way.

Verse 22

आचर्य धर्मं परिचर्य विष्णुं
विचर्य तीर्थानि विचार्य वेदान् ।
विना न गौरप्रियपादसेवां वेदादिदुष्प्राप्यपदं विदन्ति ॥ २२ ॥

ācarya dharmaṁ paricarya viṣṇuṁ vicarya tīrthāni vicārya vedān | vinā na gaurapriyapādasevāṁ vedādiduṣprāpyapadaṁ vidanti || 22 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): gaura-priya-pada-sevam — service to the feet of the gaura-priyas: those to whom Gaurasundara is dear, or those who are dear to Gaurahari; vina — without; dharmam — the dharma of varnashrama and the like; acarya [api] — even performing, properly observing; vishnum — the vishnu-tattva: Rama, Narayana, Nrisimha and the others; paricarya [api] — even worshipping excellently; tirthani — hundreds of holy places: Kashi, Kanchi, Gaya and the rest; vicarya [api] — even having wandered through them or made their parikrama; vedan — all the Vedas and shastras; vicarya [api] — even having studied; veda-adi-dushprapya-padam — the abode hard to reach by means of the Vedas and the rest, or: described very secretly in the Vedas and the rest and therefore incomprehensible to ordinary people — that secret place, the footstool of Sri Radha-Govinda, Sri Dhama Vrindavana; [ko'pi — no one]; na vidanti — can know.

22. One may practise dharma, serve Vishnu, travel to the holy places, study the Vedas — but without serving the feet of Gaura's beloved devotees one does not come to know the abode that is hard to reach even through the Vedas — Vrindavana, the footstool of Sri Radha-Govinda.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Even performing dharma, serving Vishnu, travelling to holy places or mastering the Vedas, no one comprehends the secret truth of the Vedas without serving the feet of Gaura's devotees.

Even performing the dharma of varnashrama, worshipping Vishnu, travelling to hundreds of holy places, studying all the Vedas and shastras and so on — without service to the lotus feet of Gaura's dear ones no one can know the abode that is hard to reach by the Vedas and the rest (cannot find Sri Dhama Vrindavana, the field of the spiritual pastimes of Sri Radha-Govinda).

Verse 23

अपारावारञ्चेदमृतमयपाथोधिमधिकं
विमथ्य प्राप्तं स्यात्किमपि परमं सारमतुलम् ।
तथापि श्रीगौराकृतिमदनगोपालचरण-च्छटास्पृष्टानां तद्बहति विकटामेव कटुताम् ॥ २३ ॥ apārāvārañcedamṛtamayapāthodhimadhikaṁ

vimathya prāptaṁ syātkimapi paramaṁ sāramatulam | tathāpi śrīgaurākṛtimadanagopālacaraṇacchaṭāspṛṣṭānāṁ tadvahati vikaṭāmeva kaṭutām || 23 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [yadyapi — even if]; apara-avaram — shoreless: "para-avara" — both shores; that which has neither shore, that is, without shores, endless; amrita-maya-pathodhim — "pathodhi" — the ocean, the receptacle of waters; such an ocean whose water is nectar; adhikam — abundantly; vimathya — having thoroughly churned; idam kimapi — some indescribable; atulam — incomparable, without equal; paramam saram — supreme essence; praptam syat — should be obtained; tathapi tat vastu — still that thing; shri-gaura-akriti-madana-gopala-carana-cchata-sprishtanam — for the people touched by the radiance (beauty) of the feet of Madana-Gopala, golden [with the lustre] of Sri: "Sri" is Sri Radhika, the embodiment of all the Lakshmis; Madana-Gopala, who has become golden by Her lustre, that is, Krishna clothed in the mood and lustre of Sri Radha — Sri Gaurasundara; for those whom the radiance of His feet has touched; vikatam eva katutam — a terrible bitterness indeed; vahati — seems to have.

23. If, by long churning the shoreless ocean of nectar, some supreme, incomparable essence were obtained — even that would taste bitter and harsh to those touched by the radiance of the feet of Madana-Gopala, who has become golden with the lustre of Sri Radha.

Gaudiya-bhashya. For a devotee attracted by the radiance of the toenails of Gaura's feet, everything best in the world — the best things, the best dharmas — is insignificant.

Even if, by churning with the utmost effort the ocean of nectar that has no shores, some indescribable, supreme, incomparable precious essence were extracted — still, to those touched by the rays of the feet of Madana-Gopala, that is, Krishna clothed in the mood and lustre of Radha — Sri Gaurasundara — it will seem extremely bitter.

Verse 24

तृणादपि च नीचता सहजसौम्यमुग्धाकृतिः
सुधामधुरभाषिता विषयगन्धथूथूत्कृतिः । हरिप्रणयविह्वला किमपि धीरनालम्बिता भवन्ति किल सद्गुणा जगति गौरभाजाममी ॥ २४ ॥

tṛṇādapi ca nīcatā sahajasaumyamugdhākṛtiḥ sudhāmadhurabhāṣitā viṣayagandhathūthūtkṛtiḥ | haripraṇayavihvalā kimapi dhīranālambitā
bhavanti kila sadguṇā jagati gaurabhājāmamī || 24 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): trinat api ca su-nicata — humility lower than grass, that is, absence of material pride; sahaja-saumya-mugdha-akritih — a natural, gentle, beautiful appearance; sudha-madhura-bhashita — speech sweet as nectar; vishaya-gandha-thuthut-kritih — spitting at the mere smell of sense objects unconnected with Krishna-Chaitanya; dhih hari-pranaya-vihvala [sati] kimapi analambita — the mind, overwhelmed by love for Hari, entirely devoid of external consciousness; ami sat-gunah — these good qualities; jagati — in the world; kila gaura-bhajam [eva] bhavanti — belong only to the devotees of Gaura.

24. Humility lower than a blade of grass, a naturally gentle and pure appearance, speech sweet as nectar, spitting at even the scent of sense objects, a mind leaning on nothing [external], indescribably overwhelmed by love for Hari — such good qualities are found in this world only in the devotees of Gaura.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The virtues of body, speech, mind and intelligence proper to Gaura's devotee are found nowhere else.

Humility lower than grass, that is, absence of worldly self-conceit; a naturally gentle, charming appearance; speech sweet as nectar; spitting at the mere smell of sense objects unconnected with Krishna Chaitanya; complete loss of external consciousness from being overwhelmed by love for Hari — all these virtues in the world belong only to Gaura's devotees.

Verse 25

उपासतां वा गुरुवर्यकोटी- रधीयतां वा श्रुतिशास्त्रकोटीः । चैतन्यकारुण्यकटाक्षभाजां सद्यः परं स्याद्धि रहस्यलाभः ॥ २५ ॥

upāsatāṁ vā guruvaryakoṭī-radhīyatāṁ vā śrutiśāstrakoṭīḥ | caitanyakāruṇyakaṭākṣabhājāṁ
sadyaḥ paraṁ syāddhi rahasyalābhaḥ || 25 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): guru-varya-kotih — millions of the best gurus; upasatam — let them take shelter of; va — or; shruti-shastra-kotih — millions of shrutis and shastras; adhiyatam — let them study; [parantu — but]; caitanya-karunya-kataksha-bhajam — of those who have obtained Chaitanya's merciful glance; hi — certainly; sadyah — immediately; param rahasya-labhah — the attainment of the secret prema; syat — takes place.

25. Let them serve millions of the best gurus, let them study millions of shrutis and shastras — but to those on whom Chaitanya's merciful glance has fallen, the highest secret is revealed at once.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The secret prema which the devotees of Sri Gaura obtain at once cannot be obtained by millions of famous karmis, jnanis, yogis and servants of gurus, nor by millions of readers of shruti and smriti.

Let them (those who have not taken shelter at Gaura's lotus feet) take shelter of millions of the best gurus, that is, receive from them as many […] instructions as they like, or study millions of shrutis and shastras (the agamas, nigamas and the rest) — this gives no possibility of obtaining the secret prema; but those whom the merciful glance of Sri Chaitanyadeva has touched certainly obtain that secret prema at once.

Verse 26

आस्तां वैराग्यकोटिर्भवतु शमदमक्षान्तिमैत्रादिकोटि- स्तत्त्वानुध्यानकोटिर्भवतु भवतु वा वैष्णवीभक्तिकोटिः ।
कोट्यंशोऽप्यस्य न स्यात्तदपि गुणगणो यः स्वतःसिद्ध आस्ते श्रीमच्चैतन्यचन्द्रप्रियचरणनखज्योतिरामोदभाजाम् ॥ २६ ॥

āstāṁ vairāgyakoṭirbhavatu śamadamakṣāntimaitrādikoṭi-stattvānudhyānakoṭirbhavatu bhavatu vā vaiṣṇavībhaktikoṭiḥ | koṭyaṁśo'pyasya na syāttadapi guṇagaṇo yaḥ svataḥsiddha āste śrīmaccaitanyacandrapriyacaraṇanakhajyotirāmodabhājām || 26 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): vairagya-kotih — strong or manifold vairagya; vairagya is of two kinds, phalgu and yukta: giving up things connected with Hari as worldly is called phalgu-vairagya, while the proper acceptance of what is favourable and connected with Krishna is yukta-vairagya; astam — let there be; shama-dama-kshanti-maitri-adi-kotih va — or: shama — steadiness in Bhagavan, dama — control of the senses, kshanti — tolerance, the undisturbed state of the mind even when there is cause for agitation, maitri and the rest — purity and the rest — all these countless qualities; bhavatu — let there be; tattva-anudhyana-kotih — millions of meditations on "tat tvam asi," that is, on the oneness of the jiva and Brahman; bhavatu — let there be; vaishnavi-bhakti-kotih va — or millions of bhaktis connected with Vishnu; bhavatu — let there be; tat api — still; shrimat-caitanya-candra-priya-carana-nakha-jyotih-amoda-bhajam — of the people who have obtained bliss from the radiance of the toenails of the dear devotees of the all-powerful Chaitanya-chandra; yah — which; svatah-siddhah — naturally inherent; guna-ganah — host of qualities; aste — abides; asya — of it; koti-amshah api — even a millionth part; [anyatra — elsewhere]; na syat — is not.

26. Let there be millions of kinds of renunciation, millions of kinds of restraint, self-control, patience, friendliness and the rest, millions of meditations on the truth, and even millions of kinds of Vaishnava bhakti — all of these together do not equal even a millionth part of the qualities that dwell of themselves in those who delight in the fragrance of the radiance of the toenails of the dear devotees of Sri Chaitanya-chandra.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Others do not possess even a small part of a millionth part of the natural qualities of Gaura's devotee.

Let there be the strongest renunciation, let there be countless qualities — shama, dama, kshanti, maitri and the rest; let millions of reflections on the oneness of […] Brahman and the jivatma take possession of the heart, or let there be millions of kinds of bhakti connected with Vishnu — still, not one part in a million of those natural qualities which always abide in the people who rejoice in the radiance of the toenails of the dear devotees of Sri Chaitanya-chandra is to be found anywhere else.

Verse 27

केचित्सागरभूधरानपि पराक्रामन्ति नृत्यन्ति वै
केचिद्देवपुरन्दरादिषु महाक्षेपं क्षिपन्तो मुहुः ।
आनन्दोद्भटजालविह्वलतया तेऽद्वैतचन्द्रादयः के के नोद्धतवन्त ईदृशि पुनश्चैतन्यनृत्योत्सवे ॥ २७ ॥

kecitsāgarabhūdharānapi parākrāmanti nṛtyanti vai keciddevapurandarādiṣu mahākṣepaṁ kṣipanto muhuḥ | ānandodbhaṭajālavihvalatayā te'dvaitacandrādayaḥ
ke ke noddhatavanta īdṛśi punaścaitanyanṛtyotsave || 27 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ananda-udbhata-jala-vihvalataya — because of being overwhelmed by the boundless bliss born of tasting the nectar of prema; kecit — some of the devotees headed by Murari Gupta; sagara-bhudharan api — even oceans and mountains; parakramanti — stride over; kecit — some of the devotees headed by Srivasa; deva-purandara-adishu — at Indra and the other gods; muhuh — again and again; maha-akshepam — great reproach; kshipantah — hurling; vai nrityanti — dance; idrishi — at such a; caitanya-nritya-utsave — festival of Sri Gauranga's dance; te advaitacandra-adayah — those headed by Sri Advaita Acharya; ke ke — who, who; punah na uddhatavantah — did not become wild?

27. Some of them stride over oceans and mountains and dance; others again and again hurl great reproaches at Indra and the other gods; and Advaita-chandra and the others, beside themselves with tumultuous bliss — who did not run wild at this festival of Chaitanya's dance?

Gaudiya-bhashya. The madness of love of Gaura's devotees at the festival of the dance is incomparable.

Caught in the net of boundless bliss born of tasting the nectar of prema, devoid of external consciousness, some of the devotees headed by Murari Gupta seem to stride over mountains and oceans; others of the devotees headed by Srivasa dance, again and again heaping reproaches on Indra and the other gods; and at such a festival of Sri Chaitanya's dance which of the devotees headed by Advaita (as venerable, learned and acharyas as they were) did not become wild!

Verse 28

भूतो वा भविताऽपि वा भवति वा कस्यापि यः कोऽपि वा
सम्बन्धो भगवत्पदाम्बुजरसे नास्मिन् जगन्मण्डले ।
तत्सर्वं निजभक्तिरूपपरमैश्वर्येण विक्रीडितो गौरस्यास्य कृपाविजृम्भिततया जानन्ति निर्मत्सराः ॥ २८ ॥

bhūto vā bhavitā'pi vā bhavati vā kasyāpi yaḥ ko'pi vā sambandho bhagavatpadāmbujarase nāsmin jaganmaṇḍale | tatsarvaṁ nijabhaktirūpaparamaiśvaryeṇa vikrīḍito
gaurasyāsya kṛpāvijṛmbhitatayā jānanti nirmatsarāḥ || 28 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): asmin jagat-mandale — in this earthly world; bhagavat-pada-ambuja-rase — in the rasa of Bhagavan's lotus feet; kasyapi — of no one; yah ko'pi sambandhah — any relationship whatever; na bhutah — has been; [na] bhavita — will be; [na] bhavati api va — nor is even now; nija-bhakti-rupa-parama-aishvaryena — together with the supreme wealth in the form of devotion to Himself; vikriditah — sporting; asya gaurasya — of this Gaurachandra; kripa-vijrimbhitataya — owing to the manifestation of mercy; [tat-upalakshitah — illumined by that mercy]; nirmatsarah — people merciful to all beings; tat sarvam — all those sweetnesses of rasa; jananti — come to know.

28. Such a relationship with the rasa of the Lord's lotus feet as no one in this world has had, will have or has — all this the non-envious come to know through the outpouring mercy of this Gaura, who sports with the supreme wealth: devotion to Himself.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The secret prema, impossible for anyone in the past, future and present, is always accessible to Gaura's devotees.

No relationship with the rasa of Bhagavan's lotus feet has anyone in this world had, will have or has; but since the mercy of Gaurasundara, who sports with His supreme wealth — devotion to Himself — has become manifest, the non-envious devotees marked by that mercy have come to know all that sweetness of rasa. That is, that secret relationship with the rasa of Krishna's lotus feet which no one has ever had, will have or has even now, the associates of Gaura constantly realize by Gaura's mercy.

1. In the 1951 edition this verse stands in brackets without a number; it is probably a later insertion. It could not be found in the OCR copy of the Bengali edition with Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati's translation.

2. Mahaprabhu worshipped Jagannatha in Puri as another form of His own (more precisely, as Himself). Here it is said: "longing to see Himself — Jagannatha."

3. In the Bengali edition with Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati's translation this verse stands here too (No. 17), and is then repeated in the seventh section (No. 75) with the words "in our hearts" (asmakam instead of yushmakam).

Part Two

Censure of the non-devotees. Humility (verses 29–56)

Censure of those not devoted to Chaitanya

Verse 29

महापुरुषमानिनां सुरमुनीश्वराणां निजं
पदाम्बुजमजानतां किमपि गर्वनिर्वासनम् ।
अहो नयनगोचरं निगमचक्रचूडाचरं शचीसुतमचीकरत् क इह भूरिभाग्योदयः ॥ mahāpuruṣamāninām̐ suramunīśvarāṇām̐ nijam̐

padāmbujamajānatām̐ kimapi garvanirvāsanam |
aho nayanagocaram̐ nigamacakracūḍācaram̐
śacīsutamacīkarat ka iha bhūribhāgyodayaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): nigama-cakra-cuda-cayam — Him whom the Upanishads seek ("nigama-cakra" — the collection of the shrutis, their "cuda" — crowns, and "caya" — that which is sought by them; that is, Him whom the Upanishads, the head-ornament of the Vedas, seek — Him); nijam pada-ambujam ajanatam — who do not know His own — Gaurahari's — lotus feet; maha-purusha-maninam — who think themselves great personalities; sura-muni-ishvaranam — of the best of the gods and the best of the sages; kimapi garva-nirvasanam — a certain destroyer of pride; shaci-sutam — the son of Shachi; [mat-vidhe jane api — even for a person such as me]; nayana-gocaram — visible to the eye; acikarat — has made; aho iha — ah, in this world; [idrik — such]; bhuri-bhagya-udayah — greatly fortunate; kah — who?

29. Oh, who in this world is that great fortunate one who has made visible even to one such as me the son of Shachi — He whom the crowns of the whole host of the Vedas seek! He drives out, in an indescribable way, the pride of the lords of the gods and of the sages, who think themselves great and do not know His lotus feet.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The most fortunate of all is he who gives the opportunity to seek the lotus feet of Gaurahari, whom the Upanishads seek.

Shachinandana — He whom the garland of the Upanishads, the ornament of all the shrutis, seeks; the destroyer of the pride of the best of sages and gods who think themselves great personalities and do not know His own lotus feet — who has made Him visible even to one such as me? Oh! Who in this world is such a greatly fortunate one?

Verse 30

सर्वसाधनहीनोऽपि परमाश्चर्यवैभवे । गौराङ्गे न्यस्तभावो यः सर्वार्थपूर्ण एव सः ॥ sarvasādhanahīno'pi paramāścaryavaibhave |

gaurāṅge nyastabhāvo yaḥ sarvārthapūrṇa eva saḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sarva-sadhana-hinah api — even devoid of all kinds of sadhana; yah — he who; parama-ashcarya-vaibhave gaurange — in Gaurasundara, who possesses supremely wonderful glory; nyasta-bhavah — has placed his citta-vritti (the movements of the mind); sah — he; sarva-artha-purnah — (sarva — […]; artha — prema, that is, the highest goal of man, prema for Krishna; having obtained it, purna — full, that is, one whose desires are all fulfilled); eva [bhavati] — certainly becomes.

30. Even if a man is devoid of every means of spiritual practice, if his heart is given to Gauranga, whose glory is wonderful beyond all, he has attained every goal.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Even one devoid of all sadhana but surrendered to Gaura alone obtains the crown of the goals of man.

Even devoid of all sadhana, one who has given his mind to Sri Gaurasundara, who possesses supremely wonderful glory, certainly obtains the highest goal of man — prema for Krishna — and becomes fully satisfied; of this [there is no doubt].

Verse 31

अप्यगण्यमहापुण्यमनन्यशरणं हरेः । अनुपासितचैतन्यमधन्यं मन्यते मतिः ॥ apyagaṇyamahāpuṇyamananyaśaraṇaṁ hareḥ |

anupāsitacaitanyamadhanyaṁ manyate matiḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): aganya-maha-punyam — one who has countless great merits — such a person; hareh ananya-sharanam api — even one exclusively surrendered to Hari; anupasita-caitanyam [janam] — the person who has not worshipped Krishna-Chaitanya-chandra; matih — my mind; adhanyam — (dhana is the fifth goal of man, prema; one worthy of that wealth is "dhanya," one who is not "dhanya" is "adhanya"; that is, no one except the worshippers of Sri Chaitanya-chandra is worthy of obtaining the wealth of prema); manyate — considers.

31. Even if someone possesses countless great merits and seeks no refuge other than Hari, my mind still considers him unfortunate if he has not worshipped Chaitanya.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Even an exclusive devotee of Hari, if he has no bhakti for Sri Chaitanya, is unfortunate (a-dhanya)

Let someone have countless great merits, let him be exclusively surrendered to Hari — but if he has not worshipped Sri Chaitanya-chandra, my mind considers him "a-dhanya," that is, unworthy of obtaining the highest goal of man.

Verse 32

क्रियासक्तान् धिग् धिग् विकटतपसो धिक् च यमिनः
धिगस्तु ब्रह्माहं वदनपरिफुल्लान् जडमतीन् ।
किमेतान् शोचामो विषयरसमत्तान्नरपशून्
न केषाञ्चिल्लेशोऽप्यहह मिलितो गौरमधुनः ॥

kriyāsaktān dhig dhig vikaṭatapaso dhik ca yaminaḥ dhigastu brahmāhaṁ vadanapariphullān jaḍamatīn | kimetān śocāmo viṣayarasamattānnarapaśūn
na keṣāñcilleśo'pyahaha milito gauramadhunaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kriya-asaktan — (kriya — the regular and occasional rites, sandhya-vandana and so on) those attached to them, that is, always eager for them, and therefore; jada-matin — dull-witted (jada — indifferent to the true search for the highest goal but absorbed in seeking a particle of transient, worldly, illusory happiness — such people); dhik — shame (an indeclinable word expressing contempt); vikata-tapasah — the harsh ascetics (those who in summer endure the heat of the sun, in the rainy season the incessant downpours, in the cold seasons stand in water, grow their nails, beards and hair or hang head downwards, go without food and sleep, performing very laborious austerities, japa, meditation and so on — them); dhik — shame; yaminah ca — and the self-restrained (those who try to subdue the senses or the mind by yama, niyama and the other steps of the eightfold yoga — them too); dhik — shame; brahma aham [iti shabda-uccarana-matrena eva — merely by uttering the words "I am Brahman"]; vadana-pariphullan — those whose faces blossom (who, merely uttering the words "I am Brahman," pride themselves on being "liberated," and whose faces are therefore very joyful — them); dhik astu — shame; vishaya-rasa-mattan — intoxicated with the rasa of sense objects (intoxicated with the pride of enjoying sense objects unconnected with Bhagavan: the false renunciants (phalgu-tyagis) seeking the impersonal Brahman are intoxicated with the evil rasa of aversion to Bhagavan — the thought "I am liberated," while the pleasure-seekers attached to rites are busy enjoying the fruits of this world and the next; so, these); nara-pashun — over these human animals (animals in human form: as village animals eat and amuse themselves, so these, having no connection with Gaura, eat and amuse themselves in every way like them — over them); kim shocamah — why should we grieve?; ahaha — alas!; [etesham — of them]; keshancit — no one; gaura-madhunah — of the honey of Gaura's lotus feet; leshah api — even a drop; na militah — has received.

32. Shame, shame on those attached to rituals and therefore dull-witted; shame on harsh ascetics and self-restraining yogis! Shame on those whose faces blossom at the mere words "I am Brahman"! And why should we grieve over these two-legged beasts intoxicated with the taste of sense pleasure? Alas, not one of them has received even a drop of the honey of Gaura.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Censure of the futile endeavours of the knowers (jnanis), the followers of rituals (karmis), the ascetics and the yogis

Shame on the smartas attached to the regular and occasional rites; shame on the harsh ascetics, shame on the yogis of the eightfold yoga; shame also on the ahamgraha-upasakas (who worship themselves as God), who, as soon as they utter the words "aham brahmasmi" ("I am Brahman"), blossom with the conceit of the liberated. All of them are intoxicated with the enjoyment of sense objects unconnected with the Lord. Why should one grieve over these two-legged animals? Alas, alas! Not one of them has received even a drop of the nectar of Gaura's lotus feet.

Verse 33

पाषाणः परिषेचितोऽमृतरसैर्नैवाङ्कुरः सम्भवेत्
लाङ्गूलं सरमापतेर्विवृणतः स्यादस्य नैवार्जवम् ।
हस्तावुन्नयता बुधाः कथमहो धार्यं विधोर्मण्डलं सर्वं साधनमस्तु गौरकरुणाभावे न भावोत्सवः ॥

pāṣāṇaḥ pariṣecito'mṛtarasairnaivāṅkuraḥ sambhavet
lāṅgūlaṁ saramāpatervivṛṇataḥ syādasya naivārjavam | hastāvunnayatā budhāḥ kathamaho dhāryaṁ vidhormaṇḍalaṁ
sarvaṁ sādhanamastu gaurakaruṇābhāve na bhāvotsavaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [he] budhah — O learned ones; pashanah — a stone; amrita-rasaih — with streams of nectar; parishecitah [api] — (pari — on all sides, abundantly; secita — watered) even if watered; [tasya — of it]; ankurah na eva sambhavet — the appearance of a sprout is never possible; langulam vivrinatah — of one stretching out its tail; sarama-pateh — of a dog; asya [langulasya] — of that stretched-out tail; arjavam — straightness; na eva [bhavati] — never comes about; hastau unnayata [janena] — by a person raising his hands; vidhoh mandalam — the disc of the moon; katham dharyam — how can it be held? (that is, merely by raising his hands a person cannot touch the disc of the moon); sarvam sadhanam astu — let there be all the means of practice, but even then; gaura-karuna-abhave — in the absence of Gaurasundara's mercy, that is, without mercy; na bhava-utsavah — the festival [of prema] (the OCR is unclear) is never possible.

33. However much a stone is watered with nectar, no sprout will appear; however much one straightens a dog's tail, it will never become straight; O wise ones, however high one raises one's hands, how can one hold the disc of the moon? Let there be every means of practice — but without Gaura's mercy there is no festival of bhava (love).

Gaudiya-bhashya. Without Gaura's mercy, love (prema) is unattainable even for one who possesses all the means of practice

O wise ones! As on a stone, however much one waters it with nectar, a sprout will never appear; as a dog's tail, however much one straightens it, will never become straight; as, raising both hands, no one can touch the disc of the moon — so, alas, even one who possesses all the means of practice will not become worthy of obtaining the bliss of prema without the mercy of Sri Gaurasundara.

Verse 34

अवतीर्णे गौरचन्द्रे विस्तीर्णे प्रेमसागरे ।
सुप्रकाशितरत्नौघे यो दीनो दीन एव सः ॥

avatīrṇe gauracandre vistīrṇe premasāgare |
suprakāśitaratnaughe yo dīno dīna eva saḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): vistirne prema-sagare — in the wide ocean of prema; gaura-candre avatirne [sati] — when Gaurachandra has risen; [tena — by Him]; su-prakashita-ratna-oghe — when the multitude of jewels is beautifully illumined (su — beautifully, prakashita — illumined, ratna — jewels, ogha — multitude; that is, when the bright radiance of Sri Gaurachandra has beautifully illumined the jewels of the treasury of prema — the nine kinds of bhakti, or the bhavas nourished by the vibhavas, anubhavas, sattvika- and vyabhichari-bhavas and the other ingredients, or the necklace of the jewel-names "Hare Krishna" and the rest); yah dinah — whoever remains poor; sah dinah eva — he is truly poor (that is, whoever, leaving the jewels of the ocean of prema illumined by the rays of Gaurachandra, wishes to seek rust and slag elsewhere, is never rid of poverty: not having taken shelter of the lotus feet of the Gaura-moon, he will not be freed from poverty, forever labouring for what is not wealth and remaining deprived of the wealth of prema).

34. When Gaurachandra has descended and the ocean of love has spread wide, its multitude of jewels (the nine kinds of bhakti and the rest) shining brightly — whoever has remained poor is poor indeed.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Truly poor is only he who has not taken shelter of Gaura's lotus feet

Over the wide ocean, the treasury of prema, the Gaura-moon has risen and revealed heaps of the jewels of the nine kinds of bhakti — hearing, chanting and the rest. Whoever has remained poor even with such an opportunity is, without doubt, extremely unfortunate.

Verse 35

अवतीर्णे गौरचन्द्रे विस्तीर्णे प्रेमसागरे ।
ये न मज्जन्ति मज्जन्ति ते महानर्थसागरे ॥

avatīrṇe gauracandre vistīrṇe premasāgare |
ye na majjanti majjanti te mahānarthasāgare ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): vistirne prema-sagare — in the wide ocean-treasury of prema, or in the ocean of the rasa of prema; gaura-candre avatirne [sati] — when the Gaura-moon has risen; ye [janah tatra] — those people who into that ocean of rasa or that treasury; na majjanti — do not plunge; te — they; maha-anartha-sagare — in the ocean of great anarthas (when the ocean is explained as a treasury of jewels: artha is Krishna, or the highest goal, prema, and anartha is its opposite: everything that is not Krishna, or the four goals of man; when it is explained as an ocean of rasa — in an ocean of donkey's urine, that is, of the anarthas: the desire for prestige (pratishtha-asha), crookedness (kutinati) and the like); majjanti — drown.

35. When Gaurachandra has descended and the ocean of love has spread wide, those who do not plunge into it drown in the ocean of great misfortunes.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Whoever has not plunged into the ocean of prema revealed by Gaurachandra drowns in the ocean of great evils (anarthas)

Though the Gaura-moon has risen over the wide ocean, the treasury of prema, those who have not dived into that ocean of prema have remained drowning in the ocean of great evils (anarthas)!

Verse 36

प्रसारितमहाप्रेमपीयूषरससागरे । चैतन्यचन्द्रे प्रकटे यो दीनो दीन एव सः ॥ prasāritamahāpremapīyūṣarasasāgare |

caitanyacandre prakaṭe yo dīno dīna eva saḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): prasarita-maha-prema-piyusha-rasa-sagare — in the ocean in which (prasarita — very wide, mahan — excellent) prema is piyusha, that is, the nectar rasa — in it; caitanya-candre prakate [sati] — when the Chaitanya-moon has risen; yah dinah sah dinah eva — whoever is poor is truly poor (whoever has not taken shelter of Gaura's feet is more foolish than the foolish).

36. When Chaitanya-chandra has appeared and the ocean of the nectar rasa of great love has spread forth — whoever has remained poor is poor indeed.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Whoever has turned away from the honey of Gaura's lotus feet is extremely foolish

When the Chaitanya-moon has risen and poured forth an ocean of the nectar rasa of great love, one who has remained "poor," that is, deprived of the chance to drink that nectar of prema, is truly "poor," that is, extremely unfortunate.

Verse 37

अचैतन्यमिदं विश्वं यदि चैतन्यमीश्वरम् ।
न विदुः सर्वशास्त्रज्ञा ह्यपि भ्राम्यन्ति ते जनाः ॥

acaitanyamidaṁ viśvaṁ yadi caitanyamīśvaram |
na viduḥ sarvaśāstrajñā hyapi bhrāmyanti te janāḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sarva-shastra-jnah [janah] api — even people learned in all the shastras; yadi caitanyam — if Sri Chaitanyadeva; ishvaram na viduh — they do not know as Bhagavan Himself; te — they; acaitanyam idam vishvam — in this unconscious material world; bhramyanti — wander (that is, subject to the fruits of karma, they merely travel through heaven, hell and the other worlds, and their comings and goings never cease).

37. If people, even those who know all the shastras, do not know that Chaitanya is God, they merely wander about in this world devoid of consciousness (a-chaitanya).

Gaudiya-bhashya. Whoever doubts that Gaurasundara is Bhagavan Himself, even if he knows all the shastras, is only a conditioned soul wandering in the material world

If even the knowers of all the shastras do not know that Sri Chaitanya-chandra is "Bhagavan Himself," they merely come and go in this unconscious (a-cit) world.

Verse 38

स्वादं स्वादं मधुरिमभरं स्वीयनामावलीनां
मादं मादं किमपि विवशीभूतविस्रस्तगात्रः ।
वारं वारं व्रजपतिगुणान् गाय गायेति जल्पन् गौरो दृष्टः सकृदपि न यैर्दुर्घटा तेषु भक्तिः ॥ svādaṁ svādaṁ madhurimabharaṁ svīyanāmāvalīnāṁ

mādaṁ mādaṁ kimapi vivaśībhūtavisrastagātraḥ |
vāraṁ vāraṁ vrajapatiguṇān gāya gāyeti jalpan
gauro dṛṣṭaḥ sakṛdapi na yairdurghaṭā teṣu bhaktiḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sviya-nama-avalinam — of His own names, "Hare Krishna" and the rest; madhurima-bharam — (madhurima — sweetness, bhara — fullness or excess; that is) the utmost sweetness; svadam svadam — tasting again and again; [tatah — from that]; madam madam — becoming intoxicated again and again; kimapi — in an indescribable way; vivashibhuta-visrasta-gatrah [san] — losing control, and then with His body grown limp; vrajapati-gunan — the qualities of the lord of Vrindavana; varam varam — again and again; gaya gaya — "sing," "sing"; iti — thus; jalpan — saying (that is, He says); gaurah — Gaurasundara; yaih — by those people; sakrit api na drishtah — has not been seen even once, that is, not realized in experience; teshu — in those people; bhaktih kutah [bhavati] — whence bhakti? (the possibility of bhakti is negligible).

38. Again and again tasting the fullness of the sweetness of His own names, again and again becoming intoxicated, indescribably losing control of Himself so that His body goes limp, again and again murmuring, "Sing, sing of the qualities of the lord of Vraja!" — such is Gaura. Those who have never once seen Him — how can they have bhakti?

Gaudiya-bhashya. One who does not know the glory of Gaura's lotus feet cannot obtain the secret of rasa

He, again and again tasting the sweetness of His own names — "Hare Krishna" and the rest — becomes more and more intoxicated by them, indescribably loses control of Himself, and His body grows limp; He calls out to everyone and says again and again: "Chant, chant the qualities of the lord of Vrindavana!" For those who have never once seen such a Sri Gaurasundara, the possibility of obtaining bhakti is infinitely remote.

Verse 39

विना बीजं किं नाङ्कुरजननमन्धोऽपि न कथं
प्रपश्येन्नो पङ्गुर्गिरिशिखरमारोहति कथम् ।
यदि श्रीचैतन्ये हरिरसमयाश्चर्यविभवे- ऽप्यभक्तानां भावी कथमपि परप्रेमरभसः ॥ vinā bījaṁ kiṁ nāṅkurajananamandho'pi na kathaṁ prapaśyenno paṅgurgiriśikharamārohati katham | yadi śrīcaitanye harirasamayāścaryavibhave-

'pyabhaktānāṁ bhāvī kathamapi parapremarabhasaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yadi hari-rasamaya-ashcarya-vibhave — possessing supremely wondrous wealth, which is the rasa of bhakti for Hari Himself; shri-caitanye — in Sri Gaurasundara; abhaktanam api — even of those devoid of bhakti; para-prema-rabhasah — ("para" — the Supreme, Parameshvara; "prema-rabhasa" — the bliss of prema) the bliss of love for the Supreme; kathamapi — in some way; bhavi — will arise; [tada — then]; bijam vina kim na ankura-jananam [bhavet] — why does a sprout not appear without a seed?; andhah api katham na prapashyet — why does even the blind man not see?; panguh katham na giri-shikharam arohati — why does the lame man not climb the summit of Mount Sumeru? (that is, for those who have not taken shelter of Gaura's lotus feet, to taste the rasa of prema is utterly impossible).

39. Could a sprout not appear without a seed, a blind man not see, a lame man not climb a mountain peak — if even those not devoted to Sri Chaitanya, whose wondrous wealth is made of Hari-rasa, could somehow obtain the impulse of the highest love?

Gaudiya-bhashya. As without a seed no sprout appears, so without bhakti for Gaura it is impossible to obtain the secret love

If those devoid of bhakti could, even with the greatest effort, ever awaken the bliss of love for the Supreme — for Sri Chaitanya-chandra, whose supremely wondrous wealth is the rasa of bhakti for Hari — then why should a sprout not appear without a seed? Why should the blind not see? And why should the lame not climb the summit of Mount Sumeru?

Verse 40

अलौकिक्या प्रेमोन्मदरसविलासप्रथनया
न यः श्रीगोविन्दानुचरसचिवेष्वेषु कृतिषु ।
महाश्चर्यप्रेमोत्सवमपि हठाद्दातरि न य-न्मतिर्गौरे साक्षात् पर इह स मूढो नरपशुः ॥ alaukikyā premonmadarasavilāsaprathanayā

na yaḥ śrīgovindānucarasaciveṣveṣu kṛtiṣu | mahāścaryapremotsavamapi haṭhāddātari na ya-nmatirgaure sākṣāt para iha sa mūḍho narapaśuḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): eshu shri-govinda-anucara-saciveshu kritishu — among those pious souls who, as associates, assist the pastimes of Sri Govinda; yah na [ganitah — one who is not counted; tasmai api — even to him]; alaukikya — in an unearthly way; prema-unmada-rasa-vilasa-prathanaya — by spreading the pastimes of rasa born of love — joy, pride and the rest; maha-ashcarya-prema-utsavam — the supremely wondrous bliss of prema; hathat datari sakshat gaure — towards Gaurasundara Himself, who suddenly bestows; yat-matih na [bhavet] — whose mind does not turn; iha — in this world; sah nara-pashuh — that human animal; parah mudhah — is the greatest fool.

40. He who, by an unearthly unfolding of the pastimes of the intoxicating rasa of love, suddenly gives the festival of great and wondrous love even to one who is not among these virtuous companions and ministers of Sri Govinda — whoever does not turn his mind to Gaura Himself is here the greatest of fools, a two-legged beast.

Gaudiya-bhashya. A two-legged animal is he who has not turned his mind to Gaurahari, who gives unearthly love even to those who cling to the insentient

Even one who is not counted among the pious souls who, as associates, assist in the pastimes of Sri Radha and Govinda, He suddenly endows with the wondrous bliss of prema, spreading in an unearthly way the pastimes of rasa born of love — joy, pride and the rest. Whoever has not turned his mind to this Sri Gaurasundara, manifest before our eyes, is a two-legged animal and the greatest fool in this world.

Verse 41

असंख्याः श्रुत्यादौ भगवदवतारा निगदिताः
प्रभावं कः सम्भावयतु परमेशादितरतः ।
किमन्यत् स्वप्रेष्ठे कति कति सतां नाप्यनुभवा- स्तथापि श्रीगौरे हरि हरि न मूढा हरिधियः ॥ asaṁkhyāḥ śrutyādau bhagavadavatārā nigaditāḥ prabhāvaṁ kaḥ sambhāvayatu parameśāditarataḥ | kimanyat svapreṣṭhe kati kati satāṁ nāpyanubhavā-stathāpi śrīgaure hari hari na mūḍhā haridhiyaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): shruti-adau — in the Vedas and the rest (in the Vedas, […] the natural commentary on the Vedanta, the Srimad-Bhagavatam, […] shastras); asankhyah — countless; avatarah — avataras; nigaditah — are named; [gaura-harau … — in Gaurahari …] (such wondrous power as is seen in Gaurahari, […]); prabhavam — such power; parama-ishat itaratah — in anyone other than Parameshvara; kah sambhavayatu — who can suppose?; anyat kim [vaktavyam] — what more is to be said?; sva-preshthe — in their beloved Gaurasundara; satam — of the saintly devotees; kati kati anubhavah api na [drishtah] — how many, how many experiences were there not? (the deliverance of Jagai and Madhai, […], the six-armed form shown to Sarvabhauma, […] — did they not realize Him as the Supreme?); hari hari — alas! (in grief); tathapi shri-gaure — still, in Gaurasundara; mudhah hari-dhiyah na — the fools have no understanding that He is Hari (the Supreme).

41. Countless incarnations of the Lord are named in the shruti and other scriptures — but who could ascribe such power to anyone other than the Supreme? And what more is there to say: how many, how many revelations have the saints had of their beloved Gaura! And yet, alas — Hari, Hari! — fools do not recognize Hari in Sri Gaura.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Deprived are those who doubt the divinity of Gaurahari, the crown of all avataras

In the Vedas and the other shastras countless avataras are glorified, but who except Bhagavan Himself can display such wondrous power as is seen in Gaurahari? What more is there to say: did not the devotees see in their beloved Gaurahari six arms and many other wonders? Alas, alas, even seeing and hearing all this, the fools do not recognize the Supreme in Gaurahari.

Verse 42

साक्षान्मोक्षादिकार्थान् विविधविकृतिभिस्तुच्छतां दर्शयन्तं
प्रेमानन्दं प्रसूते सकलतनुभृतां यस्य लीलाकटाक्षः ।
नासौ वेदेषु गूढो जगति यदि भवेदीश्वरो गौरचन्द्र-स्तत्प्राप्तोऽनीशवादः शिव शिव गहने विष्णुमाये नमस्ते ॥ sākṣānmokṣādikārthān vividhavikṛtibhistucchatāṁ darśayantaṁ premānandaṁ prasūte sakalatanubhṛtāṁ yasya līlākaṭākṣaḥ | nāsau vedeṣu gūḍho jagati yadi bhavedīśvaro gauracandrastatprāpto'nīśavādaḥ śiva śiva gahane viṣṇumāye namaste ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yasya lila-katakshah — the playful glance, full of bhavas, of that Gaurasundara; sakala-tanu-bhritam — of all embodied beings; sakshat moksha-adika-arthan — the direct goals of man, liberation and the rest; vividha-vikritibhih — by a multitude of transformations (vikaras); tucchatam darshayantam prema-anandam — the bliss of prema, which shows their insignificance, that is, their utter worthlessness (that is, the fifth goal, prema-ananda, "which makes liberation insignificant"); prasute — gives birth to (manifests); vedeshu gudhah asau gauracandrah — this Gaurachandra, hidden in the Vedas (hidden because He is the hidden avatara; that is, although the shrutis point to Gaurasundara with the mantras "mahan prabhur vai purushah" (Shvetashvatara Upanishad 3.12), "rukma-varnam kartaram isham purusham brahma-yonim" (Mundaka Upanishad 3.1.3) and others, for those who lack the realization of the wise this has not become an object of realization); jagati yadi ishvarah na bhavet — if He is not the one Lord in the world; tat anisha-vadah praptah — then atheism (the doctrine of godlessness) has come; shiva shiva — Shiva, Shiva!; [he] gahane vishnu-maye — O Vishnu-maya of inscrutable power; te — to you; namah — obeisance (that is, deluded by Vishnu-maya of inscrutable power, some cannot realize Gaurasundara as "the Supreme").

42. His playful glance gives rise in all embodied beings to the bliss of love, which by its various transformations shows the worthlessness even of liberation and the other goals. If this Gaurachandra, hidden in the Vedas, is not the Lord of the world, then the doctrine of a world without God is established of itself. Shiva, Shiva! Inscrutable art thou, O maya of Vishnu — obeisance to thee!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Those who do not believe in Gaurahari, the giver of bhakti beside which liberation is insignificant, are atheists bewildered by maya Gaurasundara's playful glance, full of bhavas, gives rise in all embodied beings to the bliss of prema, which by a multitude of transformations (vikaras) shows how insignificant are the four goals of man headed by liberation. If this Sri Gaurachandra, hidden in the Vedas, is not the Lord of the world, that is, if the living beings of the world do not accept that He is "God Himself," then the world is covered by atheism! Shiva, Shiva! O inscrutable Vishnu-maya, how inscrutable is your power! Obeisance to you.

Verse 43

धिगस्तु कुलमुज्ज्वलं धिगपि वाग्मितां धिग्यशो
धिगध्ययनमाकृतिं नववयःश्रियश्चास्तु धिक् । द्विजत्वमपि धिक् परं विमलमाश्रमाद्यं च धिक् न चेत् परिचितः कलौ प्रकटगौरगोपीपतिः ॥

dhigastu kulamujjvalaṁ dhigapi vāgmitāṁ dhigyaśo dhigadhyayanamākṛtiṁ navavayaḥśriyaścāstu dhik | dvijatvamapi dhik paraṁ vimalamāśramādyaṁ ca dhik
na cet paricitaḥ kalau prakaṭagauragopīpatiḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ujjvalam kulam dhik — shame on a noble lineage (shame on birth in a righteous family full of pious conduct); vagmitam api dhik — shame also on eloquence (wordiness); yashah [ca] dhik astu — shame on fame, or honour; adhyayanam dhik — shame on the study of the shrutis and the rest; akritim navam vayah shriyam [ca] dhik astu — shame on a beautiful build of hands, feet and other limbs, on full youth (purna-kaishora), on inexhaustible wealth; dvijatvam api dhik — shame also on receiving instruction in the Gayatri and so on after accepting the prescribed sacraments, upanayana and the rest; param vimalam ashrama-adyam ca dhik — shame also on the highest, pure brahmacarya and the other ashramas (the word "adi" also indicates [sacrifices], the practice of yoga, renunciation and the like — shame on them too); cet — if; kalau — in the age of Kali; prakata-gaura-gopi-patih — the manifest Gaura, the beloved of the gopis (Krishna, the beloved of the gopis, the embodiment of sweetness (madhurya), who, accepting the mood and lustre of "gaura," that is, of the golden Sri Radha, has appeared as the embodiment of the rasa of vipralambha); na paricitah [bhavet] — is not worshipped (does not become the object of worship).

43. Shame on an illustrious family, shame on eloquence, shame on fame, shame on learning, on a handsome form, on youth and on wealth; shame too on birth as a twice-born, on a pure ashrama and all the rest — if in the age of Kali one has not come to know Gaura, the Lord of the gopis made manifest.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Shame on the noble lineage, eloquence, learning, wealth and brahminhood of one who has turned away from Gaura

If Sri Gauranga is not worshipped — Krishna, the beloved of the gopis, the embodiment of the rasa of sweetness (madhurya), who appeared in the age of Kali with the feelings and lustre of the golden Sri Radha as the embodiment of the rasa of separation (vipralambha) — then shame on a righteous noble lineage, shame on eloquence, shame on fame, shame on the study of the Vedas and the other shastras, shame on beauty, youth and wealth, shame on brahminhood adorned with the prescribed sacraments such as upanayana, shame on the pure ashramas such as brahmacarya, and also on yoga, sacrifices, renunciation and the rest.

Verse 44

अहो वैकुण्ठस्थैरपि च भगवत्पार्षदवरैः
सरोमाञ्चं दृष्टा यदनुचरवक्रेश्वरमुखाः ।
महाश्चर्यप्रेमोज्ज्वलरससदावेशविवशी- कृताङ्गास्तं गौरं कथमकृतपुण्यः प्रणयतु ॥ aho vaikuṇṭhasthairapi ca bhagavatpārṣadavaraiḥ

saromāñcaṁ dṛṣṭā yadanucaravakreśvaramukhāḥ | mahāścaryapremojjvalarasasadāveśavivaśīkṛtāṅgāstaṁ gauraṁ kathamakṛtapuṇyaḥ praṇayatu ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): aho — oh!; maha-ashcarya-prema-ujjvala-rasa-sada-avesha-vivashikrita-angah — those whose limbs are overpowered by constant absorption in the supremely wondrous radiant rasa of prema; yat-anucara-vakreshvara-mukhah — the associates of that Gaurasundara headed by Vakreshvara, connoisseurs of madhura-rasa, that is, Vakreshvara, Gadadhara, Raya Ramananda and others; vaikuntha-sthaih bhagavat-parshada-varaih api ca — even by the best associates of Narayana, who dwell in Vaikuntha, the abode of majesty (aishvarya); sa-romancam drishtah [abhavan] — were seen with gooseflesh (that is, seeing them, even the associates of Narayana in Vaikuntha cannot help getting gooseflesh from [rapture]); akrita-punyah — one devoid of piety; katham — how; tam gauram — that Gaurasundara; pranayatu — will be able to make the object of his love?

44. Oh! Even the best associates of the Lord who dwell in Vaikuntha look with thrilling awe, their hair standing on end, at His servants — Vakreshvara and the others, whose bodies are always overpowered by absorption in the wondrous rasa radiant with great love. How, then, will one devoid of merit come to love that Gaura?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurahari, surrounded by associates whom even the associates of Narayana admire, is not an object of love for one devoid of piety

Seeing the great souls headed by Vakreshvara, whose bodies are overpowered by constant absorption in the wondrous radiant rasa of prema, even the associates of Narayana in Vaikuntha get gooseflesh. How can one devoid of piety make Sri Gaurasundara, whose servants are these great souls, connoisseurs of madhura-rasa, the object of his love?

Verse 45

दत्त्वा यः कमपि प्रसादमथ सम्भाष्य स्मितश्रीमुखं
दूरात् स्निग्धदृशा निरीक्ष्य च महाप्रेमोत्सवं यच्छति ।
येषां हन्त कुतर्ककर्कशधिया तत्रापि नात्यादरः
साक्षात् पूर्णरसावतारिणि हरौ दुष्टा अमी केवलम् ॥

dattvā yaḥ kamapi prasādamatha sambhāṣya smitaśrīmukhaṁ dūrāt snigdhadṛśā nirīkṣya ca mahāpremotsavaṁ yacchati | yeṣāṁ hanta kutarkakarkaśadhiyā tatrāpi nātyādaraḥ
sākṣāt pūrṇarasāvatāriṇi harau duṣṭā amī kevalam ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yah — He who; kam api — to someone; prasadam — grace (favour); [dattva — having given]; smita-shri-mukham — shines with a softly smiling beautiful face; atha — then; sambhashya — having spoken; durat snigdha-drisha nirikshya ca — and having looked from afar with an affectionate glance; maha-prema-utsavam — the highest bliss of prema; yacchati — bestows; hanta — alas!; yesham — those who; kutarka-karkasha-dhiya — because of a mind hardened by false arguments; tatra sakshat-purna-rasa-avatarini harau api — even towards that Sri Gaurahari, whose nature is to bring down before our eyes, that is, to manifest, the complete rasa of prema; na atyadarah — have no great reverence; ami — they; kevalam dushtah — are simply wicked (have the nature of asuras).

45. He bestows His grace on whoever it may be, then speaks to him, and His beautiful face smiles; from afar He looks at him with a tender glance and gives the festival of great love. Those, alas, whose minds have been coarsened by false reasoning do not duly honour even Him — Hari, descended as the incarnation of complete rasa. They are simply wicked.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Whoever disregards Sri Gaurasundara, who gives love even to those who do not ask, is an asura

He, having shown His grace to someone, shines with a softly smiling beautiful face, then speaks to him, looks at him from afar with an affectionate glance and bestows the highest love. Alas, those who, because of a mind hardened by false arguments, do not show the highest reverence even to Him — Sri Gaurahari, who manifests before our eyes the complete rasa of prema — are nothing but wicked asuras.

Humility (dainya)

Verse 46

वञ्चितोऽस्मि वञ्चितोऽस्मि वञ्चितोऽस्मि न संशयः । विश्वं गौररसे मग्नं स्पर्शोऽपि मम नाभवत् ॥

vañcito'smi vañcito'smi vañcito'smi na saṁśayaḥ |
viśvaṁ gaurarase magnaṁ sparśo'pi mama nābhavat ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): vancitah asmi vancitah asmi vancitah asmi — I am cheated, cheated, certainly cheated; [yatah — because]; vishvam — the whole world; gaura-rase magnam — has plunged into the elevated radiant rasa, never given before (anarpita-cari), bestowed by Sri Gaurasundara, the embodiment of vipralambha; [kintu — but]; mama — of me; [tatra — with it]; sparshah api — even a touch; na abhavat — there was not.

46. I am cheated, I am cheated, I am cheated — there is no doubt! The whole world has been immersed in the rasa of Gaura, and it has not even touched me.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The humility of a connoisseur of the rasa of love for Gaura

I am cheated, cheated, truly I am cheated! The whole world has plunged into the ocean of the rasa of love for Sri Gaura, but me, alas, it has not even touched.

Verse 47

कैर्वा सर्वपुमर्थमौलिरकृतायासैरिहासादितो
नासीद्गौरपदारविन्दरजसा स्पृष्टे महीमण्डले ।
हा हा धिङ् मम जीवनं धिगपि मे विद्यां धिगप्याश्रमं यद्दौर्भाग्यभरादहो मम न तत्सम्बन्धगन्धोऽप्यभूत् ॥ kairvā sarvapumarthamaulirakṛtāyāsairihāsādito

nāsīdgaurapadāravindarajasā spṛṣṭe mahīmaṇḍale | hā hā dhiṅ mama jīvanaṁ dhigapi me vidyāṁ dhigapyāśramaṁ yaddaurbhāgyabharādaho mama na tatsambandhagandho'pyabhūt ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): gaura-pada-aravinda-rajasa — by the pollen of Sri Gaurasundara's lotus feet; mahi-mandale sprishte [sati] — when the earth was touched; iha — in this world; kaih va — by whom; akrita-ayasaih — without effort; sarva-puma-artha-maulih — the crown of all the goals of man, prema; asaditah na asit — was not obtained? (that is, everyone obtained it); ha ha — alas, alas (in grief); mama — my; jivanam dhik — shame on the life; me — my; vidyam api dhik — shame also on the learning (knowledge of the shastras and the like); ashramam api dhik — shame also on the ashrama, tridanda-sannyasa, the fourth ashrama; yat — because; daurbhagya-bharat — through extreme misfortune; aho — oh!; mama — of me; tat-sambandha-gandhah api — even the scent of a connection with that [prema]; na abhut — there was not.

47. Who has not attained here, even without any effort, the crown of all the goals of man, on the earth touched by the dust of Gaura's lotus feet? Alas, alas! Shame on my life, shame on my learning, shame on my ashrama — through my great misfortune I have not had even a scent of connection with Him!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Shame on the learning, the ashrama and the life of one who, at the time of Gaura's descent, remained deprived even of the scent of the rasa of love

When the earth was touched by the pollen of Sri Gaura's lotus feet, who did not obtain "without practice" (without effort) prema, the crown of all the goals of man? But alas, alas, through my extreme misfortune I could not obtain even a particle of that prema! Shame on my life, shame on my learning, shame on my fourth ashrama — tridanda-sannyasa!

Verse 48

उत्ससर्प जगदेव पूरयन् गौरचन्द्रकरुणामहार्णवः ।
बिन्दुमात्रमपि नापतन्महादुर्भगे मयि किमेतदद्भुतम् ॥

utsasarpa jagadeva pūrayan gauracandrakaruṇāmahārṇavaḥ |
bindumātramapi nāpatanmahādurbhage mayi kimetadadbhutam ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): gauracandra-karuna-maha-arnavah — the great ocean of the Gaura-moon's mercy (the OCR is partly lost); jagat purayan eva — completely flooding the world; utsarpa — overflowed its shores (surged up); [kintu — but]; maha-durbhage mayi — on me, extremely unfortunate; bindu-matram api — even a drop of that mercy; na apatat — did not fall; etat kim adbhutam — what a wonder is this? (that is, everyone in the world is flooded with Gaurasundara's mercy; only I, through my extreme misfortune, could not receive even a drop).

48. The great ocean of Gaurachandra's mercy has overflowed its shores and flooded the whole world — yet not a single drop has fallen on me, a great unfortunate. What a wonder is this!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Extremely unfortunate is one deprived of Gaura's merciful glance

The great ocean of Sri Gaurachandra's mercy overflowed its shores and flooded the whole world, but, alas, what a wonder — not a single drop of it fell on an unfortunate one such as me!

Verse 49

कालः कलिर्बलिन इन्द्रियवैरिवर्गाः
श्रीभक्तिमार्ग इह कण्टककोटिरुद्धः ।
हा हा क्व यामि विकलः किमहं करोमि चैतन्यचन्द्र यदि नाद्य कृपां करोषि ॥ kālaḥ kalirbalina indriyavairivargāḥ śrībhaktimārga iha kaṇṭakakoṭiruddhaḥ |

hā hā kva yāmi vikalaḥ kimahaṁ karomi
caitanyacandra yadi nādya kṛpāṁ karoṣi ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kalah kalih — the time is Kali (the promoter of adharma); indriya-vairi-vargah — the hosts of the enemies, the senses; balinah — are very strong; iha — in this age of Kali; shri-bhakti-margah — the supreme radiant path of bhakti; kantaka-koti-ruddhah — is blocked by countless thorns in the form of karma, jnana and the like; [atah — therefore]; [he] caitanya-candra — O Chaitanya-moon; yadi adya kripam — if today mercy; na karoshi — You do not show; [tada — then]; ha ha — alas, alas; vikalah — bewildered (overwhelmed, that is, afflicted by all these faults of Kali); aham — I; kim karomi — what am I to do?; kva — where; yami — am I to go?

49. The time is Kali; the enemies, the senses, are strong; the sacred path of bhakti is here barred by millions of thorns. Alas, alas, where shall I go, distraught? What shall I do, O Chaitanya-chandra, if You do not show mercy today?

Gaudiya-bhashya. In the age of Kali, without Gaura's mercy it is impossible to enter the path of bhakti, blocked by millions of thorns

The time is Kali; the enemies, the senses, are extremely strong, and the supreme radiant path of bhakti is blocked by a net of millions of thorns. Therefore, O Chaitanya-chandra, if You do not show mercy today, what, alas, am I to do, bewildered as I am (that is, having lost my wits in searching for pure bhakti, for in the age of Kali the path of bhakti is covered by many mental speculations); where am I to go?

Verse 50

सोऽप्याश्चर्यमयः प्रभुर्नयनयोर्यन्नाभवद्गोचरो
यन्नास्वादि हरेः पदाम्बुजरसस्तद्यद्गतं तद्गतम् ।
एतावन्मम तावदस्तु जगतीं येऽन्येऽप्यलङ्कुर्वते श्रीचैतन्यपदे निखातमनसस्तैर्यत्प्रसङ्गोत्सवः ॥

so'pyāścaryamayaḥ prabhurnayanayoryannābhavadgocaro
yannāsvādi hareḥ padāmbujarasastadyadgataṁ tadgatam | etāvanmama tāvadastu jagatīṁ ye'nye'pyalaṅkurvate
śrīcaitanyapade nikhātamanasastairyatprasaṅgotsavaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sah api ashcaryamayah prabhuh — even that Lord Gaurahari, full of supreme wonders; yat — that through misfortune; nayanayoh — to the eyes; gocarah na abhavat — did not become visible; yat — or that for some reason; hareh pada-ambuja-rasah — the rasa of Hari's lotus feet; na asvadi — was not tasted; tat gatam tat gatam [eva] — what has been has passed; [kintu — but]; mama — for me; etavat [eva] — only this; [astu — let there be]; shri-caitanya-pade nikhata-manasah — those who have fixed their minds on Sri Chaitanya's lotus feet; ye anye api — others who; jagatim — the earth; alankurvate — adorn; taih — with them; yat prasanga-utsavah — elevated association (pra — excellently, sanga — association) and its bliss; tavat astu — let there be.

50. That wondrous Lord never came before my eyes, I never tasted the rasa of Hari's lotus feet — what is gone is gone. But let me have at least this one thing: the festival of association with those who adorn the earth, their minds fixed in the feet of Sri Chaitanya.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Only association with Gaura's people, the ornaments of the world, is desirable

Though through my misfortune that Lord Gaurahari, full of supreme wonders, never came before my eyes (that is, even seeing Him, I could not see His true nature for lack of the realization of the wise), though for some reason it did not fall to my lot to taste love for Hari's lotus feet — what has been has been. Now I have only one prayer: may I have the festival of elevated association with those other devotees who, having fixed their minds on Sri Chaitanya's lotus feet, still adorn the earth.

Verse 51

दुष्कर्मकोटिनिरतस्य दुरन्तघोर-दुर्वासनानिगडशृङ्खलितस्य गाढम् । क्लिश्यन्मतेः कुमतिकोटिकदर्थितस्य गौरं विनाद्य मम को भवितेह बन्धुः ॥ duṣkarmakoṭiniratasya durantaghoradurvāsanānigaḍaśṛṅkhalitasya gāḍham | kliśyanmateḥ kumatikoṭikadarthitasya

gauraṁ vinādya mama ko bhaviteha bandhuḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): dushkarma-koti-niratasya — of one given to millions of evil deeds; gadham — firmly; duranta-ghora-durvasana-nigada-shrinkhalitasya — bound by the chains of untamable, terrible evil tendencies; klishyat-mateh — with a mind exhausted [by labours for] karma, jnana and the like; kumati-koti-kadarthitasya — led and overpowered by countless people of evil mind, obstinate in karma; mama — to me; gauram vina — except Gaurahari; adya — today; iha — in this world; kah bandhuh bhavita — who will become a friend?

51. I am given to millions of evil deeds, firmly bound in the chains of endless, terrible evil tendencies; my mind is in torment, harassed by millions of false views. Who but Gaura will be my friend here today?

Gaudiya-bhashya. In the age of Kali the only saviour of the fallen is Gaurahari

I am wholly given to millions of evil deeds, firmly bound by the chains of untamable, terrible evil tendencies, my mind is exhausted by labours for karma, jnana and the like, millions of evil thoughts drag me along a false path and overpower me. Who but Gaurahari will today in this world become the friend of one as wretched as I?

Verse 52

हा हन्त हन्त परमोषरचित्तभूमौ
व्यर्थीभवन्ति मम साधनकोटयोऽपि ।

सर्वात्मना तदहमद्भुतभक्तिबीजं श्रीगौरचन्द्रचरणं शरणं करोमि ॥

hā hanta hanta paramoṣaracittabhūmau
vyarthībhavanti mama sādhanakoṭayo'pi | sarvātmanā tadahamadbhutabhaktibījaṁ
śrīgauracandracaraṇaṁ śaraṇaṁ karomi ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ha hanta hanta — alas! alas! alas!; mama — of my; parama-ushara-citta-bhumau — in the supremely barren soil of the heart; sadhana-kotayah api — even millions of practices; vyarthah bhavanti — are lost in vain; tat — therefore; aham — I; sarvatmana — with all my heart; adbhuta-bhakti-bijam — which are the seed of unearthly (aprakrita) bhakti; shri-gauracandra-caranam — the lotus feet of Sri Gaurachandra; sharanam karomi — take as my shelter.

52. Alas, alas! On the utterly barren soil of my heart even millions of my practices go to waste. Therefore with all my soul I take refuge in the feet of Sri Gaurachandra — the wondrous seed of bhakti.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Without the shelter of Gaura's feet all means of practice are fruitless

Alas, alas! In the extremely hard, barren soil of my heart millions of seeds of practice are lost in vain! Therefore I now with all my heart take shelter of the lotus feet of Sri Gaura — the seed of unearthly bhakti.

Verse 53

हा हन्त चित्तभुवि मे परमोषरायां
सद्भक्तिकल्पलतिकाङ्कुरिता कथं स्यात् ।
हृद्येकमेव परमाश्वसनीयमस्ति चैतन्यनाम कलयन्न कदापि शोच्यः ॥ hā hanta cittabhuvi me paramoṣarāyāṁ

sadbhaktikalpalatikāṅkuritā kathaṁ syāt | hṛdyekameva paramāśvasanīyamasti
caitanyanāma kalayanna kadāpi śocyaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ha hanta — alas!; me — of my; parama-usharayam citta-bhuvi — in the extremely barren soil of the heart; katham — how; sat-bhakti-kalpa-latika-ankurita bhavet — will the sprout of bhakti in the form of prema — the sthayi-bhava, or rati — appear?; [kintu — but]; hridi — in the heart; ekam eva — the only; param ashvasaniyam — chief consolation; asti — there is; [yat — that]; caitanya-nama — the name of Chaitanya; kalayan — repeating; kadapi — ever; na shocyah — one is not an object of grief.

53. Alas, alas! How will the sprout of the wish-fulfilling creeper of true bhakti break through on the utterly barren soil of my heart? But in my heart there is one supreme consolation: one who chants the name "Chaitanya" will never be pitiable.

Gaudiya-bhashya. One has only to utter the name of Sri Chaitanya, and even in a hard heart the creeper of the desires of bhakti sprouts

Alas, alas! How will the sprout of prema-bhakti, that is, the sthayi-bhava or rati, grow in the extremely barren soil of my heart? There is no hope! But here is the one supreme consolation: whoever utters the name of Sri Chaitanya never has anything to grieve over.

Verse 54

संसारदुःखजलधौ पतितस्य काम-क्रोधादिनक्रमकरैः कवलीकृतस्य । दुर्वासनानिगडितस्य निराश्रयस्य चैतन्यचन्द्र मम देहि पदावलम्बम् ॥

saṁsāraduḥkhajaladhau patitasya kāmakrodhādinakramakaraiḥ kavalīkṛtasya | durvāsanānigaḍitasya nirāśrayasya
caitanyacandra mama dehi padāvalambam ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [he] caitanya-candra — O Chaitanya-moon!; samsara-duhkha-jaladhau patitasya — to one fallen into the ocean of the miseries of samsara; kama-krodha-adi-nakra-makaraih kavalikritasya — seized by the crocodiles — lust and anger — and by the makaras and the rest; durvasana-nigaditasya — bound by the chains of evil tendencies; nirashrayasya — without support; mama — to me; pada-avalambanam — the shelter of the feet; dehi — give.

54. I have fallen into the ocean of worldly suffering, I have been swallowed by the crocodiles and sea-monsters of lust, anger and the rest, I am fettered by evil tendencies and have no refuge. O Chaitanya-chandra, give me the support of Your feet!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Chaitanya is the shelter of the shelterless

O Chaitanya-chandra, I have fallen into the ocean of worldly miseries, my hands and feet are bound by the chains of evil tendencies, I have no support; the crocodiles and sea monsters (makaras) of lust, anger and the rest have swallowed me. (O Lord! In such a calamity) save me by giving me shelter in the boat of Your feet!

Verse 55

मृग्यापि सा शिवशुकोद्धवनारदाद्यै- राश्चर्यभक्तिपदवी न दवीयसी नः ।
दुर्बोधवैभवपते मयि पामरेऽपि चैतन्यचन्द्र यदि ते करुणाकटाक्षः ॥ mṛgyāpi sā śivaśukoddhavanāradādyairāścaryabhaktipadavī na davīyasī naḥ | durbodhavaibhavapate mayi pāmare'pi

caitanyacandra yadi te karuṇākaṭākṣaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [he] durbodha-vaibhava-pate caitanya-candra — O Chaitanya-moon, master of inconceivable power (shakti); pamare api mayi — even on me, a fallen one; yadi te — if Your; karuna-katakshah — merciful glance; [syat — falls]; [tada — then]; shiva-shuka-uddhava-narada-adyaih api — even by the great souls Shiva, Shuka, Uddhava, Narada and others; mrigya — sought; sa ashcarya-bhakti-padavi — that wondrous path of bhakti; nah — from us; na daviyasi — will not be far.

55. That wondrous path of bhakti which Shiva, Shuka, Uddhava, Narada and others seek is not far even from us, O Chaitanya-chandra, Lord of inconceivable wealth, if Your merciful glance falls even on me, a wretch.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The path of bhakti, hard to reach even for the gods, is by Gaura's mercy accessible even to the fallen

O Chaitanya-chandra, You are the master of inconceivable wealth! If You cast Your merciful glance even on a fallen one such as me, then even for us that supreme, wondrous, radiant path of bhakti, which even the great souls — Shiva, Shuka, Narada, Uddhava and the others — seek, will not be far away.

Verse 56

क्व सा निरङ्कुशा कृपा क्व तद्वैभवमद्भुतम् । क्व सा वत्सलता शौरे गौरे यादृक् तवात्मनि ॥

kva sā niraṅkuśā kṛpā kva tadvaibhavamadbhutam |
kva sā vatsalatā śaure gaure yādṛk tavātmani ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [he] shaure — O Krishna of the Shura dynasty; tava gaure atmani — in Your golden form; yadrik — such as; nirankusha-kripa — causeless mercy; sa kva — where else is such?; tat adbhutam vaibhavam kva — where else is such supremely wondrous glory?; sa vatsalata [ca] kva — where else is such vatsalya (love for the devotees)?

56. O Shauri (Krishna)! Where else is such unrestrained mercy, where such wondrous majesty, where such tenderness as in Yourself in the form of Gaura?

Gaudiya-bhashya. It is impossible to find anyone other than Gaurahari whose mercy is so boundless

O Krishna, lamp of the Shura dynasty! Where else is to be found such causeless mercy as in Your golden form? Where else such wealth, astonishing all the worlds? Where else such love for the devotees?

Part Three

Fidelity to the object of worship. Instruction to the world (verses 57–98)

Fidelity to the object of worship (upasya-nishtha)

Verse 57

स्वतेजसा कृष्णपदारविन्दमहारसावेशितविश्वमीशम् ।
कमप्यशेषश्रुतिगूढवेशं गौराङ्गमङ्गीकुरु मूढचेतः ॥ ५७ ॥

svatejasā kṛṣṇapadāravindamahārasāveśitaviśvamīśam |
kamapyaśeṣaśrutigūḍhaveśaṁ gaurāṅgamaṅgīkuru mūḍhacetaḥ || 57 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [he — O]; mudha-cetah — foolish heart; sva-tejasa — by His own power (influence); krishna-pada-aravinda-maha-rasa-aveshita-vishvam — Him who by the elevated radiant (unnata-ujjvala) rasa of the lotus feet of Sri Krishna, His own form (sva-svarupa), has filled the universe with anuraga (attachment); ashesha-shruti-gudha-vesham — Him who abides secretly among all the shrutis, that is, has entered them in a hidden form; kam api isham gaurangam — that indescribable Supreme, Gaurahari; angikuru — accept, that is, take shelter of His lotus feet.

57. O foolish heart, accept Gauranga — the Lord who by His own splendour has immersed the whole world in the great rasa of Krishna's lotus feet, the indescribable One whose form is hidden in all the shrutis!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Leaving […], everyone must take shelter of Gaurahari, hidden in the shrutis

O foolish heart! Take shelter of the lotus feet of the indescribable Supreme — Sri Gaurasundara, who by His power has filled the whole world with love for the supreme rasa of prema of the lotus feet of Sri Krishna, His own form (sva-svarupa), and who is secretly present in all the shrutis, that is, hidden in the Vedas.

Verse 58

श्रवणमननसङ्कीर्त्यादिभक्त्या मुरारे- र्यदि परमपुमर्थं साधयेत् कोऽपि भद्रम् ।
मम तु परमपारप्रेमपीयूषसिन्धोः किमपि रसरहस्यं गौरधाम्नो नमस्यम् ॥ ५८ ॥

śravaṇamananasaṅkīrtyādibhaktyā murāre-ryadi paramapumarthaṁ sādhayet ko'pi bhadram | mama tu paramapārapremapīyūṣasindhoḥ
kimapi rasarahasyaṁ gauradhāmno namasyam || 58 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yadi kah api — if someone; murareh — of Murari; shravana-manana-sankirti-adi-bhaktya — by the ninefold sadhana-bhakti — hearing, reflection and the rest; parama-puma-artham — the highest goal of man, prema; sadhayet — attains by practice; [tarhi — then]; bhadram — good; let him attain it; mama tu — for me, however; apara-prema-piyusha-sindhoh gaura-dhamnah — of Sri Hari, who has a golden lustre (gaura-kanti) and is the ocean of the nectar of boundless prema; kim api rasa-rahasyam — whatever secret there is in the rasa of bhakti, that is, the treasure of love; param namasyam — is alone worthy of worship.

58. If someone attains the highest goal of man through devotion to Murari — hearing, reflection, sankirtana and the rest — good for him. But for me the object of worship is the indescribable secret of the rasa of Hari clothed in a golden radiance,[1] a shoreless ocean of the nectar of supreme love.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The secret of rasa given by Gaura is more wondrous than the love for Krishna born of practice according to rules (vaidhi)

If someone, worshipping Murari by means of bhakti-yoga — hearing, chanting and the rest — attains the highest goal of man, let him attain it; that is good. For me, however, the only object of worship is that secret treasure of love which is hidden in the rasa of bhakti for Sri Hari in golden lustre — the ocean of the nectar of boundless prema.

Verse 59

ईशं भजन्तु पुरुषार्थचतुष्टयाशा
दासा भवन्तु च विहाय हरेरुपास्यान् ।
किञ्चिद्रहस्यपदलोभितधीरहं तु चैतन्यचन्द्रचरणं शरणं करोमि ॥ ५९ ॥

īśaṁ bhajantu puruṣārthacatuṣṭayāśā
dāsā bhavantu ca vihāya harerupāsyān | kiñcidrahasyapadalobhitadhīraham tu
caitanyacandracaraṇaṁ śaraṇaṁ karomi || 59 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): purusha-artha-catushtaya-ashah — those who long for the four goals — dharma, artha, kama and moksha — some of them; isham — the Supreme; bhajantu — let them worship; [anyan — other]; upasyan — objects of worship; vihaya — leaving; hareh dasah ca bhavantu — let them become exclusive servants of Hari; aham tu — I, however; kincit rahasya-pada-lobhita-dhih [san — being] — longing to taste a certain extremely rare, secret love of Radha and Krishna; caitanya-candra-caranam sharanam karomi — take shelter of the feet of the Chaitanya-moon.

59. Let some worship the Lord in the hope of the four goals of man; let others, giving up other objects of worship, become servants of Hari. But my mind is enticed by a certain secret state, and I take refuge in the feet of Chaitanya-chandra.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The secret love of Radha and Krishna, unattainable even by the exclusive devotees of Krishna, is obtained only in the shelter of Chaitanya's feet

Let someone worship the Lord of the world in the hope of dharma, artha, kama and moksha — let him worship; let someone, leaving all other objects of worship, become an exclusive servant of Sri Hari — let him become so. I, however, longing to taste that extremely rare, secret rasa of the love of Sri Radha and Krishna, take shelter of the feet of Sri Chaitanya-chandra.

Verse 60

निष्ठां प्राप्ता व्यवहृतितितिर्लौकिकी वैदिकी वा
या वा लज्जा प्रहसनसमुद्गाननाट्योत्सवेषु ।
ये वाभूवन्नहह सहजप्राणदेहार्थधर्मा गौरश्चौरः सकलमहरत् कोऽपि मे तीव्रवीर्यः ॥ ६० ॥

niṣṭhāṁ prāptā vyavahṛtitatirlaukikī vaidikī vā yā vā lajjā prahasanasamudgānanāṭyotsaveṣu | ye vābhūvannahaha sahajaprāṇadehārthadharmā
gauraścauraḥ sakalamaharat ko'pi me tīvravīryaḥ || 60 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): laukiki-vaidiki-nishtham prapta va vyavahriti-tatih — that series of worldly and Vedic dealings in which I was firmly established; prahasana-samudgana-natya-utsaveshu ya va lajja — that shame which there was at laughter (jokes), loud chanting, dancing, festivals and the like; ahaha — oh!; ye va sahaja-prana-deha-artha-dharmah — those natural properties that are the cause (support) of life and body; abhuvan — that there were; kah api tivra-viryah gaurah caurah — a certain thief, very powerful, who has assumed the form of Gaura; me sakalam aharat — has stolen all this of mine.

60. The whole series of worldly and Vedic duties in which I was established; my bashfulness at jesting, loud singing, dancing and festivals; the natural duties tied to life and body — alas! all of this has been stolen by a certain thief, Gaura, whose might is irresistible.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari steals away the duties of the body, the properties of the mind and the like

My adherence to worldly and Vedic dealings, my bashfulness at loud laughter, loud chanting, dancing and the like at festivals, and all the natural properties of life and body that I had — all this has been stolen by some thief who has assumed the golden form of Gaura, whose power is irresistible.

Verse 61

सान्द्रानन्दोज्ज्वलरसमयप्रेमपीयूषसिन्धोः
कोटिं वर्षन् किमपि करुणास्निग्धनेत्राञ्चलेन ।
कोऽयं देवः कनककदलीगर्भगौराङ्गयष्टि- श्चेतोऽकस्मान्मम निजपदे गाढयुक्तं चकार ॥ ६१ ॥ sāndrānandojjvalarasamayapremapīyūṣasindhoḥ

koṭiṁ varṣan kimapi karuṇāsnigdhanetrāñcalena | ko'yaṁ devaḥ kanakakadalīgarbhagaurāṅgayaṣṭi-śceto'kasmānmama nijapade gāḍhayuktaṁ cakāra || 61 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): karuna-snigdha-netra-ancalena — with the corners of His eyes, moist with compassion; sandra-ananda-ujjvala-rasamaya-prema-piyusha-sindhoh — of the ocean of the nectar of prema, consisting of rasa that is dense (sandra), that is, […], and radiant (ujjvala), that is, ever renewing itself; kim api — indescribable; kotim varshan — pouring millions; kah ayam — who is this; kanaka-kadali-garbha-gauranga-yashtih devah — the playful (lilamaya) Purusha, whose beautiful slender body is golden like the core of a golden plantain tree; akasmat — suddenly; mama cetah — my heart; nija-pade — on His own, that is, His holy feet; gadha-yuktam cakara — has firmly fixed.

61. Pouring forth millions of oceans of the nectar of love made of the dense and radiant rasa of bliss through the indescribable corner of His eyes moist with compassion — who is this Lord, His slender golden body like the heart of a golden plantain tree, who has suddenly bound my mind fast to His feet?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari forcibly binds the mind to His lotus feet

Who is this indescribable, playful Lord with a golden body like the core of a golden plantain tree, who, pouring from the corners of His eyes, moist with compassion, millions of oceans of the nectar of prema, full of dense, blissful, radiant rasa, has suddenly bound my mind firmly to His lotus feet?

Verse 62

स्वयं देवो यत्र द्रुतकनकगौरः करुणया
महाप्रेमानन्दोज्ज्वलरसवपुः प्रादुरभवत् ।

नवद्वीपे तस्मिन् प्रतिभवनभक्त्युत्सवमये मनो मे वैकुण्ठादपि च मधुरे धाम्नि रमते ॥ ६२ ॥

svayaṁ devo yatra drutakanakagauraḥ karuṇayā mahāpremānandojjvalarasavapuḥ prādurabhavat | navadvīpe tasmin pratibhavanabhaktyutsavamaye
mano me vaikuṇṭhādapi ca madhure dhāmni ramate || 62 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yatra — where; druta-kanaka-gaurah — golden like molten gold; maha-prema-ananda-ujjvala-rasa-vapuh — possessing a body consisting of shringara-rasa in the form of mahabhava; devah — the playful Bhagavan; karunaya — out of mercy (subject to mercy); svayam pradurabhavat — appeared of His own accord; tasmin — in that; prati-bhavana-bhakti-utsavamaye — where every house is full of the festival of the goddess of prema-bhakti; vaikunthat api ca madhure dhamni navadvipe — in Navadvipa, the abode full of a sweetness greater even than Vaikuntha; me manah — my mind; ramate — delights (abides in pastimes).

62. Where God Himself, golden as molten gold, His body the radiant rasa of great love and bliss, appeared out of mercy — in Navadvipa, where every house is a festival of bhakti — in that sweet abode my mind delights even more than in Vaikuntha.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The glory of [Navadvipa], the best abode (pitha) of prema-bhakti

Where by His mercy the playful Bhagavan, golden like molten gold, the embodiment of shringara-rasa in the form of mahabhava, has appeared of His own accord, where every house is full of the festivals of the goddess of prema-bhakti — in that abode, Navadvipa, full of greater sweetness even than Vaikuntha, my mind roams.

Verse 63

यत्तद्वदन्तु शास्त्राणि यत्तद्व्याख्यान्तु तार्किकाः । जीवनं मम चैतन्यपादाम्भोजसुधैव तु ॥ ६३ ॥

yattadvadantu śāstrāṇi yattadvyākhyāntu tārkikāḥ |
jīvanaṁ mama caitanyapādāmbhojasudhaiva tu || 63 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): shastrani — the shastras; yat tat vadatu — let them say whatever they please; tarkikah ca — and the logicians; yat yat vyakhyantu — let them interpret as they please; tu — but; caitanya-pada-ambhoja-sudha eva — the nectar of Chaitanya's lotus feet alone; mama jivanam — is my life.

63. Let the shastras say what they will, let the logicians explain as they will — my life is only the nectar of the lotus feet of Chaitanya.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Fidelity to Gaura's lotus feet

Let the shastras say what they please, let the learned logicians interpret as they like — but the nectar of Sri Chaitanya's lotus feet alone is my life.

Verse 64

पतन्ति यदि सिद्धयः करतले स्वयं दुर्लभाः
स्वयं च यदि सेवकीभवितुमागताः स्युः सुराः ।
किमन्यदिदमेव वा यदि चतुर्भुजं स्याद्वपु-

स्तथापि मम नो मनाक् चलति गौरचन्द्रान्मनः ॥ ६४ ॥

patanti yadi siddhayaḥ karatale svayaṁ durlabhāḥ svayaṁ ca yadi sevakībhavitumāgatāḥ syuḥ surāḥ | kimanyadidameva vā yadi caturbhujaṁ syādvapustathāpi mama no manāk calati gauracandrānmanaḥ || 64 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): durlabhah siddhayah [api] — even extremely rare siddhis; yadi kara-tale svayam patanti — if they come of themselves into my hand; surah — the gods; sevaki bhavitum — to become servants; yadi svayam ca agatah syuh — if they come of their own accord; kim anyat — what more (moreover); yadi va idam eva vapuh — if even this very body; catur-bhujam syat — becomes four-armed, that is, if even sarupya-mukti is obtained; tathapi mama manah — still my mind; gauracandrat — from Gaurachandra; manak no calati — will not swerve in the least.

64. Should rare siddhis fall into my palm of themselves, should the gods themselves come to become my servants, should I even — what more? — have a four-armed body, still my mind would not stir for a moment from Gaurachandra.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Deep attachment to Gaura's lotus feet

Let the extremely rare siddhis — anima and the rest — come of themselves and lie in my palm like an amalaki fruit; let all the gods come of their own accord to serve me; more than that, let even this body of mine become four-armed — still my mind will not swerve a hair's breadth from Sri Gaurachandra.

Verse 65

वासो मे वरमस्तु घोरदहनज्वालावलीपञ्जरे
श्रीचैतन्यपदारविन्दविमुखैर्मा कुत्रचित् सङ्गमः ।
वैकुण्ठादिपदं स्वयं च मिलितं नो मे मनो लिप्सते पादाम्भोजरजश्छटा यदि मनाक् गौरस्य नो रस्यते ॥ ६५ ॥

vāso me varamastu ghoradahanajvālāvalīpañjare
śrīcaitanyapadāravindavimukhairmā kutracit saṅgamaḥ | vaikuṇṭhādipadaṁ svayaṁ ca militaṁ no me mano lipsate pādāmbhojarajaśchaṭā yadi manāk gaurasya no rasyate || 65 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ghora-dahana-jvala-avali-panjare — in a cage of many tongues of terrible flame; varam me vasah astu — better let my dwelling be; [kintu — but, tathapi — still]; shri-caitanya-pada-aravinda-vimukhaih — with those who have turned away from Chaitanya's lotus feet; kutracit — at any time; sangamah — association; ma — not; [astu — let there be]; yadi gaurasya pada-ambhoja-rajah-chata — if the radiance of the pollen of Chaitanya's lotus feet; manak — even a little; no rasyate — cannot be tasted; [tada — then]; me manah — my mind; svayam militam vaikuntha-adi padam ca — even the abode of Vaikuntha and the rest, obtained of themselves, without sadhana and the like; no lipsate — does not wish to obtain.

65. Better for me to live in a cage of the tongues of a terrible fire than to associate anywhere with those who have turned away from the lotus feet of Sri Chaitanya. Even if the abode of Vaikuntha and the rest came to me of itself, my mind would not desire it if it did not taste even a little of the lustre of the dust of Gaura's lotus feet.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Rejection of association with the asuras who have turned away from Gaura

If I must live even in a cage full of terrible tongues of flame — so be it, only let me never have association with people who have turned away from Sri Chaitanya's lotus feet. If my mind does not taste even a little of the radiance of love for the pollen of Sri Gaura's lotus feet, it will not desire even the abode of Vaikuntha and the rest, though it come of itself, without any sadhana.

Verse 66

आस्तां नाम महान् महानिति रवः सर्वक्षमामण्डले
लोके वा प्रकटास्तु नाम महती सिद्धिश्चमत्कारिणी ।
कामं चारुचतुर्भुजत्वमयतामाराध्य विश्वेश्वरं चेतो मे बहु मन्यते नहि नहि श्रीगौरभक्तिं विना ॥ ६६ ॥

āstāṁ nāma mahān mahāniti ravaḥ sarvakṣamāmaṇḍale
loke vā prakaṭāstu nāma mahatī siddhiścamatkāriṇī | kāmaṁ cārucaturbhujatvamayatāmārādhya viśveśvaraṁ
ceto me bahu manyate nahi nahi śrīgaurabhaktiṁ vinā || 66 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sarva-kshama-mandale — throughout the whole circle of the earth; mahan mahan iti ravah — such a report (fame): "he is a great man," "he is a great man"; astam — let there be; nama — (a particle expressing concession); va — or; loke — on earth; mahati — long-lasting; camatkarini siddhih — a supernatural siddhi; prakata astu — let it appear; nama — (a particle expressing concession); [kim va — or else]; vishva-ishvaram — the Lord of the universe, Vishnu; aradhya — worshipping; kamam — desired for oneself; caru-catur-bhujatvam — a charming four-armed form; ayatam — let it come; [kintu — but]; shri-gaura-bhaktim vina — without bhakti for Sri Gaura; me cetah — my mind; [etat sarvam — all this]; na hi bahumanyate na hi — truly does not value, truly does not value.

66. Let the cry go round me over the whole earth: "Great, great!" Let a great and wondrous siddhi be manifested to the world. Let me, worshipping the Lord of the universe, attain a beautiful four-armed form — no, no, without devotion to Sri Gaura my mind values none of this!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Without Gaura's lotus feet, enjoyment, liberation and siddhis are utterly insignificant

Let my fame spread over the whole earth: "Great, great!"; or let an everlasting, unearthly siddhi appear on earth; or let me, worshipping Vishnu, the Lord of the universe, obtain the desired beautiful four-armed form — but without bhakti for Gaura my mind never values any of this, never values it.

Verse 67

चैतन्येति कृपामयेति परमोदारेति नानाविध-प्रेमावेशितसर्वभूतहृदयेत्याश्चर्यधामन्निति ।
गौराङ्गेति गुणार्णवेति रसरूपेति स्वनामप्रिये- त्यश्रान्तं मम जल्पतो जनिरियं यायादिति प्रार्थये ॥ ६७ ॥ caitanyeti kṛpāmayeti paramodāreti nānāvidha-premāveśitasarvabhūtahṛdayetyāścaryadhāmanniti | gaurāṅgeti guṇārṇaveti rasarūpeti svanāmapriyetyaśrāntaṁ mama jalpato janiriyaṁ yāyāditi prārthaye || 67 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [he — O]; caitanya iti — "Chaitanya" (the word "Chaitanya" means the form consisting of being, consciousness and bliss, or He who attracts the hearts of all beings — O such Chaitanya); [he — O]; kripamaya iti — "O merciful one"; [he — O];

parama-udara iti — "O most magnanimous"; [he — O]; nana-vidha-prema-aveshita-sarva-bhuta-hridaya iti — "O You by whom the hearts of all beings are filled with various kinds of prema — dasya, sakhya, vatsalya and madhurya"; [he — O]; ashcarya-dhaman iti — "O possessor of a supremely wondrous lustre like that of molten gold"; [he — O]; gauranga iti — "O Gaurasundara"; [he — O]; guna-arnava iti — "O ocean of auspicious qualities"; [he — O]; rasa-rupa iti — "O embodied form of vipralambha-rasa"; [he — O]; sva-nama-priya iti — "O lover of Your own names" — thus; ashrantam jalpatah — incessantly chanting; mama iyam janih — this life of mine; yayat — may it pass; iti prarthaye — for this alone I pray.

67. "Chaitanya! Merciful One! Supremely generous One! You who have filled the hearts of all beings with love of many kinds! You whose wondrous radiance is like molten gold! Gauranga! Ocean of virtues! Embodiment of rasa! You who love Your own names!" — I pray that, ceaselessly repeating this, I may pass this life.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The prayer of Gaura's devotee

"O Chaitanya-chandra, who attract the hearts of all beings, form of eternity, knowledge and bliss!", "O treasury of mercy!", "O most magnanimous!", "O You who have filled the hearts of all beings with love of various kinds!" (that is, You who fill the hearts of all beings with various love — dasya, sakhya and the rest), "O possessor of a wondrous lustre like that of molten gold!", "O Sri Hari in a golden body!", "O ocean of auspicious qualities!", "O embodied form of the rasa of separation (vipralambha)!", "O lover of Your own names!" — may I pass this life chanting such names: this alone I pray for.

Verse 68

कदा शौरे गौरे वपुषि परमप्रेमरसदे
सदेकप्राणे निष्कपटकृतभावोऽस्मि भविता ।
कदा वा तस्यालौकिकसदनुमानेन मम हृ- द्यकस्मात् श्रीराधापदनखमणिज्योतिरुदगात् ॥ ६८ ॥

kadā śaure gaure vapuṣi paramapremarasade
sadekaprāṇe niṣkapaṭakṛtabhāvo'smi bhavitā | kadā vā tasyālaukikasadanumānena mama hṛ-dyakasmāt śrīrādhāpadanakhamaṇijyotirudagāt || 68 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [he — O]; shaure — Shauri (Krishna, descendant of Shura); [tava — in Your]; parama-prema-rasade — bestowing the highest rasa of prema, that is, bestowing the elevated radiant (unnata-ujjvala) rasa of prema; sat-eka-prane — the very life of the rasika devotees; gaure vapushi — in the Gaura-body; kada — when; nishkapata-krita-bhavah — guileless feeling; bhavita asmi — will arise; kada va — or when; tasya — of that guileless feeling; alaukika-sat-anumanena — by an unearthly, that is, inaccessible to the material senses, true inference, that is, the inference: "where the radiance of the jewel-like toenails of Sri Radha's feet has risen, there is the feeling for Gaurahari"; mama hridi — in my heart; akasmat — suddenly; shri-radha-pada-nakha-mani-jyotih — the radiance of the jewels, the toenails, on the lotus feet of Sri Radha; udagat — will rise (with the word "kada" the past tense is used in the sense of the future).

68. O Shauri! When will I have a guileless feeling for Your body of Gaura, which gives the rasa of supreme love, the one life of the saints? Or when, by an unearthly true inference from that feeling, will the radiance of the jewel-like toenails of Sri Radha suddenly rise in my heart?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Without bhakti for Gaura, rati for Radha is impossible

O Krishna, ornament of the Shura dynasty! When will guileless rati arise in me for Your Gaura-body, which bestows the elevated, radiant rasa of love and is the very life of the rasika devotees? And when, by the transcendental (adhokshaja) inference that proceeds from this guileless rati, will the radiance of the jewel-like toenails of Sri Radhika suddenly rise in my heart?

Verse 69

उद्दामदामनकदामगणाभिराम-मारामरामममविरामगृहीतनाम । कारुण्यधाम कनकोज्ज्वलगौरधाम चैतन्यनाम परमं कलयाम धाम ॥ ६९ ॥

uddāmadāmanakadāmagaṇābhirāmamārāmarāmamavirāmagṛhītanāma | kāruṇyadhāma kanakojjvalagauradhāma
caitanyanāma paramaṁ kalayāma dhāma || 69 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): uddama-damanaka-damam — Him who wears a garland of full-blown damanaka flowers; gana-abhiramam — gana — people, abhitah — wholly, ramayati — gladdens; that is, Him who wholly gladdens multitudes of people; arama-ramam — Him who, staying in a secluded place, experiences bliss within Himself; avirama-grihita-nama — Him who incessantly chants the names "Krishna" and the rest; karunya-dhama — the abode of mercy; kanaka-ujjvala-gaura-dhama — golden, radiant like gold; caitanya-nama paramam dhama — the supreme abode named Chaitanya, that is, the highest shelter; [vayam — we]; kalayamah — contemplate (meditate on).

69. Charming with garlands of luxuriant damanaka flowers, delighting all people, sporting in secluded gardens, ceaselessly taking the Name, the abode of compassion, the abode of Gaura's golden radiance — the supreme abode named Chaitanya we contemplate.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Meditation on Sri Chaitanya

Adorned with garlands of full-blown damanaka flowers, giving complete bliss to multitudes of people, the abode of mercy, with a golden lustre bright as gold — the supreme abode named "Chaitanya," that is, the best shelter, we contemplate.

Verse 70

सदा रङ्गे नीलाचलशिखरशृङ्गे विलसतो
हरेरेव भ्राजन्मुखकमलभृङ्गेक्षणयुगम् ।
समुत्तुङ्गप्रेमोन्मदरसतरङ्गं मृगदृशा- मनङ्गं गौराङ्गं स्मरतु गतसङ्गं मम मनः ॥ ७० ॥

sadā raṅge nīlācalaśikharaśṛṅge vilasato harereva bhrājanmukhakamalabhṛṅgekṣaṇayugam | samuttuṅgapremonmadarasataraṅgaṁ mṛgadṛśāmanaṅgaṁ gaurāṅgaṁ smaratu gatasaṅgaṁ mama manaḥ || 70 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): mama manah — my mind; range nilacala-shikhara-shringe — on the festive summit of Nilachala; sada — always; vilasatah hareh eva — of Hari alone (Jagannathadeva), who sports there; bhrajat-mukha-kamala-bhringa-ikshana-yugam — bhrajat — on the radiant, mukha-kamalam — lotus of the face, tasmin — on it, bhringa-rupam — in the form of bees, ikshana-yugam — the pair of eyes, yasya — whose; that is, Him whose eyes are bees on the radiant lotus of the face; samuttunga-prema-unmada-rasa-tarangam — Him in whom flow the waves of the rasas — joy, pride and the rest — born of the most exalted great prema in the form of mahabhava; mriga-drisham anangam — to doe-eyed women Kandarpa himself; gata-sangam — extremely detached (that is, utterly disinclined to the enjoyment of sambhoga-rasa — looking at women and the like — enacting the pastime of an acharya); gaurangam — Gauranga; smaratu — may it remember.

70. May my mind remember Gauranga, detached from all: His eyes are bees on the shining lotus face of Hari, who ever sports on the festive summit of Niladri;[2] in Him rise high waves of the intoxicating rasa of love; to the doe-eyed He is Ananga (the bodiless Kamadeva) himself.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Meditation on Gaurahari, immersed in mahabhava, dwelling at Nilachala

May my mind remember Sri Gaurasundara — Him whose eyes, like bees, rest on the radiant lotus face of Jagannathadeva, who is ever engaged in pastimes on the festive summit of Nilachala; in whom, in the highest love, which has the nature of mahabhava, flow the waves of rasa — joy, pride and the other [feelings]; who in beauty is Kandarpa himself to the doe-eyed young women; and who at the same time is supremely detached (that is, enacting the role of an acharya, He is extremely detached from the rasa of enjoyment — from looking at women and the like).

Verse 71

अलङ्कारः पङ्केरुहनयननिःस्यन्दिपयसां
पृषद्भिः सन्मुक्ताफलसुललितैर्यस्य वपुषि । उदञ्चद्रोमाञ्चैरपि च परमा यस्य सुषमा तमालम्बे गौरं हरिमरुणरोचिष्णुवसनम् ॥ ७१ ॥

alaṅkāraḥ paṅkeruhanayananiḥsyandipayasāṁ
pṛṣadbhiḥ sanmuktāphalasulalitairyasya vapuṣi | udañcadromāñcairapi ca paramā yasya suṣamā
tamālambe gauraṁ harimaruṇarociṣṇuvasanam || 71 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): aruna-rocishnu-vasanam — Him whose garment is the colour of the red dawn; pankeruha-nayana-nihsyandi-payasam sat-mukta-phala-sulalitaih prishadbhih — by drops of tears flowing from His lotus-like eyes, most charming, like pearls; yasya vapushi alankarah — whose body is adorned; udancat-romancaih api ca — and also by the hairs standing on end, that is, by the blazing (uddipta) sattvika-bhavas — the thrill born of prema and the rest — by which the beauty of His body is produced; tam — that; gauram — golden; harim — Hari; alambe — I take as my shelter.

71. His body is adorned with drops of tears flowing from His lotus eyes, lovely as the finest pearls; His supreme beauty is also the thrill of His hair standing on end. I take shelter of Gaura — Hari wearing a garment the colour of the red dawn.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Meditation on Gaurahari with blazing sattvika-bhavas

He whose garment is the colour of the dawn; whose holy body is adorned with lovely drops of tears like pearls, flowing from His lotus eyes; whose body is beautified also by the blazing (uddipta) sattvika-bhavas — the thrill of the hair born of mahabhava and the rest — in that Sri Hari, Gauranga, I take shelter.

Verse 72

कन्दर्पादपि सुन्दरः सुरसरित्पूरादहो पावनः
शीतांशोरपि शीतलः सुमधुरो माध्वीकसारादपि ।
दाता कल्पमहीरुहादपि महास्निग्धो जनन्या अपि

प्रेम्णा गौरहरिः कदा नु हृदि मे ध्यातः पदं धास्यति ॥ ७२ ॥

kandarpādapi sundaraḥ surasaritpūrādaho pāvanaḥ śītāṁśorapi śītalaḥ sumadhuro mādhvīkasārādapi | dātā kalpamahīruhādapi mahāsnigdho jananyā api premṇā gauraharihiḥ kadā nu hṛdi me dhyātaḥ padaṁ dhāsyati || 72 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kandarpat api sundarah — more beautiful even than Kandarpa ([…] — he who is able to scorn even him, that is, to crush even Brahma's pride consisting in beauty and power — Kandarpa; more beautiful even than him; the worldly Kandarpa, or Madana, produces agitation and bewilderment, while Gaurahari's beauty, destroying agitation and bewilderment, gives one to taste the highest happiness of the bliss of prema); aho — oh! (expresses wonder); sura-sarit-purat pavanah — purifying more than the stream of the heavenly river ("sura-sarit" — the Ganga, the best of all purifiers; "pura" — her stream; purifying more even than it: the stream of the Ganga destroys sins but cannot purify a sinful heart, while Sri Gaurasundara, having purified the heart, causes a stream of the highest prema to rise in it — therefore His purity and wonderfulness surpass those of the Ganga's stream); shita-amshoh api shitalah — cooler even than the moon (he whose rays are cool is the moon; cooler even than it: the moon can remove external darkness, heat and the like, while Sri Gaurasundara completely destroys the darkness of the heart — the gloom of ignorance accumulated over millions of births — and the heat of suffering, and floods it with the […] rays of the bliss of prema); madhvika-sarat api sumadhurah — sweeter even than the finest honey (madhvika-sara, that is, amrita; sweeter even than it: the sweetness of amrita only the gods can taste, and as the fruit of tasting it worldly pride, envy and the like arise in them, while Gaura's sweetness is inaccessible even to the gods, and as the result of tasting it worldly pride, envy and the like completely vanish and the bliss of prema appears); kalpa-mahiruhat api data — more generous even than the wish-fulfilling tree (the wish-fulfilling tree gives fruit to one who asks it, while Sri Gaurasundara is so generous that He Himself, becoming the petitioner, bestows the wealth of prema and the like even on the unworthy and those who do not ask); jananyah api maha-snigdhah — more tender even than a mother (a mother's love brings poisonous fruit in the future, for it is directed to the perishable body and the like, while Sri Gaurasundara's love is directed to the soul of the living being, and therefore it obtains the right to […] the highest bliss of prema; besides, a mother loves only her own child, while Sri Gaurasundara sprinkles all living beings with the rasa of love); gaura-harih — Gaurahari; dhyatah — becoming the object of meditation; kada nu — when indeed; me hridi — in my heart; premna — with love; padam dhasyati — will step.

72. More beautiful than Kandarpa, — oh! — purer than the floods of the river of the gods, cooler than the moon, sweeter than the essence of the finest honey, more generous than the wish-fulfilling tree, more tender in His love than a mother — when will Gaurahari, on whom I meditate, set His foot in my heart with love?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurahari's beauty, purifying power, coolness and bestowal of sweetness

More beautiful than Kandarpa, purer than the stream of the Ganga, the saviour of the fallen, cooler than the moon, sweeter than nectar, more generous than the wish-fulfilling tree, more tender in love than a mother — when will Gaurahari, becoming the object of my meditation, step lovingly into my heart?

Verse 73

पुञ्जं पुञ्जं मधुरमधुरप्रेममाध्वीरसानां
दत्त्वा दत्त्वा स्वयमुरुदयो मोदयन् विश्वमेतत् ।

एको देवः कटितटमिलन्मञ्जुमञ्जिष्ठवासा भासा निर्भर्त्सितनवतडित्कोटिरेव प्रियो मे ॥ ७३ ॥

puñjaṁ puñjaṁ madhuramadhurapremamādhvīrasānāṁ
dattvā dattvā svayamurudayo modayan viśvametat |
eko devaḥ kaṭitaṭamilanmañjumañjiṣṭhavāsā
bhāsā nirbhartsitanavataḍitkoṭireva priyo me || 73 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): madhura-madhura-prema-madhvi-rasanam — of the rasas of the nectar of prema, sweeter than sweet; punjam punjam — in heaps; dattva dattva — giving again and again; etat vishvam — this world; modayan — gladdening; kati-tata-milat-manju-manjishtha-vasah — manju — very charming, manjishtha — a particular red creeper; He whose garment is dyed with it, that is, who wears on His hips a charming ochre-coloured (gairika) garment; bhasa-nirbhartsita-nava-tadit-koti — He who by His radiance has put to shame millions of lightnings, that is, possessing a bodily radiance that puts to shame millions of lightnings; svayam uru-dayah — Himself supremely merciful; ekah devah eva — eka — non-dual, or having neither equal nor superior; deva — the Purusha devoted to pastimes; me priyah [astu] — may He be dear to me.

73. Giving again and again heaps upon heaps of the sweetest intoxicating honey of love, Himself boundlessly merciful, delighting this world — the one Lord, on whose hips is a lovely madder-coloured cloth, whose lustre puts to shame millions of fresh lightning flashes — He alone is dear to me.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Love for Gaurahari in saffron cloth, the giver of love

He who, again and again giving heaps of the nectar rasa of love, sweeter than the sweet, gladdens this world; who wears on His hips a lovely saffron (gairika) cloth; whose bodily radiance puts to shame millions of new lightnings — that boundlessly merciful, non-dual Purusha Himself, engaged in spiritual pastimes — may He alone be dear to me.

Verse 74

कान्त्या निन्दितकोटिकोटिमदनः श्रीमन्मुखेन्दुच्छटा- विच्छायीकृतकोटिकोटिशरदुन्मीलत्तुषारच्छविः ।
औदार्येण च कोटिकोटिगुणितं कल्पद्रुमं ह्यल्पयन् गौरो मे हृदि कोटिकोटिजनुषां भाग्यैः पदं धास्यति ॥ ७४ ॥

kāntyā ninditakoṭikoṭimadanaḥ śrīmanmukhenducchaṭā-vicchāyīkṛtakoṭikoṭiśaradunmīlattuṣāracchaviḥ | audāryeṇa ca koṭikoṭiguṇitaṁ kalpadrumaṁ hyalpayan
gauro me hṛdi koṭikoṭijanuṣāṁ bhāgyaiḥ padaṁ dhāsyati || 74 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kantya — by the charming beauty of His form; nindita-koti-koti-madanah — He who puts to shame millions upon millions of Kandarpas; shrimat-mukha-indu-chata-vicchayikrita-koti-koti-sharad-unmilat-tushara-cchavih — shrimat-mukha-indu — the moon of the face, full of supreme beauty; chata — radiance; tena — by it; vicchayikrita — eclipsed; koti-koti sharad-unmilat-tushara-cchavi — millions upon millions of rising autumn moons, white as snow; that is, He by the radiance of whose most beautiful moon-face millions upon millions of autumn moons are eclipsed; audaryena ca koti-koti-gunitam kalpa-drumam hi alpayan — He by whose great generosity even millions of wish-fulfilling trees are belittled; gaurah —

Gaurasundara; koti-koti-janusham — of countless births; bhagyaih — by the fruits of good deeds (sukriti); me hridi — in my heart; padam dhasyati — will step; [kim — will He?].

74. His beauty puts to shame millions upon millions of Madanas; the radiance of His beautiful moon-face eclipses the light of millions upon millions of rising autumn moons; by His generosity He belittles the wish-fulfilling tree multiplied millions upon millions of times — through the good fortune of millions upon millions of births Gaura will set His foot in my heart.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurahari's incomparable form and qualities

He whose captivating beauty and charm put to shame millions upon millions of Kandarpas, by the splendour of whose most beautiful moon-face the radiance of millions upon millions of rising autumn moons grows dim, whose great generosity belittles millions upon millions of wish-fulfilling trees — will that Gaurasundara step into my heart by virtue of the heaps of pious merits (sukriti) of millions upon millions of births?

Verse 75

क्षणं क्षीणः पीनः क्षणमहह साश्रुः क्षणमथ
क्षणं स्मेरः शीतः क्षणमनलतप्तः क्षणमपि ।
क्षणं धावन् स्तब्धः क्षणमधिकजल्पन् क्षणमहो क्षणं मूको गौरः स्फुरतु मम देहो भगवतः ॥ ७५ ॥

kṣaṇaṁ kṣīṇaḥ pīnaḥ kṣaṇamahaha sāśruḥ kṣaṇamatha kṣaṇaṁ smeraḥ śītaḥ kṣaṇamanalataptaḥ kṣaṇamapi | kṣaṇaṁ dhāvan stabdhaḥ kṣaṇamadhikajalpan kṣaṇamaho
kṣaṇaṁ mūko gauraḥ sphuratu mama deho bhagavataḥ || 75 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kshanam kshinah — for a moment emaciated (the state in which Srimati Radhika was in prolonged vipralambha, that is, in the separation of mathura-viraha — Gaurahari, imbued with that mood, for a moment emaciated in separation from Krishna); kshanam [ca] pinah — and for a moment full (again in vipralambha, […], for a moment full); ahaha — alas!; kshanam sashruh — for a moment full of tears of bliss; atha — then; kshanam shitah — for a moment cooled (scorched by the fire of separation from Krishna, again at […] for a moment cooled); kshanam smerah — for a moment gently smiling (from jokes and laughter with […] Krishna); [kshanam] anala-taptah — scorched by fire (in prema-vaicittya, that is, even while near Krishna, again for a moment scorched by the fire of future separation from Him); kshanam dhavan — for a moment running (absorbed in the thought "Krishna is going away," for a moment running after Him); kshanam stabdhah — for a moment stunned (again coming to another place and […], for a moment stunned; stambha is the first of the eight sattvika-bhavas); aho kshanam adhika-jalpan — oh! for a moment talking much (for a moment uttering prajalpa: "O libertine, O destroyer of the vow of chastity, do not touch me!"); kshanam [ca] mukah — and for a moment mute (for some time keeping silent from the weight of offended pride, mana); [etadrishah — such]; bhagavatah dehah — the body of Bhagavan; gaurah — Gaurasundara; mama [hridaye — in the heart] sphuratu — may He appear in my heart.

75. Now wasted, now full, — ah! — now in tears, now smiling, now cold, now burning as if with fire, now running, now stunned, now speaking without end, — oh! — now silent: may Gaura, the very body of the Lord, appear in my heart.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari, in whom there is a mingling of feelings (bhava-shabalya) — vibhavas, anubhavas and the rest

Now emaciated, now full, now with eyes full of tears of the bliss of love, now with a smile on His face, now cool, now burning, now running, now stunned, now talkative, now silent — may such a Gaura-body of Krishna appear in my heart.

Verse 76

पात्रापात्रविचारणां न कुरुते न स्वं परं वीक्षते
देयादेयविमर्शको नहि न वा कालप्रतीक्षः प्रभुः ।
सद्यो यः श्रवणेक्षणप्रणमनध्यानादिना दुर्लभं दत्ते भक्तिरसं स एव भगवान् गौरः परं मे गतिः ॥ ७६ ॥

pātrāpātravicāraṇāṁ na kurute na svaṁ paraṁ vīkṣate deyādeyavimarśako nahi na vā kālapratīkṣaḥ prabhuḥ | sadyo yaḥ śravaṇekṣaṇapraṇamanadhyānādinā durlabhaṁ
datte bhaktirasaṁ sa eva bhagavān gauraḥ paraṁ me gatiḥ || 76 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yah prabhuh — that Prabhu (prabhu — the independent Lord) who; patra-apatra-vicaranam — deliberation on whether a person is worthy or unworthy; na kurute — does not make; na svam param vikshate — does not look to whether one is His own or another's; na hi deya-adeya-vimarshakah — does not reflect or deliberate on what may be given and what may not; na va kala-pratikshah — nor waits for a suitable or unsuitable time; shravana-ikshana-pranamana-dhyana-adina — by hearing, seeing, bowing, meditation and the like; durlabham bhakti-rasam — the rasa of bhakti, hard to attain; sadyah datte — at once bestows; sah bhagavan gaurah eva — that very Bhagavan Gaurasundara; me param gatih — is my only refuge.

76. The Lord does not consider whether a person is worthy or unworthy, does not look whether he is His own or another's, does not weigh what may be given and what may not, does not wait for a suitable time. He who at once grants the rare rasa of bhakti through hearing about Him, seeing Him, bowing down, meditation and the rest — that Lord Gaura is my supreme refuge.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari, who does not consider place, time or the worthiness of the recipient, and impartially bestows love

That Lord (the independent Ishvara) who does not consider whether a person is worthy or unworthy, does not look to whether he is His own or another's, does not deliberate on what may be given and what may not, and does not wait for a suitable time — who at once bestows the rasa of bhakti, hard to attain by hearing, seeing, bowing, meditation and the like — that Bhagavan Gaurasundara is my only refuge.

Verse 77

पापीयानपि हीनजातिरपि दुःशीलोऽपि दुष्कर्मणां
सीमापि श्वपचाधमोऽपि सततं दुर्वासनाढ्योऽपि च ।
दुर्देशप्रभवोऽपि तत्र विहितावासोऽपि दुःसङ्गतो नष्टोऽप्युद्धृत एव येन कृपया तं गौरमेवाश्रये ॥ ७७ ॥

pāpīyānapi hīnajātirapi duḥśīlo'pi duṣkarmaṇāṁ sīmāpi śvapacādhamo'pi satataṁ durvāsanāḍhyo'pi ca | durdeśaprabhavo'pi tatra vihitāvāso'pi duḥsaṅgato
naṣṭo'pyuddhṛta eva yena kṛpayā taṁ gauramevāśraye || 77 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): papiyan api — even the greatest sinner (like Gopala Chapala and others, struck with leprosy); hina-jatih api — even the low-born (like tailors, yavanas and other low castes); duhshilah api — even a man of evil character; dushkarmanam sima api — even one who has reached the limit of extremely evil deeds (the abduction of others' wives, drunkenness and the like), like Jagai, Madhai and their like; shvapaca-adhamah api — even one worse than a candala; satatam durvasana-adhyah api — even one forever given to evil desires; durdesha-prabhavah api ca — and even one born in an evil land (where there is no Ganga or where the Pandavas did not go — in such lands devoid of the Ganga and the Pandavas); tatra vihita-avasah api — even one living in those places as a consequence of evil deeds; duhsangatah nashtah api — even one ruined by evil association; yena kripaya eva uddhritah — He by whose mercy alone was delivered; tam gauram eva — that Gaurasundara alone; ashraye — I take as my shelter.

77. Be a man the most sinful, low-born, vicious, the very limit of evil deeds, lower than a dog-eater, ever full of evil tendencies, born in a bad land and dwelling there, ruined by bad company — even he is delivered by the mercy of Gaura. I take refuge in that Gaura alone.

Gaudiya-bhashya. An example for the preceding words

He by whose mercy were delivered even the greatest sinners such as Gopala Chapala, the low-born such as the yavana tailor and others, people of evil character who had reached the limit of evil deeds — Jagai, Madhai and their like, given to sin and forbidden acts — beings lower than the dog-eating candala, always given to evil tendencies, born in an evil land where there is no Ganga and where the Pandavas never set foot, and living in an evil land, and also those ruined by evil association — in that Gaurasundara I take my only refuge.

Verse 78

कलिन्दतनयातटे स्फुरदमन्दवृन्दावनं
विहाय लवणाम्बुधेः पुलिनपुष्पवाटीं गतः ।
धृतारुणपटः परीहृतसुपीतवासा हरि- स्तिरोहितनिजच्छविः प्रकटगौरिमा मे गतिः ॥ ७८ ॥ kalindatanayātaṭe sphuradamandavṛndāvanaṁ

vihāya lavaṇāmbudheḥ pulinapuṣpavāṭīṁ gataḥ | dhṛtāruṇapaṭaḥ parīhṛtasupītavāsā hari-stirohitanijacchaviḥ prakaṭagaurimā me gatiḥ || 78 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kalinda-tanaya-tate — Kalinda is the mountain Kalinda, its tanaya — daughter, the Yamuna, tate — on the bank; or Kalinda means the sun, his daughter is the Yamuna, on her bank; that is, on the bank of the Yamuna; sphurat-amanda-vrindavanam — the radiant, most charming Vrindavana; vihaya — leaving; lavana-ambudheh — of the salt ocean; pulina-pushpa-vatim — to the flower garden on the shore; gatah — He who went; parihrita-supita-vasah — He who, leaving His most beautiful yellow garment; dhrita-aruna-patah — put on a garment the colour of the dawn; tirohita-nija-cchavih — He who, concealing His own dark colour, like an indranila sapphire (in the anuvada: covering it with the feeling and lustre of His most beloved Srimati Radhika); prakata-gaurima — manifested a golden lustre; harih — that Sri Hari; me gatih — is my shelter.

78. Leaving radiant Vrindavana on the bank of the daughter of Kalinda (the Yamuna), He went to the flowering gardens on the shore of the salt ocean; He put on a garment the colour of dawn, casting aside His beautiful yellow one; concealing His own complexion, He manifested a golden hue. That Hari is my refuge.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Bhagavan Krishna Himself, clothed in the feeling and lustre of Radha, is Gaura

He who left the radiant, beautiful Vrindavana on the bank of the daughter of Kalinda and went to the flowering gardens on the shore of the salt ocean; who left His most beautiful yellow garment and put on a garment the colour of the dawn; who concealed His own colour, that is, His dark colour (with the feeling and lustre of His most beloved Srimati Radhika), and manifested a golden lustre — that Sri Hari is my only refuge.

Instruction to the world (loka-shiksha)

Verse 79

अरे मूढा गूढां विचिनुत हरेर्भक्तिपदवीं
दवीयस्या दृष्ट्याप्यपरिचितपूर्वां मुनिवरैः ।
न विश्रम्भश्चित्ते यदि यदि च दौर्लभ्यमिव तत् परित्यज्याशेषं व्रजत शरणं गौरचरणम् ॥ ७९ ॥ are mūḍhā gūḍhāṁ vicinuta harerbhaktipadavīṁ davīyasyā dṛṣṭyāpyaparicitapūrvāṁ munivaraiḥ | na viśrambhaścitte yadi yadi ca daurlabhyamiva tat parityajyāśeṣaṁ vrajata śaraṇaṁ gauracaraṇam || 79 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): are mudhah — ho, fools; muni-varaih daviyasya drishtya api aparicita-purvam — that which the sages formerly could not know even with their far-seeing vision; gudham — secret; hareh bhakti-padavim — the path of bhakti to Sri Hari; vicinuta — seek; yadi citte na vishrambhah — if there is no faith in the heart (because the path of bhakti is too secret); yadi ca daurlabhyam iva — and if it seems hard to reach; tat [sarvam] ashesham parityajya — giving up all that entirely; gaura-caranam sharanam vrajata — take shelter of Gaurahari's feet.

79. Hey, fools! Seek out the secret path of devotion to Hari, unknown before to the best of sages even with their far-seeing vision. And if there is no faith in your heart, or if it seems unattainable — give up everything and take refuge at Gaura's feet.

Gaudiya-bhashya. To obtain the great love, hard to reach even for the lords of the gods, one should take shelter of Gaurahari's feet

Ho, fools! Seek that secret path of devotion to Hari which formerly even the sages could not know with their far-seeing vision (foresight). And if there is no faith in your heart, if it seems hard to reach — give up all that (your endeavours) entirely and take shelter at Gaurahari's feet.

Verse 80

दधन्मूर्धन्यूर्ध्वं मुकुलितकराम्भोजयुगलं
गलन्नेत्राम्भोभिः स्नपितमृदुगण्डस्थलयुगम् ।
दुकूलेनावीतं नवकमलकिञ्जल्करुचिना परं ज्योतिर्गौरं कनकरुचिचौरं प्रणमत ॥ ८० ॥

dadhanmūrdhanyūrdhvaṁ mukulitakarāmbhojayugalaṁ
galannetrāmbhobhiḥ snapitamṛduganḍasthalayugam | dukūlenāvītaṁ navakamalakiñjalkarucinā
paraṁ jyotirgauraṁ kanakarucicauraṁ praṇamata || 80 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): mukulita-kara-ambhoja-yugalam — the pair of lotus palms joined (in anjali); murdhni — on the head; urdhvam — raised upwards; dadhat — holding; galat-netra-ambhobhih — with the water flowing from the eyes; snapita-mridu-ganda-sthala-yugam — Him whose tender cheeks are bathed; nava-kamala-kinjalka-rucina — with a lustre like that of the filaments of a fresh lotus; dukulena — with a cloth; avitam — adorned; kanaka-ruci-cauram — kanaka — gold, ruci — its lustre, caura — the thief; that is, Him who has taken on the golden lustre; param jyotih — the supreme light; gauram — to Gaurasundara; pranamata — bow down (offer pranama).

80. He holds His folded lotus hands above His head like a bud; His tender cheeks are bathed in streaming tears; He is clothed in cloth the colour of the filaments of a fresh lotus. Bow to that supreme light — Gaura, the thief of golden lustre!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Obeisance to Gaurahari, bathed in tears at the sight of Jagannatha

He who holds His joined lotus palms high above His head, who bathes His tender cheeks with flowing tears, who is adorned with a garment having the lustre of the filaments of a fresh lotus — bow down to that Gaurasundara, clothed in the lustre of molten gold, the supreme light.

Verse 81

उच्चैः कीर्तय नाम गोकुलपतेरुद्दामनामावलीं
यद्वा भावय तस्य दिव्यमधुरं रूपं जगन्मङ्गलम् ।
हन्त प्रेममहारसोज्ज्वलपदे नाशापि ते सम्भवेत् श्रीचैतन्यमहाप्रभोर्यदि कृपादृष्टिः पतेन्न त्वयि ॥ ८१ ॥

uccaiḥ kīrtaya nāma gokulapateruddāmanāmāvalīṁ
yadvā bhāvaya tasya divyamadhuraṁ rūpaṁ jaganmaṅgalam | hanta premamahārasojjvalapade nāśāpi te sambhavet
śrīcaitanyamahāprabhoryadi kṛpādṛṣṭiḥ patenna tvayi || 81 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [he bhratah — O brother]; uccaih — loudly; gokula-pateh — of the son of the king of Vraja; uddama-nama-avalim — the series of names possessing the highest power; nama — (an ornament of speech, in the sense of assent or certainty); kirtaya — chant; yat va — or; tasya — His; divya-madhuram — radiant, full of sweetness; jagat-mangalam — bringing good to the world; rupam bhavaya — contemplate the form; yadi shri-caitanya-mahaprabhoh — if Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's; kripa-drishtih — merciful glance; tvayi — on you; na patet — does not fall; hanta — alas; [tada — then]; prema-maha-rasa-ujjvala-pade — in the object of ujjvala (the radiant rasa), in which, because of prema, there is the "mahat," the highest rasa; ujjvala is shringara, "pada" — that is, the object; shringara-rasa is called ujjvala-rasa; te — of you; asha api na sambhavet — not even hope is possible.

81. Loudly chant the mighty series of the names of the Lord of Gokula, or contemplate His divine, sweet form, which blesses the world — but alas, you will not even have hope of the state of the radiant great rasa of love if the merciful glance of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu does not fall upon you.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Without Mahaprabhu's mercy it is impossible to obtain the elevated, radiant rasa

O brother! Loudly chant the mighty series of names of the lord of Gokula or meditate on His divinely sweet form, which blesses the world — but if Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's merciful glance has not fallen on you, you cannot have even a hope of that supreme, elevated and radiant rasa of love.

Verse 82

अये न कुरु साहसं तव हसन्ति सर्वोद्यमं
जनाः परित उन्मदा हरिरसामृतास्वादिनः ।
इदं तु निभृतं शृणु प्रणयवस्तु प्रस्तूयते यदेव निगमेषु तत्पतिरयं हि गौरः परम् ॥ ८२ ॥

aye na kuru sāhasaṁ tava hasanti sarvodyamaṁ janāḥ parita unmadā harirasāmṛtāsvādinaḥ |
idaṁ tu nibhṛtaṁ śṛṇu praṇayavastu prastūyate

yadeva nigameṣu tatpatirayaṁ hi gauraḥ param || 82 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): aye — ho! [bhratah — brother]; [shri-caitanya-pada-ashrayam vina anya-sadhaneshu — in other sadhanas apart from the shelter of Sri Chaitanya's feet]; sahasam na kuru — do not act rashly, that is, do not take them up hastily; [yatah — since]; hari-rasa-amrita-asvadinah — those expert in tasting the nectar of the bhakti-rasa of Hari, who steals the heart and its wealth, that is, of Sri Krishna; [atah eva — therefore]; paritah unmadah — those in whom intoxication, that is, the bliss of prema, has wholly arisen — these devotees of Gaura; tava — at your; sarva-udyamam — every kind of endeavour; hasanti — laugh; idam tu nibhritam shrinu — but hear this secret word; nigameshu — in the Vedas and other shastras; yat eva pranaya-vastu prastuyate — that which is set forth as the object (substance) of love; tat-patih — its master, that is, its object (vishaya); ayam hi — certainly this; [param — only]; gaurah — Gaura.

82. Hey, do not rashly take up anything else! People all around, intoxicated with the taste of the nectar of Hari-rasa, laugh at all your efforts. Hear, then, this secret: that which in the Vedas is presented as the object of love — its Lord is this Gaura, He alone.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Instruction to take shelter of the feet of Gaura, the source of all perfections

Ho, do not rashly throw yourself into any sadhana other than the shelter of Sri Chaitanya's feet: Gaura's people, wholly intoxicated by drinking the nectar rasa of love for Krishna, laugh at all your endeavours. And now hear one most secret word: that which in all the Vedas and other shastras is set forth as the object of love — know for certain: its only object (vishaya) is this Sri Gauranga.

Verse 83

ज्ञानादिवर्त्मविरुचिं व्रजनाथभक्ति- रीतिं न वेद्मि न च सद्गुरवो मिलन्ति । हा हन्त हन्त मम कः शरणं विमूढ गौरो हरिस्तव न कर्णपथं गतोऽस्ति ॥ ८३ ॥

jñānādivartmaviruciṁ vrajanāthabhakti-rītiṁ na vedmi na ca sadguravo milanti | hā hanta hanta mama kaḥ śaraṇaṁ vimūḍha gauro haristava na karṇapathaṁ gato'sti || 83 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): jnana-adi-vartma-virucim — producing distaste for the paths of knowledge (jnana — the knowledge of Brahman without distinctions; "and the rest" — the regular and occasional duties, adhyatma-yoga, dry renunciation and the like); vrajanatha-bhakti-ritim — the method of worshipping Sri Krishna; na vedmi — I do not know; na ca mama sat-guravah milanti — and true gurus do not come my way; mama kah sharanam [bhavita — will be] — what is my way (who is my shelter)?; ha hanta hanta — alas, alas!; [are — ho]; vimudha — O, you are a thorough fool!; gaurah harih — Gaurahari; tava karna-patham na gatah asti — has He not entered the path of your ears? — that is, quickly bring the worship of Gaurahari into the path of your ears; delay no longer.

83. "I do not know the way of devotion to the Lord of Vraja, which turns one away from the path of knowledge and the rest; I do not meet true gurus; alas, alas, who is my refuge?" — O fool! has Gaura-Hari never reached your ears?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari is worthy of worship even for one who lacks pure bhakti and […]

"The path of worship of Sri Krishna, which produces distaste for the path of knowledge of the undifferentiated Brahman and the like — that I do not know! And I do not happen to meet true gurus!

(What am I to do now?) In whom am I to seek shelter?" — Alas, alas, what a fool you are! (You still cannot decide who your shelter is?) Has not even the name of Gaurahari entered your ears?

Verse 84

वृथावेशं कर्मस्वपनयत वार्तामपि मनाक्
न कर्णाभ्यर्णेऽपि क्वचन नयताध्यात्मसरणेः ।
न मोहं देहादौ भजत परमाश्चर्यमधुरः पुमर्थानां मौलिर्मिलति भवतां गौरकृपया ॥ ८४ ॥

vṛthāveśaṁ karmasvapanayata vārtāmapi manāk
na karṇābhyarṇe'pi kvacana nayatādhyātmasaraṇeḥ | na mohaṁ dehādau bhajata paramāścaryamadhuraḥ
pumarthānāṁ maulirmilati bhavatāṁ gaurakṛpayā || 84 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): karmasu — in the regular and occasional rites; vritha-avesham — vain absorption; apanayata — cast away; adhyatma-saraneh — adhyatma — the reasoning "neti, neti" of the adherents of the ascending path (aroha-vadis), sarani — its path; manak vartam api — even the slightest talk; kvacana — ever; karna-abhyarne api — even into the vicinity of the ears; na nayata — do not let come; deha-adau — in the body and the rest (the words "and the rest" mean home, family, country, society and all other things); moham na bhajata — do not fall into delusion; [tada — then]; parama-ashcarya-madhurah — possessing the highest, astonishing, special sweetness; puma-arthanam maulih — the crown of the goals of man, the fifth goal, prema; bhavatam — by you; gaura-kripaya — by Gaurasundara's mercy; milati — will be obtained (the present tense in the sense of the near future).

84. Put away your vain absorption in rituals; do not let even talk of the path of contemplation of the Self come anywhere near your ears; do not cherish the delusion of the body and the rest — and by Gaura's mercy the crown of the goals of man, supremely wondrous and sweet, will come to you.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Leaving […], one should pray only for Gaura's mercy, which fulfils all goals

Cast far away your vain absorption in the regular, occasional and other rites (karma); never let even the slightest word about the path of ascending reasoning (aroha) come even to the threshold of your ears, and never fall into delusion about the body and everything connected with it — then by the mercy of Sri Gaurasundara you will obtain the crown of the goals of man: love for Krishna, full of supreme wondrous sweetness.

Verse 85

अलं शास्त्राभ्यासैरलमहह तीर्थाटनिकया
सदा योषिद्व्याघ्र्यास्त्रसत वितथां थूत्कुरु दिवम् ।
तृणंमन्या धन्याः श्रयत किल सन्न्यासिकपटं नटन्तं गौराङ्गं निजरसमदादम्बुधितटे ॥ ८५ ॥

alaṁ śāstrābhyāsairalamahaha tīrthāṭanikayā
sadā yoṣidvyāghryāstrasata vitathāṁ thūtkuru divam | tṛṇaṁmanyā dhanyāḥ śrayata kila sannyāsikapaṭaṁ
naṭantaṁ gaurāṅgaṁ nijarasamadādambudhitaṭe || 85 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ahaha — alas!; sada yoshit-vyaghryah trasata — always beware of the tigress, woman; (if it is asked: "since, comparing woman to a tigress, association with women has been forbidden, how then, without sacrifices and the other rites performed together with one's wife, is heaven to be attained?" — anticipating this question, he says:) vitatham — false, that is, transient; divam — heaven; trinam-manyah — considering it as insignificant as a straw; thutkuru — spit at it; [anticipating the question: "very well, let it be so; then we shall study the shastras on yoga and perform yoga and the rest — for by this all goals can be attained," he says:] shastra-abhyasaih alam — the study of shastras is in vain; [for with those who practise yoga having studied them, perfection is a distant matter; even the fall of those established in yoga is spoken of; what is the sense of such a practice, whose success is so uncertain and whose very practice is extremely painful?]; [anticipating the question: "if so, then service of the holy places is surely more pleasant? serving the tirthas, we shall obtain knowledge and the like, and as a result become worthy of liberation," he says:] tirtha-atanikaya [ca] alam — and what is the use of pilgrimages?; [for, first, pilgrimage is hard labour; second, since the karmis and jnanis with worldly minds have offences against the holy abode, their going to the tirthas is only a vain endeavour for sense gratification; what then should be done — this he now concludes:]; dhanyah — O people worthy of obtaining the wealth of prema; [yuyam — you]; nija-rasa-madat ambudhi-tate — from the bliss born of the rasa of prema of His own form, Krishna, on the shore of the ocean at Nilachala; natantam — dancing; sannyasi-kapatam — enacting the pastime of sannyasa; kila — certainly; gaurangam shrayata — take shelter of Gauranga.

85. Enough of studying the shastras! Enough, alas, of wandering to holy places! Always fear the tigress, woman; regarding the false heavens as a straw, spit on them! O fortunate ones, take refuge in Gauranga, who has assumed the guise of a sannyasi and dances on the ocean shore, intoxicated with His own rasa.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The insignificance of talking with women, the pursuit of heaven, […] and the like, and the supremacy of the shelter of Gaura's feet alone

Always beware of association with women, those tigresses; considering heaven (transient) as insignificant as a straw, spit at it; what is the use of studying many shastras? — give that up too; and what is the gain of pilgrimages? — renounce them too. (Look here:) Sri Gaura, enacting the role of a sannyasi, dances on the shore of the blue ocean at Nilachala in the bliss of love of His own essence — Krishna! O fortunate devotees, (go, go,) take shelter at His feet.

Verse 86

किं तावद्बत दुर्गमेषु विफलं योगादिमार्गेष्वहो
भक्तिं कृष्णपदाम्बुजे विदधतः सर्वार्थमालुण्ठत ।
आशा प्रेममहोत्सवे यदि शिवब्रह्माद्यलभ्येऽद्भुते गौरे धामनि दुर्विगाहमहिमोदारे तदा रज्यताम् ॥ ८६ ॥

kiṁ tāvadbata durgameṣu viphalaṁ yogādimārgeṣvaho bhaktiṁ kṛṣṇapadāmbuje vidadhataḥ sarvārthamāluṇṭhata |
āśā premamahotsave yadi śivabrahmādyalabhye'dbhute
gaure dhāmani durvigāhamahimodāre tadā rajyatām || 86 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): bata — alas (expresses regret); aho — ho (an address) [aho bhratarah — O brothers]; durgameshu yoga-adi-margeshu — on the hard-to-travel paths of the eightfold yoga and the rest; kim tavat viphalam [anusandhanam kriyate — is search made] — what is the use of wandering fruitlessly?; krishna-pada-ambuje bhaktim vidadhatah — performing bhakti to Krishna's lotus feet; sarva-artham — prema, the crown of all goals, or that which among all things is the only goal (prayojana) — the wealth of prema; aluntata — seize by force, plunder completely; shiva-brahma-adi-alabhye — inaccessible even to Shiva, Brahma and the rest; adbhute — wondrous;

prema-maha-utsave — in the great festival of prema; yadi asha [vartate] — if there is hope; tada — then; durvigaha-mahima-udare gaure dhamani — to Gaura, the abode, whose glory is unfathomable and who is generous, that is, great in generosity (maha-vadanya); rajyatam — be filled with attachment (anuraga).

86. Why, alas, labour fruitlessly on the hard paths of yoga and the rest? By devoting yourselves to bhakti to Krishna's lotus feet you will carry off every goal. But if you have hope for the wondrous great festival of love, unattainable even by Shiva, Brahma and the others — then give your heart to Gaura, the abode whose generous majesty is unfathomable.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The essence of the instruction — leaving futile endeavours on the painful paths of yoga and the like, love Gaura alone

O brothers! What is the use of vain searching on the painfully difficult paths of ashtanga-yoga and the rest? Practising bhakti to Krishna's lotus feet, plunder the wealth of love — everything most valuable. And if you have hope of the festival of the bliss of love, supremely wondrous, inaccessible even to Shiva, Brahma and the others — then love the most magnanimous Gaurahari, whose glory is unfathomable.

Verse 87

यथा यथा गौरपदारविन्दे विन्देत भक्तिं कृतपुण्यराशिः । तथा तथोत्सर्पति हृद्यकस्माद्राधापदाम्भोजसुधाम्बुराशिः ॥ ८७ ॥

yathā yathā gaurapadāravinde vindeta bhaktiṁ kṛtapuṇyarāśiḥ |
tathā tathotsarpati hṛdyakasmādrādhāpadāmbhojasudhāmburāśiḥ || 87 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): krita-punya-rashih — a person who has performed heaps of good deeds (sukriti); gaura-pada-aravinde — for Sri Gaurasundara's lotus feet; yatha yatha — to the extent that; bhaktim vindeta — obtains bhakti; akasmat — suddenly; [tasya — his]; hridi — in the heart; tatha tatha — to that same extent; radha-pada-ambhoja-sudha-ambu-rashih — the ocean of the nectar of Sri Radha's lotus feet; utsarpati — surges up.

87. As one who has amassed heaps of pious deeds attains bhakti to Gaura's lotus feet, so the ocean of the nectar of Radha's lotus feet suddenly rises in his heart.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The fruit of bhakti for Gaura is service to Radha

To the extent that a person possessing heaps of piety (sukriti) obtains bhakti for Sri Gaura's lotus feet, to that same extent the ocean of the nectar of love for the lotus feet of Sri Sri Radha suddenly surges up in his heart.

Verse 88

अपारस्य प्रेमोज्ज्वलरसरहस्यामृतनिधे- र्निधानं ब्रह्मेशार्चित इह हि चैतन्यचरणः । अतस्तं ध्यायन्तः प्रणयभरतो यान्तु शरणं तमेव प्रोन्मत्तास्तमिह किल गायन्तु कृतिनः ॥ ८८ ॥

apārasya premojjvalarasarahasyāmṛtanidhernidhānaṁ brahmeśārcita iha hi caitanyacaraṇaḥ | atastaṁ dhyāyantaḥ praṇayabharato yāntu śaraṇaṁ
tameva pronmattāstamiha kila gāyantu kṛtinaḥ || 88 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): caitanya-caranah — Chaitanya's feet; hi — since; brahma-isha-arcitah — are worshipped even by Shiva and Brahma; aparasya — of the shoreless; prema-ujjvala-rasa-rahasya-amrita-nidheh — of the ocean of nectar which is the secret of the radiant rasa of prema; nidhanam — the receptacle; atah — therefore; kritinah — those possessing sukriti, that is, people who accept the essence (saragrahi); iha — in this age of Kali; pranaya-bharatah — in the abundance of love; tam — those feet of Chaitanya; dhyayantah — contemplating; tam eva — of them alone; sharanam yantu — let them seek shelter; pronmattah [santah] — filled with the greatest joy; tam — the glory of His lotus feet; kila — certainly; iha — in this age; gayantu — let them sing.

88. The feet of Chaitanya, worshipped by Brahma and Shiva, are the treasury of the shoreless ocean of the nectar of the secret of the rasa radiant with love. Therefore let the wise, meditating on them, take refuge in them in the fullness of love, and let them, as if mad, sing of them alone here.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The supremacy of the shelter of Gaura's feet

Chaitanya's feet, worshipped even by Shiva and Brahma, are the receptacle of the shoreless ocean of the nectar of the secret of the elevated, radiant rasa. Therefore in this age of Kali let pious people, [lovingly meditating on them,] take shelter of them and, maddened with love, in this very age sing of them alone (the glory of Chaitanya's feet).

Verse 89

दन्ते निधाय तृणकं पदयोर्निपत्य कृत्वा च काकुशतमेतदहं ब्रवीमि ।
हे साधवः सकलमेव विहाय दूरा- द्गौराङ्गचन्द्रचरणे कुरुतानुरागम् ॥ ८९ ॥ dante nidhāya tṛṇakaṁ padayornipatya

kṛtvā ca kākuśatametadahaṁ bravīmi | he sādhavaḥ sakalameva vihāya dūrādgaurāṅgacandracaraṇe kurutānurāgam || 89 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): dante trinakam nidhaya — taking a tiny straw between the teeth (this indicates the humility "lower than grass" of the preacher of kirtana, the tridandi-gosvami: for of the grasses that the people of the world trample underfoot, he holds between his teeth the smallest straw, that is, shows respect even to it); padayoh nipatya — falling at the feet (this indicates the quality of "amani" — freedom from the desire for respect — of the preacher of the message of Gaura, the tridandi-gosvami: unlike the brahma-sannyasi, he is not intoxicated with pride and does not consider himself "Narayana," and, unlike the smartas, he is not deprived of the vision of the true nature (svarupa) of all beings and is not fettered by worldly judgements about the gross and subtle body — brahmana or candala, senior or junior; therefore, having become "amani" before all, he strives to proclaim the truth); kaku-shatam kritva ca — with a hundred plaintive entreaties (this indicates the "tolerance like a tree" of the preacher of kirtana, the tridandi-gosvami: the people of the world, turned away from Krishna, do not at all wish to hear the truth, but the tridandi-gosvami, entreating them, [tries] to make them hear hari-katha); etat aham bravimi — I say this; he sadhavah — O sadhus (this indicates the quality of "manada" — giving respect to others — of the preacher of kirtana, the tridandi-gosvami); sakalam eva vihaya durat — leaving everything from afar (you are, of course, sadhus, but everything on account of which you have in your heart the pride "I am a sadhu" or the fame of a sadhu in the world — karma, jnana, Sankhya and yoga, phalgu-vairagya, the four goals, the performance of dharma and adharma, and all good and bad endeavours or desires opposed to the gratification of Krishna's senses — leaving that from afar); caitanya-candra-carane — for the feet of the Sri Chaitanya-moon; anuragam kuruta — be filled with attachment.

89. Holding a straw between my teeth, falling at your feet, with a hundred plaintive entreaties I say this: "O saints! Leave everything far behind and love the feet of Gauranga-chandra!"

Gaudiya-bhashya. The method of preaching bhakti for Gaura of the tridandi-gosvamis: leaving everything, the only duty is love for Gaura's feet

O sadhus! I (a tridandi mendicant), holding a straw between my teeth and falling at your feet, with hundreds of entreaties say only this (beg this alms): leaving everything (all the sanctity or dharma you have invented) far behind (rejecting it), be filled with love for the feet of Sri Chaitanya-chandra.

Verse 90

अहो न दुर्लभा मुक्तिर्न च भक्तिः सुदुर्लभा ।
गौरचन्द्रप्रसादस्तु वैकुण्ठेऽपि सुदुर्लभः ॥ ९० ॥

aho na durlabhā muktirna ca bhaktiḥ sudurlabhā |
gauracandraprasādastu vaikuṇṭhe'pi sudurlabhaḥ || 90 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [if it is asked: "why, leaving liberation, bhakti (vaidhi-bhakti, full of majesty) and the rest, become attached to Gaura's lotus feet?" — anticipating this question, he says]; aho — oh!; muktih na durlabha — liberation is not hard to obtain (the four kinds of mukti — salokya and the rest — are not hard to attain, for they are easily obtained by vaidhi-bhakti mixed with jnana); bhaktih ca na sudurlabha — and bhakti is not extremely hard to attain (for by vaidhi-sadhana service to Narayana in Vaikuntha is obtained); gaura-candra-prasadah tu — but the favour of Gaurachandra, that is, the tasting of the extremely secret nectar of prema, manifested by Gaura's mercy; vaikunthe api sudurlabhah — is extremely hard to attain even in Vaikuntha.

90. Oh! Liberation is not hard to attain, and bhakti is not so very hard; but the grace of Gaurachandra is hard to attain even in Vaikuntha.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaura's mercy — the tasting of the most secret nectar of love — is hard to attain even in Vaikuntha

Liberation — brahma-sayujya or the four kinds of liberation, salokya and the rest, attained by vaidhi-bhakti mixed with knowledge — is not hard to attain. Service to Narayana, attained by vaidhi-bhakti, is not hard to attain either. But Gaura's mercy (Gaura's mercy is threefold: (1) pure — in the form of the removal of anarthas; (2) […] — in the form of attaining the rasa of the siddhanta of bhakti; (3) joyful — in the form of attaining the dignity of madhurya) is hard to attain even in Vaikuntha, for even the associates of Narayana in Vaikuntha pray for Gaura's mercy.

Verse 91

भजन्तु चैतन्यपदारविन्दं भवन्तु सद्भक्तिरसेन पूर्णाः ।
आनन्दयन्तु त्रिजगद्विचित्रं माधुर्यसौभाग्यदयाक्षमाद्यैः ॥ ९१ ॥

bhajantu caitanyapadāravindaṁ bhavantu sadbhaktirasena pūrṇāḥ |
ānandayantu trijagadvicitraṁ mādhuryasaubhāgyadayākṣamādyaiḥ || 91 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): caitanya-pada-aravindam bhajantu — take shelter of the lotus feet of Sri Chaitanyadeva; sat-bhakti-rasena ca purnah bhavantu — and be filled with the highest rasa of bhakti, that is, be immersed in the unnata-ujjvala-rasa, never given before (anarpita-cari) (this is possible only in the shelter of Chaitanya's feet); madhurya-saubhagya-daya-kshama-adyaih — madhurya — by a sweet nature, saubhagya — by the highest tasting of prema, daya — by the distribution of this prema to all living beings, kshama — by humility "lower than grass" and the other Vaishnava qualities; tri-jagat — the three worlds; vicitram — in manifold ways; anandayantu — gladden.

91. Worship the lotus feet of Chaitanya, be filled with the rasa of true bhakti, and delight the three worlds with manifold sweetness, the highest fortune of tasting prema, compassion, forbearance and the rest.

Gaudiya-bhashya. By taking shelter of Gaura, world-attracting qualities become possible — a sweet nature, good fortune, compassion and forbearance

Take shelter of the lotus feet of the Chaitanya-moon, be filled with the supreme, that is, never before given (anarpita-cari), elevated, radiant rasa, and give the three worlds manifold bliss through such good qualities as sweetness (a sweet nature), good fortune (the tasting of the highest love), compassion (turning averse souls towards Krishna, or preaching the Name) and forbearance (tolerance like a tree).

Verse 92

संसारसिन्धुतरणे हृदयं यदि स्यात्
सङ्कीर्तनामृतरसे रमते मनश्चेत् ।
प्रेमाम्बुधौ विहरणे यदि चित्तवृत्ति- श्चैतन्यचन्द्रचरणे शरणं प्रयातु ॥ ९२ ॥ saṁsārasindhutaraṇe hṛdayaṁ yadi syāt saṅkīrtanāmṛtarase ramate manaścet | premāmbudhau viharaṇe yadi cittavṛtti-ścaitanyacandracaraṇe śaraṇaṁ prayātu || 92 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yadi samsara-sindhu-tarane hridayam syat — if someone has the desire to cross the ocean of worldly existence (that is, the desire, having crossed samsara, to plunge "into the ocean of bhakti"); manah cet sankirtana-amrita-rase ramate — if the mind wishes to delight in the sweetness of the nectar rasa of sankirtana; yadi prema-ambudhau viharane citta-vrittih [syat] — if the mind inclines to play in the ocean of the rasa of prema; [tada — then]; caitanya-candra-carane sharanam prayatu — let him take shelter of the feet of the Chaitanya-moon.

92. If the heart longs to cross the ocean of worldly existence, if the mind delights in the nectar rasa of sankirtana, if thought wishes to sport in the ocean of love — let it take refuge in the feet of Chaitanya-chandra.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Without the shelter of Gaura's feet alone it is impossible to cross samsara, taste the rasa of sankirtana and obtain the wealth of love

If there is a desire to cross the ocean of samsara, if the mind wishes to delight in the sweetness of the nectar rasa of sankirtana, if there is a longing to play in the ocean of love — then take shelter of the feet of Sri Chaitanya-chandra.

Verse 93

ज्ञानवैराग्यभक्त्यादि साधयन्तु यथा तथा । चैतन्यचरणाम्भोजभक्तिलभ्यसमं कुतः ॥ ९३ ॥

jñānavairāgyabhaktyādi sādhayantu yathā tathā |
caitanyacaraṇāmbhojabhaktilabhyasamaṁ kutaḥ || 93 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): jnana-vairagya-bhakti-adi — knowledge, renunciation, bhakti and the rest; yatha-tatha — in whatever way; sadhayantu — let them practise (or produce); caitanya-candra-carana-ambhoja-bhakti-labhya-samam — like that special knowledge, renunciation and bhakti which are obtained by serving the lotus feet of Chaitanya-chandra, that is, what the devotees of Chaitanya-chandra's feet possess — the knowledge of the truth of the all-embracing sweetness of Svayam Bhagavan Sri Krishna, […] detachment and the unnata-ujjvala bhakti-rasa; kutah — where else? (that is, it is found nowhere else).

93. Let them practise knowledge, renunciation, bhakti and the rest as they may — but where is anything equal to what is attained by devotion to the lotus feet of Chaitanya?[3]

Gaudiya-bhashya. Siddhanta, prema-bhakti and renunciation abide only in Gaura's devotees

Let (people) cultivate knowledge, renunciation, bhakti and the rest in whatever way they like — but where [is one to find] that special knowledge, renunciation and bhakti which are obtained by serving the lotus feet of the Chaitanya-moon? Nothing like it is to be seen anywhere else.

Verse 94

अचैतन्यमिदं विश्वं यदि चैतन्यमीश्वरम् ।
न भजेत् सर्वतो मृत्युरुपास्यममरोत्तमैः ॥ ९४ ॥

acaitanyamidaṁ viśvaṁ yadi caitanyamīśvaram |
na bhajet sarvato mṛtyurupāsyamamarottamaiḥ || 94 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): idam — this visible; acaitanyam — devoid of consciousness, that is, devoid of realization of one's own svarupa, or devoid of bhakti for the all-pervading Consciousness (vibhu-caitanya); vishvam — whole world; amara-uttamaih — by the best of the gods; upasyam — worshipped; caitanyam ishvaram — the Lord Chaitanya, that is, Chaitanya who rules all; yadi na bhajet — if it does not worship; [tada — then]; sarvatah mrityuh — death in every respect; [bhavati — there is] (in the anuvada: death of every kind, that is, subject to birth and death, they taste the fruits of karma — happiness, misery and the like).

94. This world, devoid of consciousness (a-chaitanya, that is, devoid of devotion to Krishna), if it does not worship Chaitanya — the Lord worshipped by the best of the gods — meets death on every side.

Gaudiya-bhashya. One not devoted to Chaitanya obtains only the round of coming and going in samsara

If this world, devoid of bhakti for Krishna and devoid of consciousness, does not worship Bhagavan Sri Chaitanya Himself, the all-controlling, worthy of worship even by the best of the gods — Shiva, Brahma and the others — it obtains only death in all its forms, that is, people subject to birth and death merely taste the fruits of karma — happiness, misery and the like.

Verse 95

आशा यस्य पदद्वन्द्वे चैतन्यस्य महाप्रभोः । तस्येन्द्रो दासवद्भाति का कथा नृपकीटके ॥ ९५ ॥

āśā yasya padadvandve caitanyasya mahāprabhoḥ |
tasyendro dāsavadbhāti kā kathā nṛpakīṭake || 95 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): caitanyasya mahaprabhoh — of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu; pada-dvandve — in the two feet; yasya asha — one who has hope; tasya — to him; indrah [api] — even Indra; dasavat bhati — appears as a servant; [anye — of others]; nripa-kitake — of a king who is like an insignificant worm; ka katha — what to speak.

95. For one whose hope is in the two feet of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, Indra himself seems like a servant — what to speak of a worm of a king!

Gaudiya-bhashya. A person having even the slightest bhakti for the Chaitanya-moon is able to engage even […] the gods in his service

To one who has hope in the two feet of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, even the lord of the gods appears as a servant; what to speak of a king, who is like an insignificant worm?

Verse 96

यस्याशा कृष्णचैतन्ये नृपद्वारि किमर्थिनः । चिन्तामणिमयं प्राप्य को मूढो रजतं व्रजेत् ॥ ९६ ॥

yasyāśā kṛṣṇacaitanye nṛpadvāri kimarthinaḥ |
cintāmaṇimayaṁ prāpya ko mūḍho rajataṁ vrajet || 96 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yasya arthinah — of the petitioner who; krishna-caitanye asha [vartate] — has the hope of obtaining Sri Krishna-Chaitanya; [tasya — of him]; nripa-dvari — at the door of a king; kim — what need?; cintamanim prapya — having obtained a cintamani; kah mudhah — who is such a fool; rajatam vrajet — that he would go (to distant lands) for silver?

96. Who, having placed his hope in Krishna Chaitanya, would go begging at a king's door? What fool, having obtained a chintamani, would go after silver?

Gaudiya-bhashya. The great souls who have obtained the cintamani of the worship of Gaura take no thought for their own maintenance

What need of the royal gate has that petitioner who longs for the wealth of the feet of Sri Krishna-Chaitanya? Is there such a fool who, having obtained a cintamani, will go (to distant lands) for silver?

Verse 97

ध्यायन्तो गिरिकन्दरेषु बहवो ब्रह्मानुभूयासते
योगाभ्यासपराश्च सन्ति बहवः सिद्धा महीमण्डले ।
विद्याशौर्यधनादिभिश्च बहवो जल्पन्ति मिथ्योद्धताः को वा गौरकृपां विनाद्य जगति प्रेमोन्मदो नृत्यति ॥ ९७ ॥

dhyāyanto girikandareṣu bahavo brahmānubhūyāsate
yogābhyāsaparāśca santi bahavaḥ siddhā mahīmaṇḍale | vidyāśauryadhanādibhiśca bahavo jalpanti mithyoddhatāḥ
ko vā gaurakṛpāṁ vinādya jagati premonmado nṛtyati || 97 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): giri-kandareshu — in mountain caves; bahavah — many people; [dhyayantah] — meditating on the impersonal Brahman; brahma anubhuya — having realized Brahman; asate — abide; ca — and; mahi-mandale — in the circle of the earth; yoga-abhyasa-parah — devoted to the practice of the eightfold yoga; bahavah siddhah — many who have obtained siddhis (anima and the rest); santi — there are; vidya-shaurya-dhana-adibhih ca — and with learning, strength, wealth and the like; mithya-uddhatah — intoxicated with unreal things; bahavah — many; jalpanti — indulge in idle talk; [kintu — but]; gaura-kripam vina — without Gaura's mercy; jagati — in the world; kah va — who indeed; adya — today; prema-unmadah [san — being] — intoxicated with prema; nrityati — dances?

97. Many, meditating in mountain caves, abide in the experience of Brahman; there are many siddhas on the earth devoted to the practice of yoga; many, falsely puffed up with learning, valour, wealth and so on, prattle on. But who in the world today, without Gaura's mercy, dances intoxicated with love?

Gaudiya-bhashya. In the world, apart from Gaura's devotees, there is no one intoxicated with love

In mountain caves many jnana-yogis, given to meditation and the search for the undifferentiated Brahman, abide, having realized Brahman; on earth there are many people devoted to the practice of ashtanga-yoga who have obtained siddhis — anima and the rest; and many more, intoxicated with false objects — learning, strength, wealth and the like — engage in empty disputes. But who in the world today, without Gaurahari's mercy, dances in the intoxication of love?

Verse 98

काशीवासीनपि न गणये किं गयां मार्गयामो
मुक्तिः शुक्ती भवति यदि मे कः परार्थप्रसङ्गः ।
त्रासाभासः स्फुरति न महारौरवेऽपि क्व भीतिः स्त्रीपुत्रादौ यदि कृपयते देवदेवः स गौरः ॥ ९८ ॥

kāśīvāsīnapi na gaṇaye kiṁ gayāṁ mārgayāmo muktiḥ śuktī bhavati yadi me kaḥ parārthaprasaṅgaḥ | trāsābhāsaḥ sphurati na mahāraurave'pi kva bhītiḥ
strīputrādau yadi kṛpayate devadevaḥ sa gauraḥ || 98 ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yadi devadevah — if He who is worshipped even by the gods; sah gaurah — that Gaurasundara; kripayate — is merciful; [tada — then]; kashi-vasin api — even the residents of Kashi (that is, those who have settled in Kashi for the sake of undifferentiated liberation); na ganaye — I count as nothing; kim gayam margayamah — why seek Gaya? (that is, Gaura's devotee, unlike the karmis seeking fruits, does not bustle about the shraddha at Gaya in order to offer pindas to the ancestors); yadi me muktih — if for me even liberation; shukti bhavati — becomes a shell; [tada — then]; kah para-artha-prasangah — what to speak of the fruits of the three other goals and the rest!; maha-raurave api — even in the great hell Raurava; [yadi — if]; trasa-abhasah na sphurati — there is not a shadow of fear; [tada — then]; stri-putra-adi — with regard to wife, sons and the rest; kva bhitih — where is fear?

98. I do not count even the dwellers of Kashi — why should I seek out Gaya? Liberation is to me an empty shell — what to speak of other goals? Even in the great hell Raurava not a shadow of fear appears to me — how then could I fear for wife, sons and the rest — if Gaura, the God of gods, is merciful to me.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaura's devotee […] is free from petty desires

If Sri Gaurasundara, the Lord even of the gods — Brahma, Shiva and the rest — is merciful, then I count the residents of Kashi as nothing; why should I seek the abode of Gaya? If liberation itself seems to me like mother-of-pearl, what is there to say of the three goals — dharma, artha and kama? And if even in Maharaurava not a shadow of fear approaches me, where then is fear for wife, sons and the like?

1. Gaura-dhaman — according to Bhaktisiddhanta, "possessing a golden radiance (gaura-kanti)," i.e. Sri Hari in the form of Gaura; literally it may also mean "He whose abode is Gaura."

2. The summit of Niladri (Nilachala) is Puri; "the face of Hari" is Jagannatha, on whom Mahaprabhu gazes unceasingly.

3. The first line has been restored from the Bengali edition (No. 94 there).

Part Four

The supremacy of Sri Chaitanya. The glory of His descent. The beauty and dance of Gaura. Lament (verses 99–142)

The supremacy of Sri Chaitanya (utkarsha)

Verse 99

मत्तकेशरिकिशोरविक्रमः प्रेमसिन्धुजगदाप्लवोद्यमः ।
कोऽपि दिव्यनवहेमकन्दलीकोमलो जयति गौरचन्द्रमाः ॥

mattakeśarikiśoravikramaḥ premasindhujagadāplavodyamaḥ |
ko'pi divyanavahemakandalīkomalo jayati gauracandramāḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): matta-keshari-kishora-vikramah — mighty as an intoxicated young lion, that is, in subduing Kali possessing valour like that of an intoxicated young lion; prema-sindhu-jagat-aplava-udyamah — striving to flood the world by making the ocean of love surge; divya-nava-hema-kandali-komalah — (divya — beautiful; nava-hema-kandali-komala — tender as a freshly blossomed golden kandali [flower]); kah api gaura-candramah — a certain indescribable Gaurachandra; jayati — shines, surpassing all.

99. With the valour of a young lion in rut, eager to flood the world with the ocean of love, tender as a wondrous, newly blossomed golden kandali flower — glory to the indescribable Gaura-chandra, the Moon!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Description of the supremacy of Gaurahari's form, qualities, sweetness, valour and generosity

A certain indescribable Gaurachandra — mighty as an intoxicated young lion in subduing Kali, more tender than a beautiful, freshly blossomed golden kandali bud, striving to flood the world by making the ocean of love surge — shines, surpassing all.

Verse 100

सौन्दर्ये कामकोटिः सकलजनसमाह्लादने चन्द्रकोटि- र्वात्सल्ये मातृकोटिस्त्रिदशविटपिनां कोटिरौदार्यसारे ।
गाम्भीर्येऽम्भोधिकोटिर्मधुरिमणि सुधाक्षीरमाध्वीककोटि- र्गौरो देवः स जीयात् प्रणयरसपदे दर्शिताश्चर्यकोटिः ॥ saundarye kāmakoṭiḥ sakalajanasamāhlādane candrakoṭirvātsalye mātṛkoṭistridaśaviṭapināṁ koṭiraudāryasāre | gāmbhīrye'mbhodhikoṭirmadhurimaṇi sudhākṣīramādhvīkakoṭi-

rgauro devaḥ sa jīyāt praṇayarasapade darśitāścaryakoṭiḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [yah — He who]; saundarye — in beauty; kama-kotih — millions of Kamadevas, that is, He whose wealth of beauty puts to shame countless Madanas; sakala-jana-samahladane — in giving delight (refreshing tenderness) to all people; candra-kotih — millions of moons, that is, belittling the coolness of countless moons; vatsalye — in loving tenderness; matri-kotih — millions of mothers, that is, belittling the loving tenderness of countless mothers; audarya-sare — in the height of generosity; tridasha-vitapinam kotih — millions of the trees of the gods, that is, putting to shame the generosity of countless wish-fulfilling trees; gambhirye — in depth; ambhodhi-kotih — millions of oceans, that is, He whose [depth] surpasses the depth of thousands upon thousands of oceans; madhurimani — in sweetness; sudha-kshira-madhvika-kotih — millions of essences of nectar, [of milk drinks] and of essences of honey ("madhvika" — an intoxicating drink made from honey; here the word "sudha" indicates immortality and an unprecedented taste, the word "kshira" satisfaction and [nourishment], the word "madhvika" the madness of love); pranaya-rasa-pade — with regard to shringara-rasa; darshita-ashcarya-kotih — who has displayed millions of wonders, that is, the pranaya-rasa manifested by Sri Gaurasundara is millions of times more wondrous than the sweetness of shringara-rasa shown by the former connoisseurs of rasa; sah devah gaurah — that Gaurasundara who sports in pastimes (lilamaya); jiyat — may He be glorious.

100. In beauty — millions of Kamadevas; in delighting all people — millions of moons; in tenderness — millions of mothers; in the essence of generosity — millions of trees of heaven; in depth — millions of oceans; in sweetness — millions of nectars, milks and honeys; in the realm of the rasa of love He has shown millions of wonders. Glory to the Lord Gaura!

Gaudiya-bhashya. The supreme excellence of the beauty, gladdening power, loving tenderness, generosity, depth and sweetness of Krishna clothed in the mood and lustre of Radha.

He who in beauty is millions of Kamadevas, in gladdening all living beings millions of moons, in loving tenderness millions of mothers, in the height of generosity millions of wish-fulfilling trees, in depth millions of oceans, in sweetness millions of essences of nectar, millions of [milk drinks] and millions of essences of honey, and who in the field of shringara-rasa displays millions of wonders (variety of rasa) — may that Gaurahari, who sports in pastimes, be glorious!

Verse 101

स्वपादाम्भोजैकप्रणयलहरीसाधनभृतां
शिवब्रह्मादीनामपि च सुमहाविस्मयभृताम् । महाप्रेमावेशात् किमपि नटतामुन्मद इव प्रभुर्गौरो जीयात् प्रकटपरमाश्चर्यमहिमा ॥ svapādāmbhojaikapraṇayalaharīsādhanabhṛtāṁ

śivabrahmādīnāmapi ca sumahāvismayabhṛtām | mahāpremāveśāt kimapi naṭatāmunmada iva
prabhurgauro jīyāt prakaṭaparamāścaryamahimā ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sva-pada-ambhoja-eka-pranaya-lahari-sadhana-bhritam — (sva-pada-ambhoja — His own lotus feet; eka — surpassing all; pranaya-lahari — the wave of bhava; sadhana — the means to manifest it in the heart; of the sadhana-bhaktas, that is, of those sadhana-bhaktas who abide [in sadhana] in order to manifest in the heart the all-surpassing wave of prema for His lotus feet); shiva-brahma-adinam api ca — even of Shiva, Brahma and the others; su-maha-vismaya-bhritam — who give boundless astonishment; maha-prema-aveshat — because of absorption in maha-prema; unmadah iva — as if mad; kim api natam — of the devotees who dance wondrously; prakatita-parama-ashcarya-mahima — He who has manifested their supremely wondrous glory; prabhuh — the independent Lord; gaurah — Gaurasundara; jiyat — may He be glorious.

101. Glory to the Lord Gaura, who has revealed the supreme, wondrous glory of those who hold to the sadhana that leads to the matchless wave of love for His lotus feet, and who, in the transport of great love, dance indescribably as if mad, filling with great amazement even Shiva, Brahma and the others.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari, who displays […] that astonish even Shiva, Brahma and the others.

May Bhagavan Sri Gaurahari Himself be glorious in supreme excellence — He who manifested the most wondrous glory of the devotees abiding in sadhana-bhakti, the means to obtain the highest wave of prema-bhakti for His lotus feet, and of the devotees who, immersed in mahabhava, dance wondrously as if mad, causing the greatest astonishment even to Shiva, Brahma and the others.

Verse 102

माद्यत्कोटिमृगेन्द्रहुङ्कृतिरवस्तिग्मांशुकोटिच्छविः
कोटीन्दूद्भटशीतलो गतिजितप्रोन्मत्तकोटिद्विपः ।
नाम्ना दुर्गतकोटिनिष्कृतिकरो ब्रह्मादिकोटीश्वरः कोट्यद्वैतशिरोमणिर्विजयते श्रीश्रीशचीनन्दनः ॥

mādyatkoṭimṛgendrahuṅkṛtiravastigmāṁśukoṭicchaviḥ
koṭīndūdbhaṭaśītalo gatijitapronmattakoṭidvipaḥ | nāmnā durgatakoṭiniṣkṛtikaro brahmādikoṭīśvaraḥ
koṭyadvaitaśiromaṇirvijayate śrīśrīśacīnandanaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): matta-koti-mrigendra-hunkriti-ravah — He whose voice is like the roar of millions of intoxicated lions; tigmamshu-koti-chavih — possessing a bodily radiance brighter than that of millions of suns; koti-indu-udbhata-shitalah — cooler than millions of moons; gati-jita-pronmatta-koti-dvipah — with a gait more beautiful than the stride of millions of intoxicated elephants; namna — by the name (the maha-mantra "Hare Krishna" and the rest, or the names "Krishna-Chaitanya," "Vishvambhara" and the rest); durgata-koti-nishkriti-karah — the deliverer of millions of the distressed; brahma-adi-koti-ishvarah — the master of millions upon millions of Brahmas and others; koti-advaita-shiromanih — (the crown of millions upon millions of advaita-vadis, worshipped by them, the highest summit of the perception of the impersonal Brahman — Parabrahman, that is, the condensed Parabrahman in human form); shri-shri-shacinandanah — Sri Sri Shachinandana; vijayate — shines with supreme excellence.

102. His roar is like the roar of millions of maddened kings of beasts, His lustre like that of millions of suns, His coolness greater than that of millions of moons; by His gait He surpasses millions of maddened elephants; by His Name He redeems millions of the wretched; He is the Lord of millions of Brahmas and others, the crest-jewel of millions of knowers of non-duality[1] — glory to Sri Sri Shachinandana!

Gaudiya-bhashya. Description of Gaurahari's supremacy through the display of His great might, radiance, beauty, coolness, the sweetness of His gait and […].

Possessing a voice deep as the roar of millions of intoxicated lions; bearing a radiance brighter than that of millions of suns; cooler than millions of moons; with a gait more beautiful than the stride of millions of maddened king-elephants; delivering millions of the distressed by the sankirtana of the names "Hare Krishna" and the rest; the master of millions of Brahmas and others; worshipped by millions of advaita-vadis, the highest summit [of the realization] of the impersonal Brahman — Parabrahman, that is, the embodiment of the complete realization of advaya-jnana (non-dual knowledge) — may Sri Sri Shachinandana be especially glorious!

Verse 103

यो मार्गो दूरशून्यो बत इह बलवत्कण्टको योऽतिदुर्गो
मिथ्यार्थभ्रामको यः सपदि रसमयानन्दनिःस्यन्दको यः ।
सद्यः प्रद्योतयंस्तं प्रकटितमहिमा स्नेहवान् हृद्गुहायाः कोऽप्यन्तर्ध्वान्तहन्ता स जयति नवद्वीपदीप्यत्प्रदीपः ॥ yo mārgo dūraśūnyo bata iha balavatkaṇṭako yo'tidurgo mithyārthabhrāmako yaḥ sapadi rasamayānandaniḥsyandako yaḥ | sadyaḥ pradyotayaṁstaṁ prakaṭitamahimā snehavān hṛdguhāyāḥ

ko'pyantardhvāntahantā sa jayati navadvīpadīpyatpradīpaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): iha — in this world; yah dura-shunyah — that which is "dura" — inaccessible to the material intellect — and "shunya" — devoid of the gross material aspect of the endeavours of karma and the like; [yo va — or which]; bata — alas (in regret); balavat-kantakah — blocked by thorns — dry knowledge and attachment to regular and occasional karma; [atah — therefore]; yah ati-durgah — hard to travel, extremely difficult; yah mithya-artha-bhramakah — (mithya-artha — a false, unreal object; producing the knowledge of it as real, that is, making even the wise (suris) consider false bhakti, pretended bhakti and the like to be "bhakti"); yah sapadi rasa-maya-ananda-nihsyandakah — which at once brings a stream of the rasa of the bliss of prema; margah — the path; tam — that [path of bhakti]; sadyah — at once; pradyotayan — […] illumining; [prakatita-mahima — not legible in the OCR of the anvaya; in the anuvada: "who manifests the glory of bhakti"]; hrit-guhah — of the cave of the heart; antar-dhvanta-hanta — destroying the darkness of ignorance; snehavan — full of tender love (with reference to a lamp, "sneha" is oil); navadvipa-dipyat-pradipah — the lamp shining in Navadvipa; ko 'pi — a certain indescribable Purusha; sah jayati — may He be glorious.

103. The path that is beyond the reach of worldly intellect and devoid of outward glitter — alas, overgrown here with mighty thorns and therefore hard to travel, leading astray with false meanings, yet at once pouring forth bliss full of rasa — that path He at once illumines, revealing its glory; full of tenderness, He drives the darkness out of the cave of the heart — glory to that indescribable shining lamp of Navadvipa.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The lamp of Gaura, which destroys […] darkness and illumines the path of tasting the secret rasa of prema.

The path of bhakti is inaccessible to the material intellect and devoid of the external pomp of karma and the like; alas, it is blocked by the thorns of dry knowledge and attachment to karma and is therefore extremely hard to travel; it misleads, making one take the false for the true, and at once brings a stream of the rasa of the bliss of prema. Glory to the indescribable Purusha, the lamp of Navadvipa full of tender love, who, instantly illumining that path of bhakti, destroys the darkness of ignorance in the cave of the heart and manifests the glory of bhakti!

Verse 104

दूरादेव दहन् कुतर्कशलभान् कोटीन्दुसंशीतलो
ज्योतिःकन्दलसद्म सन्मधुरिमा बाह्यान्तरध्वान्तहृत् । सस्नेहाशयवर्तिदिव्यविसरत्तेजाः सुवर्णद्युतिः कारुण्यादिह जाज्वलीति स नवद्वीपप्रदीपोऽद्भुतः ॥ dūrādeva dahan kutarkaśalabhān koṭīndusaṁśītalo

jyotiḥkandalasadma sanmadhurimā bāhyāntaradhvāntahṛt | sasnehāśayavartidivyavisarattejāḥ suvarṇadyutiḥ
kāruṇyādiha jājvalīti sa navadvīpapradīpo'dbhutaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kutarka-shalabhan — the moths of false logic; durat eva — even from afar; dahan — burning; koti-indu-samshitalah — cooler than millions of moons; jyotih-kandala-sadma — the abode of a mass of light; sat-madhurima — (sat — excellent, madhurima — sweetness; that is, supremely sweet); bahya-antara-dhvanta-hrit — destroying darkness outer and inner; sa-sneha-ashaya-varti-divya-visarat-tejah — (sa-sneha — abiding together with sneha (love), and in another sense with ghee or other oil; ashaya — the heart, and in another sense a vessel; that is the varti — the wick; divya-visarat-tejah — He from whom a radiance issues divinely, beautifully; that is, He whose radiance issues when the wick of the heart, which abides together with the oil of love, is kindled); suvarna-dyutih — possessing a golden lustre; adbhutah — unearthly (aprakrita); sah navadvipa-pradipah — that lamp of Navadvipa; karunyat — out of mercy; iha — in this world (prapanca); jajvaliti — shines brightly.

104. Burning from afar the moths of false logic, cool as millions of moons, the abode of sprouting light, the highest sweetness, dispelling the outer and inner darkness; His divine light spreads from the wick of the heart steeped in the oil of love; shining like gold — out of mercy this wondrous lamp of Navadvipa blazes brightly here.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The lamp of Navadvipa, ever burning with a bright flame.

That unearthly (aprakrita) lamp which even from afar burns the moths of false logic; which is cooler than millions of moons and is the abode of a mass of light; supremely sweet; destroying darkness outer and inner; from whose wick of the heart, soaked in the oil of love (sneha), a divine radiance issues; whose splendour is like gold — that lamp of Navadvipa (Gaurasundara) shines in this world out of mercy.

Verse 105

चीत्कारैर्दशदिङ्मुखं मुखरयन्नट्टाट्टहासच्छटा-
वीचीभिः स्फुटकुन्दकैरवगणप्रोद्भासि कुर्वन्नभः ।
सर्वाङ्गं पवनोच्चलच्चलदलप्रायप्रकम्पं दध-न्मत्तः प्रेमरसोन्मदाप्लुतगतिर्गौरो हरिः शोभते ॥ cītkāraird aśadiṅmukhaṁ mukharayannaṭṭāṭṭahāsacchaṭāvīcībhiḥ sphuṭakundakairavagaṇaprodbhāsi kurvannabhaḥ | sarvāṅgaṁ pavanoccalaccaladalaprāyaprakampaṁ dadhanmattaḥ premarasonmadāplutagatirgauro hariḥ śobhate ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): citkaraih — with cries (sounds uttered with extreme longing from joy and sorrow); dasha-dig-mukham — the ten directions; mukharayan — making resound, making echo; atta-atta-hasa-cchata-vicibhih — with waves of the radiance of pealing laughter; nabhah — the sky; sphuta-kunda-kairava-gana-prodbhasi — ([making it] extremely bright as if with full-blown kunda and kumuda flowers); pavana-uccalat-caladala-praya-prakampam — (pavana-uccala — shaken by the wind; caladala — the ashvattha tree; praya — like it; prakampa — trembling); sarva-angam — the whole body; dadhat — having; prema-rasa-unmada-apluta-gatih — (prema-rasa-unmada — the intoxication born of the rasa of prema; by it apluta-gati: among the various kinds of movement, the uddanda, a particular dance; that is, intoxicated with the joy, pride and the rest born of the rasa of prema, dancing with high leaps); mattah gaurah harih — the intoxicated Gaurahari; shobhate — shines with supreme excellence.

105. Filling all the directions with cries, by the waves of His peals of laughter making the sky white as with blossoming jasmines and lilies, His whole body trembling like the leaves of the ashvattha in the wind, intoxicated with the rasa of love, dancing with high leaps — Gaura-Hari shines.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurahari, adorned with the vibhavas and the rest and the sattvika-bhavas.

In extreme agitation from joy and sorrow making the ten directions resound with loud cries, with waves of the radiance of pealing loud laughter making the vault of the sky bright as if with full-blown kunda and kumuda flowers, possessing a body trembling like an ashvattha tree shaken by the wind — intoxicated with joy, pride and the other states born of the rasa of prema, Gaurahari, dancing the uddanda (with high leaps), abides in supreme excellence.

Verse 106

निर्दोषश्चारुनृत्यो विधुतमलिनतावक्रभावः कदाचि- न्निःशेषप्राणितापत्रयहरणमहाप्रेमपीयूषवर्षी ।
उद्भूतः कोऽपि भाग्योदयरुचिरशचीगर्भदुग्धाम्बुराशे- र्भक्तानां हृच्चकोरस्वादितपदरुचिर्भाति गौराङ्गचन्द्रः ॥ nirdoṣaścārunṛtyo vidhutamalinatāvakrabhāvaḥ kadācinniḥśeṣaprāṇitāpatrayaharaṇamahāpremapīyūṣavarṣī | udbhūtaḥ ko'pi bhāgyodayaruciraśacīgarbhadugdhāmburāśerbhaktānāṁ hṛccakorasvāditapadarucirbhāti gaurāṅgacandraḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): nirdoshah — (without a spot, or: He who has no need of "dosha" — night, darkness — that is, ever shining); caru-nrityah — dancing beautifully; vidhuta-malinata-vakra-bhavah — free of dimness and crookedness; nihshesha-prani-tapa-traya-harana-maha-prema-piyusha-varshi — pouring the nectar of prema to remove the threefold miseries of all living beings; bhaktanam hrit-cakora-svadita-pada-rucih — (bhaktanam — of the devotees; hrit-cakora — the cakora birds of the hearts; svadita — tasted; pada — rays; ruci — sweetness; that is, He the sweetness of whose rays the cakoras of the devotees' hearts taste); ko 'pi gauranga-candrah — a certain indescribable Purusha, Sri Gaurachandra; bhagya-udaya-rucira-shaci-garbha-dugdha-ambu-rasheh — (bhagya-udaya — the rising of good fortune, rucira — most beautiful; from the milk ocean of the womb of Shachidevi); udbhutah — risen; [san — being]; bhati — shines.

106. Without fault (knowing no night), dancing beautifully, utterly free of impurity and crookedness, pouring forth the nectar of great love that removes the threefold miseries of all living beings without exception; risen from the milk ocean of Shachi's womb, made beautiful by the dawning of good fortune; the sweetness of His rays is tasted by the chakora birds — the hearts of the devotees: the indescribable moon Gauranga shines.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurachandra, risen in the ocean of Shachi's womb and pouring the nectar of prema.

Spotless and ever risen, dancing wondrously, devoid of dimness and crookedness, pouring the nectar of prema to remove the threefold miseries of all living beings, the indescribable Sri Gaurachandra, the sweetness of whose rays the cakora birds of the devotees' hearts taste (that is, the sweetness of His rays the cakoras of the devotees' hearts taste), having risen from the milk ocean of the womb of the fortunate and most beautiful Sri Shachidevi, shines.

Verse 107

सिञ्चन् सिञ्चन्नयनपयसा पाण्डुगण्डस्थलान्तं
मुञ्चन् मुञ्चन् प्रतिमुहुरहो दीर्घनिःश्वासजातम् ।
उच्चैः क्रन्दन् करुणकरुणोद्गीर्णहाहेतिरावो गौरः कोऽपि व्रजविरहिणीभावमग्नश्चकास्ति ॥ siñcan siñcannayanapayasā pāṇḍuganḍasthalāntaṁ

muñcan muñcan pratimuhuraho dīrghaniḥśvāsajātam | uccaiḥ krandan karuṇakaruṇodgīrṇahāhetirāvo
gauraḥ ko'pi vrajavirahiṇībhāvamagnaścakāsti ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): vraja-virahini-bhava-magnah [san] — immersed in the ocean of the nectar of the mahabhava of Srimati Radhika, suffering from separation from Krishna; nayana-payasa — with streams of tears; pandu-ganda-sthala-antam — the edge of the pale cheeks; sincan sincan — wetting again and again; aho — ah!; dirgha-nihshvasa-jatam — many long sighs; pratimuhuh — every moment; muncan muncan — heaving again and again; uccaih krandan — weeping aloud; karuna-karuna-udgirna-ha-ha-iti-ravah — He who utters the sounds "ha! ha!", expressing an extremely piteous rasa; kah api gaurah — a certain indescribable Purusha, Sri Gaurasundara; cakasti — manifesting His mood, shines with supreme excellence.

107. Again and again moistening His pale cheeks with the water of His eyes, again and again — oh! — heaving long sighs, sobbing aloud, uttering most piteous cries of "Ha! Ha!" — the indescribable Gaura shines, immersed in the mood of a maiden of Vraja in separation.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari, immersed in the mood of Srimati Radhika, overwhelmed by the prolonged rasa of separation (vipralambha).

He who, immersed in the ocean of the nectar of the mahabhava of Srimati Radhika, suffering in Vraja from separation from Krishna, again and again wets with tears the edges of His pale cheeks; ah! — He who, every moment heaving long sighs, weeps aloud and utters the sounds "ha! ha!", full of an extremely piteous rasa — such an indescribable Purusha, Sri Gaurasundara, manifesting His mood, abides in supreme excellence.

Verse 108

बिभ्रद्वर्णं किमपि दहनोत्तीर्णसौवर्णसारं
दिव्याकारं किमपि कलयन् दृप्तगोपालबालः ।
आविष्कुर्वन् क्वचिदवसरे तत्तदाश्चर्यलीलां साक्षाद्राधामधुरिपुवपुर्भाति गौराङ्गचन्द्रः ॥ bibhradvarṇaṁ kimapi dahanottīrṇasauvarṇasāraṁ

divyākāraṁ kimapi kalayan dṛptagopālabālaḥ | āviṣkurvan kvacidavasare tattadāścaryalīlāṁ
sākṣādrādhāmadhuripuvapurbhāti gaurāṅgacandraḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): dahana-uttirna-sauvarna-saram — like the essence of molten gold that has passed through fire; kim api varnam — a certain indescribable colour; bibhrat — assuming; dripta-gopala-balah [san] — (dripta — illumined, that is, manifested; gopala-bala — the pastime of Bala-Gopala; that is, displaying the pastime of Bala-Gopala); kim api divya-akaram — a certain indescribable spiritual form (cinmaya-vigraha); kalayan — assuming; kvacit avasare — sometimes; tat-tat-ashcarya-lilam — those various most wondrous pastimes (in the anuvada: the pastimes of youth, kaishora); avishkurvan — revealing; sakshat-radha-madhuripu-vapuh — the visible united body of Radha and Madhava; gauranga-candrah — Sri Gauranga; bhati — shines with supreme beauty; [as Srila Svarupa Gosvami also says, Radha and Krishna are a transformation of love, [a manifestation] of the hladini potency; in their essence They are one, but since the tattva of pastimes is eternal, They eternally abide in two forms; now these two have appeared in one form — as the tattva of Chaitanya].

108. Bearing an indescribable colour — the essence of gold refined in fire — now appearing as a frolicsome cowherd boy, now assuming an indescribable divine form, and at times revealing this or that wondrous pastime — Gauranga-chandra shines, manifestly the body of Radha and Madhuripu (Krishna).

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari — the united body [of Radha and Krishna].

Assuming a certain indescribable colour like the essence of molten gold that has passed through fire, He displays the pastimes of Bala-Gopala, and sometimes, in a certain indescribable spiritual form, reveals the most wondrous pastimes of youth (kaishora) — Sri Gauranga shines, the visible united body of Radha and Madhava.

The glory of His descent (avatara-mahima)

Verse 109

अकस्मादेवाविर्भवति भगवन्नामलहरी
परीतानां पापैरपि पुरुभिरेषां तनुभृताम् ।
अहो वज्रप्रायं हृदपि नवनीतायितमभू- न्नृणां लोके यस्मिन्नवतरति स गौरो मम गतिः ॥ akasmādevāvirbhavati bhagavannāmalaharī

parītānāṁ pāpairapi purubhireṣāṁ tanubhṛtām | aho vajraprāyaṁ hṛdapi navanītāyitamabhū-nnṛṇāṁ loke yasminnavatarati sa gauro mama gatiḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): nrinam loke — in the world of men, that is, in the prapanca; yasmin avatarati [sati] — when He descends; aho — ah!; purubhih papaih — by heaps of grievous sins; paritanam — surrounded; esham tanubhritam api — even for these embodied beings; bhagavat-nama-lahari — the wave of the name of Sri Krishna, that is, the sequence of the holy names "Hare Krishna, Hare Krishna" and so on; akasmat eva — suddenly; avirbhavati — appeared; vajra-prayam hrit api — even the heart grown hard as stone through karma, jnana and the like, or through various anarthas; navanitayitam abhut — became soft and melted like fresh butter; sah gaurah — that Gaurasundara; mama gatih [astu] — may He be my refuge.

109. Unexpectedly the wave of the Lord's Name comes to embodied beings, even those surrounded by grievous sins; oh! — even men's hearts, hard as diamond, have become like fresh butter — when He descends into the world. That Gaura is my refuge.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The glory of the Gaura-avatara, who descended together with the name of Krishna, which melts […] hard [hearts].

When He descended into the world of men, ah, even for embodied beings surrounded by heaps of grievous sins a wave of the name of Sri Krishna suddenly appeared, and even the heart grown hard as stone through offences became soft and melted like fresh butter — may that Gaurasundara be my only refuge.

Verse 110

न योगो न ध्यानं न च जपतपस्त्यागनियमा
न वेदा नाचारः क्व नु बत निषिद्धाद्युपरतिः ।
अकस्माच्चैतन्येऽवतरति दयासारहृदये पुमर्थानां मौलिं परमिह मुदा लुण्ठति जनः ॥

na yogo na dhyānaṁ na ca japatapastyāganiyamā
na vedā nācāraḥ kva nu bata niṣiddhādyuparatiḥ | akasmāccaitanye'vatarati dayāsārahṛdaye
pumarthānāṁ mauliṁ paramiha mudā luṇṭhati janaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): akasmat daya-sara-hridaye caitanye iha avatarati [sati] — when the supremely merciful Sri Chaitanyadeva suddenly descended into this world; [yasya — one who]; na yogah na dhyanam na ca japa-tapah-tyaga-niyamah [santi] — has neither yoga, nor meditation, nor japa, austerity, renunciation and vows; na vedah na acarah — has neither study of the Vedas nor good conduct; nishiddha-adi-uparatih bata kva nu — alas, where is the abstention from forbidden and other deeds! — that is, who has not even abstained from sinful deeds; [tadrishah] janah — such a man; puma-arthanam maulim param — the crown of the goals of man, the highest prema; muda — with a joyful heart; lunthati — plunders.

110. There is no yoga, no meditation, no japa, no austerity, no renunciation, no vows, no Vedas, no piety — what to speak of abstaining from the forbidden! — and yet, when Chaitanya, whose heart is the very essence of compassion, descends, people here joyfully and unexpectedly carry off the highest crown of the goals of man.

Gaudiya-bhashya. At the Gaura-avatara [even] those devoid of sadhana and given to forbidden conduct [obtain] […] and the bliss of prema.

When the supremely merciful Sri Chaitanyadeva suddenly descended into this world, even a man who had neither yoga, nor meditation, nor japa, nor austerity, nor renunciation, nor vows, nor study of the Vedas, nor good conduct — alas, who had not even given up sinful and other deeds — even such a man in great joy plunders the highest prema, the crown of the goals of human life!

Verse 111

महाकर्मस्रोतोनिपतितमपि स्थैर्यमयते
महापाषाणेभ्योऽप्यतिकठिनमेति द्रवदशाम् ।
नटत्यूर्ध्वं निःसाधनमपि महायोगमनसां भुवि श्रीचैतन्येऽवतरति मनश्चित्रविभवे ॥

mahākarmasrotonipatitamapi sthairyamayate mahāpāṣāṇebhyo'pyatikaṭhinameti dravadaśām | naṭatyūrdhvaṁ niḥsādhanamapi mahāyogamanasāṁ
bhuvi śrīcaitanye'vatarati manaścitravibhave ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): citra-vibhave — (citra — wondrous, vibhava — splendour; the locative in the sense of state; endowed with wondrous splendour); shri-caitanye bhuvi avatarati [sati] — when Sri Chaitanyadeva descended to earth; [karminam — of the people of karma]; manah — the mind; maha-karma-srotah-nipatitam api — though fallen into the stream of great karma; sthairyam ayate — attains steadiness, having obtained Gaurasundara's prema; [evam — and]; maha-pashanebhyah api ati-kathinam api — even if harder than huge rocks; [manah] drava-dasham eti — the mind comes to a state of fluidity through the rasa of bhakti; maha-yoga-manasam api — even of those whose mind, that is, consciousness, is directed to the sadhana of the great yoga and the like; [manah — the mind]; nihsadhanam — turning away from yoga and the like; urdhvam natati — dances high, that is, leaving the sadhana of yoga and the like, connected with the senses, tastes the bliss of prema in the kingdom of the spiritual pastimes of Adhokshaja.

111. When Sri Chaitanya, wondrous in His glory, descends on earth, the mind that has fallen into the torrent of great karma becomes steady; the mind harder than great rocks becomes melted; even the mind of great yogis, giving up its sadhana, dances on high.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The glory of the Gaura-avatara, which melts even the hard hearts of the smartas and yogis immersed in karma.

When Sri Chaitanyadeva, possessing wondrous splendour, descended to earth, the mind of the people of karma, though fallen into the stream of great karma, became steady, having obtained Gaura's [love], and even the mind harder than a huge rock melted in the rasa of bhakti. Even the mind of those whose consciousness was directed to the sadhana of the great yoga and the like, turning away from the sadhana of yoga and the like (connected with the senses), dances high, that is, tastes prema in the kingdom of the spiritual pastimes of Adhokshaja.

Verse 112

स्त्रीपुत्रादिकथां जहुर्विषयिणः शास्त्रप्रवादं बुधा
योगीन्द्रा विजहुर्मरुन्नियमजक्लेशं तपस्तापसाः ।
ज्ञानाभ्यासविधिं जहुश्च यतयश्चैतन्यचन्द्रे परा- माविष्कुर्वति भक्तियोगपदवीं नैवान्य आसीद्रसः ॥ strīputrādikathāṁ jahurviṣayiṇaḥ śāstrapravādaṁ budhā yogīndrā vijahurmarunniyamajakleśaṁ tapastāpasāḥ | jñānābhyāsavidhiṁ jahuśca yatayaścaitanyacandre parā-māviṣkurvati bhaktiyogapadavīṁ naivānya āsīdrasaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): caitanya-candre param bhakti-yoga-padavim avishkurvati [sati] — when Sri Chaitanya-chandra revealed the highest path of bhakti-yoga, that is, the path of raganuga worship; vishayinah — people immersed in the taste of material objects; stri-putra-adi-katham — worldly talk about the maintenance of wives, sons and the rest; jahuh — gave up; budhah — the panditas, that is, philosophers, experts in poetics (alankarikas), logicians (naiyayikas) and the rest; shastra-pravadam — disputes and quarrels about the shastras; [jahuh — gave up]; yogindrah — the best of yogis; marut-niyamaja-klesham — (marut — the air, niyama — subjugation, ja-klesha — the hardships born of it; that is, the hardships of sadhana in holding the inhalation, exhalation and the rest of the life-air by pranayama, kumbhaka and so on); vijahuh — entirely gave up; tapasah — the ascetics; tapah — austerity; [jahuh — gave up]; yatayah ca — and the yatis, that is, sannyasis, adherents of the knowledge of the undifferentiated; jnana-abhyasa-vidhim — the search for the undifferentiated Brahman; jahuh — gave up; [tada — then]; anyah rasah na eva asit — there was no rasa other than bhakti-rasa (that is, neither the worldly rasa of those attached to objects, nor the worldly rasa of the shastras of the panditas — the alankarikas, philosophers and the rest — nor the rasa of Paramatma of the yogis, nor the rasa of the impersonal Brahman of the seekers of undifferentiated knowledge — none seemed "rasa" beside the rasa of advaya-jnana (the non-dual Absolute Truth), for beside the wondrous bhakti-rasa produced by the union of the four ingredients — rati, that is, the inclination connected with Bhagavan, or the sthayi-bhava, together with the vibhava, anubhava, sattvika[-bhavas] and vyabhichari[-bhavas] — a worldly or partial rasa cannot be called "rasa" at all).

112. When Chaitanya-chandra revealed the supreme path of bhakti-yoga, the worldly gave up talk of wife, sons and so on, the learned their disputes about the shastras, the lords of yogis the torments of breath control, the ascetics their austerity, the sannyasis their study of knowledge. No other rasa remained.

Gaudiya-bhashya. At the Gaura-avatara, people attached to worldly things, people of karma, jnanis and yogis, each leaving his own dharma, became intoxicated with the rasa of prema.

When Sri Chaitanya-chandra revealed the path of the highest bhakti-yoga, people immersed in the taste of material objects gave up talk of wives, sons and the like; the panditas gave up disputes and quarrels about the shastras; the best of yogis entirely abandoned the torments of sadhana for the restraint of the life-air; the ascetics gave up their austerities; the [sannyasis] gave up the search for the undifferentiated Brahman; and then no "rasa" other than bhakti-rasa was to be seen in the world.

Verse 113

अभूद्गेहे गेहे तुमुलहरिसङ्कीर्तनरवो
बभौ देहे देहे विपुलपुलकाश्रुव्यतिकरः ।
अपि स्नेहे स्नेहे परममधुरोत्कर्षपदवी दवीयस्याम्नायादपि जगति गौरेऽवतरति ॥ abhūdgehe gehe tumulaharisaṅkīrtanaravo

babhau dehe dehe vipulapulakāśruvyatikaraḥ | api snehe snehe paramamadhurotkarṣapadavī
davīyasyāmnāyādapi jagati gaure'vatarati ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): jagati gaure avatarati [sati] — when Gaurasundara descended into the world; gehe gehe — in every house; tumula-hari-sankirtana-ravah — the noise of a tumultuous Hari-sankirtana; abhut — rose; dehe dehe — in every body; vipula-pulaka-ashru-vyatikarah — (vipula — abundant, that is, full; thrills, tears and the other sattvika transformations; vyatikara — multitude); babhau — shone; snehe snehe — (matured prema is sneha; with the growing intensification of the density of prema-bhakti); amnayat api — (amnaya — the shrutis, the Vedas; even from them); daviyasi — remote, that is, inaccessible; parama-madhura-utkarsha-padavi api — even the highest, sweet, best stage; [prakatabhuta — was revealed].

113. When Gaura descends into the world, in every house thunders the sankirtana of Hari, in every body shines a profusion of thrills and tears, and in every affection there is a state of supreme sweet excellence, far beyond even the Vedas.

Gaudiya-bhashya. At the Gaura-avatara, the preaching of the elevated ujjvala-rasa, hidden in the Vedas, and the attainment of prema by all people.

When Sri Gaurachandra descended into the world, in every house rose the noise of a tumultuous Hari-sankirtana, in every body shone abundant thrills, tears and the other [sattvika-bhavas], and with the growing intensification of the density of prema-bhakti even the highest, sweetest, best stage, inaccessible to the shrutis, was revealed.

Verse 114

अकस्मादेवैतद्भुवनमभितः प्लावितमभू- न्महाप्रेमाम्भोधेः किमपि रसवन्याभिरखिलम् ।
अकस्माच्चादृष्टाश्रुतचरविकारैरलमभू- च्चमत्कारः कृष्णे कनकरुचिराङ्गेऽवतरति ॥ akasmādevaitadbhuvanamabhitaḥ plāvitamabhū-nmahāpremāmbhodheḥ kimapi rasavanyābhirakhilam | akasmāccādṛṣṭāśrutacaravikārairalamabhūccamatkāraḥ kṛṣṇe kanakarucirāṅge'vatarati ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): kanaka-rucira-ange krishne avatarati [sati] — when Bhagavan Sri Krishna Himself, the attractor of all hearts, descended, assuming a charming golden lustre; maha-prema-ambhodheh — of the ocean of great prema; kim api rasa-vanyabhih — by certain floods of rasa; akhilam etat bhuvanam — this whole world; abhitah — on all sides; akasmat eva plavitam abhut — was suddenly flooded; akasmat ca adrishta-ashruta-cara-vikaraih — and suddenly by transformations of prema never seen or heard of before; alam — extremely; camatkarah abhut — was astonished.

114. Unexpectedly this whole world was flooded on every side by indescribable floods of rasa from the ocean of great love; unexpectedly people were overcome with wonder at transformations never seen or heard of before — when Krishna descends in a body beautiful with golden radiance.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The glory of the Chaitanya-avatara, which flooded the world with a deluge of the rasa of prema.

When Bhagavan Sri Krishna Himself, the attractor of all hearts, descended, assuming a charming golden lustre, this whole world was suddenly and entirely flooded by the deluge of rasa from the ocean of great prema and came to the greatest astonishment at transformations of prema never seen or heard of before.

Verse 115

उद्गृह्णन्ति समस्तशास्त्रमभितो दुर्वारगर्वायिताः
धन्यम्मन्यधियश्च कर्मतपसाद्युच्चावचेषु स्थिताः ।
द्वित्राण्येव जपन्ति केचन हरेर्नामानि वामाशयाः
पूर्वं सम्प्रति गौरचन्द्र उदिते प्रेमापि साधारणः ॥ udgṛhṇanti samastaśāstramabhito durvāragarvāyitāḥ

dhanyammanyadhiyaśca karmatapasādyuccāvaceṣu sthitāḥ | dvitrāṇyeva japanti kecana harernāmāni vāmāśayāḥ
pūrvaṁ samprati gauracandra udite premāpi sādhāraṇaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [kecit janah — some people]; durvara-garvayitah — full of irrepressible pride; samasta-shastram — all the shastras; abhitah — from every side; udgrihnanti — collected, or else prided themselves: "We have studied all the shastras; who is above us?"; dhanyam-manya-dhiyah ca — and those who considered themselves blessed; karma-tapasa-adi-uccavaceshu sthitah — standing on the higher and lower rungs of the paths of the regular and occasional rites enjoined by the smritis, of austerity, Sankhya, yoga and the like; kecana — some [of them]; dvi-trani eva — only two or three times; hareh namani — the names of Hari; japanti — chanted; [tatrapi te — but even then they]; vama-ashayah — with crooked hearts, that is, devoted to the path of karma; [asan — were]; [evam — so]; purvam [asit] — it was before; samprati — now; gauracandre udite [sati] — when Gaurachandra has descended; prema api sadharanah [abhut] — prema too has become common, that is, all, from the highest to the lowest, have obtained it.

115. Formerly some, unrestrainably proud, seized upon all the shastras everywhere; others, thinking themselves fortunate, held to rituals, austerity and other rules high and low; and some, with perverse intent, chanted two or three names of Hari. But now that Gaurachandra has risen, even prema has become common.

Gaudiya-bhashya. At the Gaura-avatara even those who think themselves learned, [the people of karma] and the ascetics obtain prema.

Some people, full of irrepressible pride, collected [the knowledge of] all the shastras from every side, that is, thought: "I know all the shastras; there is no one better than I." Others considered themselves blessed. Of these people, who thought they had attained the goal and stood on the higher and lower rungs of the paths of the regular and occasional rites enjoined by the smritis, and of austerity, Sankhya, yoga and the like, some only two or three times chanted the names of Hari, yet their hearts remained full of duplicity. So it was before; but now, when Gaurachandra has descended, prema too has become common property, that is, all are endowed with it, from the highest to the lowest.

Verse 116

देवे चैतन्यनामन्यवतरति सुरप्रार्थ्यपादाब्जसेवे
विष्वद्रीचीः प्रविस्तारयति सुमधुरप्रेमपीयूषवीचीः ।
को बालः कश्च वृद्धः क इह जडमतिः का वधूः को वराकः सर्वेषामैकरस्यं किमपि हरिपदे भक्तिभाजां बभूव ॥ deve caitanyanāmanyavatarati suraprārthyapādābjaseve

viṣvadrīcīḥ pravistārayati sumadhurapremapīyūṣavīcīḥ |
ko bālaḥ kaśca vṛddhaḥ ka iha jaḍamatiḥ kā vadhūḥ ko varākaḥ
sarveṣāmaikarasyaṁ kimapi haripade bhaktibhājāṁ babhūva ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sura-prarthya-pada-abja-seve — He service to whose lotus feet the gods long for; caitanya-namani — bearing the name Chaitanya; deve — (the Purusha of pastimes, or He who, accepting Radhika's mood, wishes to taste His own sweetness); avatarati [sati] — when He descended; vishvadricih — all-pervading; sumadhura-prema-piyusha-vicih — the sweetest waves of the nectar of prema; pravistarayati [sati] — when He spread far and wide; kah balah kah ca vriddhah — whether child or old man; kah jadamatih ka vadhuh — whether dullard or woman; kah varakah — whether a wretched low person; iha — in this world (samsara); sarvesham bhakti-bhajam — in all those endowed with bhakti; hari-pade — for the feet of Sri Hari; kim api aikarasyam babhuva — a certain unprecedented rasa arose, that is, in all, for the feet of Sri Hari, one unprecedented rasa of advaya-jnana (the non-dual Absolute Truth) awoke.

116. When the Lord named Chaitanya descended, service to whose lotus feet the gods pray for, and spread through the universe the sweetest waves of the nectar of love — who is a child, who an old man, who a dullard, who a woman, who a wretch? In all who are devoted to Hari's feet there arose an indescribable oneness of taste.

Gaudiya-bhashya. At the Gaura-avatara, children, the old, […], the blind, the deaf and others become intoxicated with the rasa of prema.

When Sri Chaitanyadeva, the Purusha of pastimes, service to whose lotus feet the demigods long for, descended into this world and spread far and wide the universal, sweetest wave of the nectar of prema — whether child or old man, woman or dull-witted, or a wretched low person — all in this world gained the capacity to obtain bhakti, and in each awoke for the feet of Sri Hari a certain unprecedented, wondrous rasa of advaya-jnana (the non-dual Absolute Truth).

Verse 117

सर्वे शङ्करनारदादय इहायाताः स्वयं श्रीरपि
प्राप्ता देवहलायुधोऽपि मिलितो जाताश्च ते वृष्णयः ।
भूयः किं व्रजवासिनोऽपि प्रकटा गोपालगोप्यादयः
पूर्णे प्रेमरसेश्वरेऽवतरति श्रीगौरचन्द्रे भुवि ॥

sarve śaṅkaranāradādaya ihāyātāḥ svayaṁ śrīrapi prāptā devahalāyudho'pi milito jātāśca te vṛṣṇayaḥ | bhūyaḥ kiṁ vrajavāsino'pi prakaṭā gopālagopyādayaḥ
pūrṇe premaraseśvare'vatarati śrīgauracandre bhuvi ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): purne prema-rasa-ishvare shri-gauracandre — when Bhagavan Gaurachandra Himself, the crown of the connoisseurs of the rasa of prema; bhuvi — to earth; avatarati [sati] — descended; sarve shankara-narada-adayah — all — Shankara, Narada and the others (in the form of Advaita, Srivasa and others); iha — into this world (prapanca); ayatah — came; svayam shrih api — Lakshmi Herself (in the form of Sri Lakshmipriya and Vishnupriya); prapta — appeared; deva-halayudhah api — and Baladeva, His manifest form, non-different from Bhagavan Himself; militah — was present (in the form of Nityananda); te vrishnayah — the Yadavas (in the form of Shachi, Jagannatha Mishra and others); jatah — descended; kim bhuyah — what more is to be said; vraja-vasinah gopala-gopi-adayah api — and the residents of Vraja — Nanda and the rest, the servants Raktaka, Citraka and the rest, the friends headed by Subala, the gopis of Vraja (the words "and the rest" also mean Yogamaya and the other shaktis) — all; prakatah — appeared, that is, all the eternally perfect devotees of Krishna's pastimes appeared in Gaura's pastimes.

117. All have come here — Shankara, Narada and the others; Sri (Lakshmi) herself has appeared; the god Halayudha (Balarama) has joined Him; those very Vrishnis have been born; and more — the dwellers of Vraja too have appeared: the cowherd boys, the gopis and the others — when Sri Gaurachandra, the Lord of the rasa of complete love, descended to earth.

Gaudiya-bhashya. At the Gaura-avatara, the appearance of […] the demigods and the eternal associates of Bhagavan.

When Bhagavan Gaurachandra Himself, the crown of the connoisseurs of the rasa of prema, descended to earth, all came — Shankara, Narada and the others (in the form of the devotees Advaita, Srivasa and the rest). Lakshmi Herself appeared (as Sri Lakshmipriya and Sri Vishnupriya). Baladeva — His manifest form, non-different from Bhagavan Himself — was present (in the form of Nityananda Raya, the crusher of the godless). The Yadavas too appeared (in Shachi, Jagannatha and others); what more is there to say — Nanda and the other residents of Vraja, the servants Raktaka, Citraka and the rest, the friends headed by Subala and the shaktis headed by the gopis — all the eternally perfect associates of Krishna's pastimes descended into Gaura's pastimes.

Verse 118

भृत्याः स्निग्धा अतिसुमधुरप्रोज्ज्वलोदारभाज-स्तत्पादाब्जद्वितयसविधे सर्व एवावतीर्णाः । प्रापुः पूर्वाधिकतरमहाप्रेमपीयूषलक्ष्मीं स्वप्रेमाणं वितरति जगत्यद्भुतं हेमगौरे ॥ bhṛtyāḥ snigdhā atisumadhuraprojjvalodārabhājastatpādābjadvitayasavidhe sarva evāvatīrṇāḥ | prāpuḥ pūrvādhikataramahāpremapīyūṣalakṣmīṁ

svapremāṇaṁ vitarati jagatyadbhutaṁ hemagaure ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): hema-gaure — Sri Gaurasundara, shining like molten gold; adbhutam — unearthly; sva-premanam — His own prema; jagati — on earth; vitarati [sati] — when He was distributing; bhrityah — the servants; snigdhah — the friends; ati-sumadhura-projjvala-udara-bhajah — (ati-sumadhura — sweetness free from the idea of aishvarya; projjvala — the elevated ujjvala; udara — charming; that is, also the beloveds who serve exclusively the sweet, elevated, charming ujjvala-rasa); sarve eva — all; tat-pada-abja-dvitaya-savidhe — near His two lotus feet; avatirnah [santah] — having descended; purva-adhikatara-maha-prema-piyusha-lakshmim — a wealth of the nectar of great prema greater than [the tasting of prema] in Krishna's pastimes; prapuh — obtained.

118. The servants, the friends, and those who partake of the sweetest, radiant and generous [rasa] — all of them descended beside His two lotus feet. When the golden Gaura distributes His wondrous love to the world, they obtained a wealth of the nectar of great love greater than before.

Gaudiya-bhashya. At the Gaura-avatara the eternal associates obtain a greater bliss of prema than before.

When Sri Gaurasundara, shining like molten gold, was distributing His unearthly prema on earth, the servants, the friends and the beloveds — the eternally perfect maidservants of madhura-rasa alone — all of them, having descended to His lotus feet, obtained a wealth of the nectar of great prema surpassing their former (in Krishna's pastimes) tasting of prema.

Verse 119

हसन्त्युच्चैरुच्चैरहह कुलवध्वोऽपि परितो
द्रवीभावं गच्छन्त्यपि कुविषयग्रावघटिताः । तिरस्कुर्वन्त्यज्ञा अपि सकलशास्त्रज्ञसमितिं क्षितौ श्रीचैतन्येऽद्भुतमहिमसारेऽवतरति ॥ hasantyuccairuccairahaha kulavadhvo'pi parito dravībhāvaṁ gacchantyapi kuviṣayagrāvaghaṭitāḥ | tiraskurvantyajñā api sakalaśāstrajñasamitiṁ

kṣitau śrīcaitanye'dbhutamahimasāre'vatarati ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): adbhuta-mahima-sare — supremely unearthly, endowed with the highest greatness; shri-caitanye — Sri Chaitanya; kshitau — to earth; avatarati [sati] — when He descended; ahaha — ah!; kula-vadhvah api — even noble married women; uccaih uccaih hasanti — laugh very loudly; ku-vishaya-grava-ghatitah api — (ku-vishaya — evil objects; grava — stone; ghatita — hearts made of it; that is, hard hearts made of the stones of evil objects of enjoyment); paritah — wholly; dravibhavam gacchanti — melt; ajnah api — even the ignorant; sakala-shastrajna-samitim — the society of the knowers of all the shastras; tiraskurvanti — put to shame.

119. When Sri Chaitanya, the essence of wondrous glory, descended to earth — ah! — even noble housewives all around laugh loudly, loudly; even hearts made of the stones of base sense attachments melt; even the ignorant put to shame the assembly of those who know all the shastras.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Description of the essence of the glory of the Gaura-avatara through the attainment of prema even by the hard-hearted, those given to evil sense objects, and the ignorant.

When the supremely unearthly Sri Chaitanya, endowed with the greatest glory, descended to earth, even noble married women (leaving shame, in love for Krishna) laugh aloud; even hearts hard as the stone of evil objects serving sense gratification melt completely; even the ignorant, devoid of knowledge of the truth (having obtained knowledge of the truth by Chaitanya's mercy), put to shame the whole society of the knowers of the shastras (that is, censure the shastric knowledge of those who think themselves panditas, skilled in the lower knowledge).

Verse 120

प्रायश्चैतन्यमासीदपि सकलविदां नेह पूर्वं यदेषां
खर्वा सर्वार्थसारेऽप्यकृत नहि पदं कुण्ठिता बुद्धिवृत्तिः । गम्भीरोदारभावोज्ज्वलरसमधुरप्रेमभक्तिप्रवेशः केषां नासीदिदानीं जगति करुणया गौरचन्द्रेऽवतीर्णे ॥ prāyaścaitanyamāsīdapi sakalavidāṁ neha pūrvaṁ yadeṣāṁ kharvā sarvārthasāre'pyakṛta nahi padaṁ kuṇṭhitā buddhivṛttiḥ | gambhīrodārabhāvojjvalarasamadhurapremabhaktipraveśaḥ

keṣāṁ nāsīdidānīṁ jagati karuṇayā gauracandre'vatīrṇe ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): iha — in this world (prapanca); purvam — before Chaitanya's appearance; sakala-vidam api — even in the panditas, the knowers of all the shastras; prayah caitanyam — (the function of consciousness, service to Krishna, is "caitanya"); na asit — was almost absent; yat — since; esham — their; kharva kunthita [ca] — extremely petty and inclined to doubt; buddhi-vrittih — the function of the intelligence; sarva-artha-sare api — (sarva — all, artha — the goals of man; the essence of the four goals is the fifth goal, krishna-prema) even in it; padam — (an object, that is, an inclination); na hi akrita — did not have; [kintu] idanim — but now; gauracandre — Gaurachandra; karunaya — out of mercy; jagati — into the world; avatirne [sati] — having descended; kesham — in whom; gambhira-udara-bhava-ujjvala-rasa-madhura-prema-bhakti-praveshah — (gambhira — inscrutable; udara — extremely wondrous; bhava — vibhava and anubhava; ujjvala-rasa — shringara-rasa; madhura-prema-bhakti; entry into it; that is, entry into the inscrutable prema-bhakti, full of the elevated ujjvala-madhura-rasa and nourished by the most wondrous ingredients — vibhava, anubhava and the rest); na asit — was there not?

120. Formerly even the all-knowing here had hardly any consciousness (chaitanya): their meagre, dull reasoning never set foot on the essence of all goals. But now, when out of mercy Gaurachandra has descended into the world — who has not entered into the bhakti of sweet love, the radiant rasa of deep and generous feelings?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Before the Chaitanya-avatara people in general did not obtain the elevated ujjvala-rasa.

Before Chaitanya's appearance in this world, even in the knowers of all the shastras who thought themselves panditas, the function of consciousness — service to Krishna — was almost covered. They did not aspire to krishna-prema, the crown of all the goals of human life, since their intelligence was extremely petty and inclined to doubt. But now that Sri Gaurachandra has mercifully descended into the world, who has not entered the inconceivable prema-bhakti, full of the elevated ujjvala-madhura-rasa and nourished by the most wondrous ingredients — vibhava, anubhava and the rest!

Verse 121

श्रीमद्भागवतस्य यत्र परमं तात्पर्यमुट्टङ्कितं
श्रीवैयासकिना दुरन्वयतया रासप्रसङ्गेऽपि यत् ।
यद्राधारतिकेलिनागररसास्वादैकसद्भाजनं तद्वस्तुप्रथनाय गौरवपुषा लोकेऽवतीर्णो हरिः ॥ śrīmadbhāgavatasya yatra paramaṁ tātparyamuṭṭaṅkitaṁ

śrīvaiyāsakinā duranvayatayā rāsaprasaṅge'pi yat | yadrādhāratikelināgararasāsvādaikasadbhājanaṁ
tadvastuprathanāya gauravapuṣā loke'vatīrṇo hariḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): shri-vaiyasakina api — even by the son of Vyasa, Shukadeva; yatra rasa-prasange — in the account of the rasa-lila; shrimat-bhagavatasya — of the Srimad-Bhagavatam; yat paramam tatparyam — that highest meaning (prema, the highest meaning of the rasa of the pastimes of Sri Radha and Krishna); duranvayataya — because of the difficulty of comprehension, that is, because there was no vessel able to taste the rasa of these pastimes and know their truth; uttankitam — was only indicated, not described in detail; yat [ca] — and that which; radha-rati-keli-nagara-rasa-asvada-eka-sat-bhajanam — (the rati-keli of Srimati Radhika — the love-sports in the nikunja; nagara — Sri Krishna, the crown of the supreme connoisseurs of rasa; the one best vessel for tasting the sweetness of His rasa and other pastimes); tat-vastu-prathanaya — to spread these two things; harih — Sri Krishna; gaura-vapusha — in the body of Gaura; loke — into this world; avatirnah — descended.

121. The supreme purport of the Srimad Bhagavatam, which Sri Vaiyasaki (Shuka), even in the account of the rasa dance, only indicated without revealing it, because it is hard to grasp; that which is the one true vessel for tasting the rasa of the hero (nagara) of Radha's love-sports — to spread that treasure, Hari descended into the world in the form of Gaura.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The Gaura-avatara for the sake of revealing the meaning of the Srimad-Bhagavatam and the rasa of Radha.

Even the son of Vyasa, Srila Shukadeva, in the account of the rasa-lila only touched on the secret meaning of the Srimad-Bhagavatam without describing it in detail, for it cannot be grasped by the study of the shastras alone. To reveal two things — this meaning of the Srimad-Bhagavatam and the one best vessel for tasting the sweetness of the rasa-lila and the other pastimes of Sri Krishna, the crown of the supreme connoisseurs of rasa, in the love-sports of the nikunja — Sri Krishna descended into this world in the body of Gaura.

Verse 122

केचिद्दास्यमवापुरुद्धवमुखाः श्लाघ्यं परे लेभिरे
श्रीदामादिपदं व्रजाम्बुजदृशां भावञ्च भेजुः परे ।
अन्ये धन्यतमा धयन्ति सुधियो राधापदाम्भोरुहं श्रीचैतन्यमहाप्रभोः करुणया लोकस्य काः सम्पदः ॥ keciddāsyamavāpuruddhavamukhāḥ ślāghyaṁ pare lebhire

śrīdāmādipadaṁ vrajāmbujadṛśāṁ bhāvañca bhejuḥ pare | anye dhanyatamā dhayanti sudhiyo rādhāpadāmbhoruhaṁ
śrīcaitanyamahāprabhoḥ karuṇayā lokasya kāḥ sampadaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): shri-caitanya-mahaprabhoh — of Sri Krishna-Chaitanya Mahaprabhu; karunaya — by the mercy; lokasya kah sampadah — what riches did people [not obtain]?; uddhava-mukhah kecit dasyam avapuh — of the devotees headed by Uddhava, some obtained the mood of service, like that of Raktaka, Patraka and others; pare — others; shlaghyam shridama-adi-padam lebhire — obtained the praiseworthy position of the friends Shridama and the rest; pare ca vraja-ambuja-drisham bhavam bhejuh — and others obtained the mood of the gopis of Vraja; anye dhanyatamah sudhiyah — still others, the most blessed and wise; radha-pada-ambhoruham — the sweetness of the lotus feet of Sri Radha; dhayanti — taste.

122. Some — Uddhava and the others — attained service; others attained the praiseworthy state of Shridama and the other friends; still others attained the mood of the lotus-eyed maidens of Vraja; and others, most fortunate and wise, drink [the nectar of] Radha's lotus feet. What riches has the world not received by the mercy of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu!

Gaudiya-bhashya. At the Gaura-avatara all obtain the wealth of prema in dasya, sakhya and the other [rasas], and [the most chosen] service to Radha.

What riches did people not obtain by the mercy of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu? Of the devotees headed by Uddhava (all the devotees of Krishna's pastimes headed by Uddhava descended into Gaura's pastimes), some obtained the Vraja mood of servants, like that of Raktaka, Patraka and others; others the praiseworthy position of confidential friends, like that of Shridama and others; others again obtained the mood of the gopis of Vraja; and still others, the most blessed and wise, taste [the sweetness of] the lotus feet of Sri Radha.

Verse 123

सर्वज्ञैर्मुनिपुङ्गवैः प्रवितते तत्तन्मते युक्तिभिः
पूर्वं नैकतरत्र कोऽपि सुदृढं विश्वस्त आसीज्जनः ।
सम्प्रत्यप्रतिमप्रभाव उदिते गौराङ्गचन्द्रे पुनः
श्रुत्यर्थो हरिभक्तिरेव परमः कैर्वा न निर्धार्यते ॥

sarvajñairmunipuṅgavaiḥ pravitate tattanmate yuktibhiḥ
pūrvaṁ naikataratra ko'pi sudṛḍhaṁ viśvasta āsījjanaḥ | sampratyapratimaprabhāva udite gaurāṅgacandre punaḥ
śrutyartho haribhaktireva paramaḥ kairvā na nirdhāryate ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sarvajnaih — by the omniscient; muni-pungavaih — best of sages; tat-tat-mate — their own doctrines; yuktibhih — by arguments and reasonings; pravitate [sati] — when they were widely spread; purvam — formerly; kah janah api — no person at all; ekataratra — in a one-sided doctrine; sudridham vishvastah — firmly convinced; na asit — was; samprati — now; apratima-prabhave gauranga-candre — when Sri Gaurachandra, incomparable in power; udite [sati] — has risen; punah — again; paramah shruti-arthah — the highest goal established by all the shrutis; hari-bhaktih eva — hari-bhakti alone; kaih va — by whom; na nirdharyate — has it not been determined?; [that is, although the mutually contradictory doctrines of the sages, born of speculation, were established by casuistic arguments and the like, their very authors doubted their doctrines; but the eternal religion of bhakti preached by the Eternal Purusha, Bhagavan Sri Gaurasundara Himself, is the real truth established by the shrutis, free from all deceit].

123. Formerly the all-knowing best of sages spread their various doctrines by arguments, and not one person was firmly convinced of any of them. But now, when Gauranga-chandra of matchless power has risen — who has not again become certain that the highest meaning of the shruti is devotion to Hari alone?

Gaudiya-bhashya. The difference between the doctrines born of speculation and preached by the sages, and the religion of bhakti preached [by Gaura] — the real truth; the prema-bhakti preached by Gaura is the highest goal established by the Vedas.

Although the omniscient best of sages expounded their doctrines [on the basis of] arguments, formerly no one was firmly convinced by these partial arguments. But now that Sri Gaurachandra, incomparable in power, has risen, who has not again become convinced that hari-bhakti alone is the highest goal established by the Vedas?

Verse 124

विश्वं महाप्रणयसाधुसुधारसैक-पाथोनिधौ सकलमेव निमज्जयन्तम् ।
गौराङ्गचन्द्रनखचन्द्रमणिच्छटायाः कञ्चिद्विचित्रमनुभावमहं स्मरामि ॥ viśvaṁ mahāpraṇayasādhusudhārasaikapāthonidhau sakalameva nimajjayantam | gaurāṅgacandranakhacandramaṇicchaṭāyāḥ

kañcidvicitramanubhāvamahaṁ smarāmi ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): gauranga-candra-nakha-candra-mani-cchatayah — of the radiance of the moonstones, the toenails of Gaurangachandra; maha-pranaya-sadhu-sudha-rasa-eka-pathonidhau — (as prema matures, sneha, mana and pranaya arise; with the growth of pranaya, raga, anuraga, bhava and [mahabhava] gradually arise; therefore "mahapranaya" is prema in the form of mahabhava; sadhu — excellent; sudha-rasa — the nectar rasa; eka — principal; pathonidhi — ocean; that is, in the excellent nectar ocean of mahapranaya); sakalam eva vishvam — the whole world; nimajjayantam — immersing; kancit — indescribable; vicitram — wondrous; anubhavam — power; aham smarami — I remember.

124. I remember a certain wondrous power of the radiance of the moonstones — the toenails of Gauranga-chandra — which immerses the whole world in the matchless ocean of the excellent nectar rasa of great love.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The glory of Gaurahari, the ocean of the nectar of the rasa of prema, who immerses the whole world [in the ocean of prema].

I remember the indescribable, wondrous power of the radiance of the moonstones of Gaurachandra's toenails, which immerses the whole world in the supreme nectar ocean of mahapranaya.

Verse 125

अतिपुण्यैरतिसुकृतैः कृतार्थीकृतः कोऽपि पूर्वैः ।
एवं कैरपि न कृतं यत्प्रेमाब्धौ निमज्जितं विश्वम् ॥

atipuṇyairatisukṛtaiḥ kṛtārthīkṛtaḥ ko'pi pūrvaiḥ |
evaṁ kairapi na kṛtaṁ yatpremābdhau nimajjitaṁ viśvam ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ati-punyaih — by those extremely pious, that is, strictly following good conduct; ati-sukritaih — possessing special sukriti, that is, the highest righteousness; purvaih — by such ancient great personalities; kah api [janah] — some people; kritarthi-kritah — were brought to the goal, that is, reached Vaikuntha and other worlds; [caitanya-candrena — by Chaitanya-chandra]; yat vishvam — in the way the world; prema-abdhau — in the ocean of prema; nimajjitam — has been immersed; evam — so; [prak — before]; kaih api na kritam — was done by no one.

125. The [great ones] of old, full of the highest merit and piety, brought perhaps one person or another to fulfilment. But to immerse the whole world in the ocean of love — this no one did.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari is the only one who has flooded the world with a deluge of prema.

Through the ancient great personalities, distinguished by good conduct and the highest righteousness, some people, reaching Vaikuntha and other worlds, obtained the fulfilment of their goal; but as Sri Chaitanya-chandra has immersed the whole world in the ocean of prema, no one did before.

Verse 126

धर्मे निष्ठां दधदनुपमां विष्णुभक्तिं गरिष्ठां
संविभ्राणो दधदिह हि हृत्तिष्ठतीवाश्मसारम् ।
नीचो गोघ्नादपि जगदहो प्लावयत्यश्रुपूरैः को वा जानात्यहह गहनं हेमगौराङ्गरङ्गम् ॥

dharme niṣṭhāṁ dadhadanupamāṁ viṣṇubhaktiṁ gariṣṭhāṁ saṁvibhrāṇo dadhadiha hi hṛttiṣṭhatīvāśmasāram | nīco goghnādapi jagadaho plāvayatyaśrupūraiḥ
ko vā jānātyahaha gahanaṁ hemagaurāṅgaraṅgam ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): dharme — with regard to dharma; anupamam — incomparable; nishtham — firmness or faith; dadhat [api] — even having; garishtham — the highest;

vishnu-bhaktim — bhakti to Sri Vishnu, or the inclination to serve; samvibhranah [api] — even having wholly taken shelter; ashma-saram iva — hard as iron; hrit — heart; dadhat — having; iha — in this world; tishthati — [a man] abides; [atha ca — and meanwhile, by the mercy of Sri Gaurasundara]; goghnat api nicah [janah] — a man lower even than a cow-killer, that is, a sinner; aho — ah!; ashru-puraih — with streams of tears; jagat plavayati — floods the world; ahaha — ah!; kah va — who indeed; gahanam hi hema-gauranga-rangam — the inscrutable play of the golden Sri Gaurasundara; janati — can comprehend.

126. Even one who has matchless fidelity to dharma and the weightiest devotion to Vishnu sometimes lives here with a heart as hard as iron; while one lower than a cow-killer — oh! — floods the world with streams of tears. Ah, who can fathom the deep play of the golden Gauranga?

Gaudiya-bhashya. The glory of the mercy of Gaurahari, who gives prema to the unworthy without waiting to be asked.

Even possessing incomparable firmness in dharma and having wholly taken shelter of the highest bhakti to Vishnu, people live on earth with hearts hard as iron; (but by the mercy of Sri Gaurahari) ah! even a man more sinful than a cow-killer (wholly turning away from sinful tendencies) floods the world with streams of tears. Ah! Who can comprehend the inscrutable play of the golden Sri Gaurangasundara!

Verse 127

क्वचित्कृष्णावेशान्नटति बहुभङ्गीमभिनयन्
क्वचिद्राधाविष्टो हरि हरि हरीत्यार्तिरुदितः । क्वचिद्रिङ्गन् बालः क्वचिदपि च गोपालचरितो जगद्गौरो विस्मापयति बहुगम्भीरमहिमा ॥

kvacitkṛṣṇāveśānnaṭati bahubhaṅgīmabhinayan
kvacidrādhāviṣṭo hari hari harītyārtiruditaḥ | kvacidriṅgan bālaḥ kvacidapi ca gopālacarito
jagadgauro vismāpayati bahugambhīramahimā ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): bahu-gambhira-mahima — (bahu — vast; gambhira — unfathomable by logic or hard to penetrate; He who has such greatness, that is, power); [sah — that]; gaurah — Gaurasundara; jagat vismapayati — astonishes the world; krishna-aveshat — because of His absorption in Sri Krishna; kvacit — sometimes; balah [san] — becoming a child; ringan — crawls on His knees; kvacit api ca — and sometimes; gopala-caritah [san] — displaying the nature of a cowherd boy; kvacit — sometimes; bahu-bhangim — many poses; abhinayan — enacting; natati — dances; kvacit — sometimes; radha-avishtah [san] — seized by the mood of Sri Radha in separation from Krishna; hari hari hari iti arti-ruditah — saying "Hari! Hari! Hari!", weeps with the pain born of the suffering of separation.

127. Sometimes, absorbed in Krishna, He dances, enacting many postures; sometimes, absorbed in Radha, He cries out in anguish: "Hari! Hari! Hari!"; sometimes He crawls like an infant; sometimes He behaves like a cowherd boy. So the great Gaura of unfathomable glory astonishes the world.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari, who astonishes the world by the pastimes of childhood, pauganda and the rest and by manifesting the mood of Sri Radhika, immersed in the rasa of separation.

Sri Gaurasundara, possessing vast and inscrutable power, astonishes the universe. Because of His absorption in Sri Krishna, He now, manifesting a child's [mood], crawls on His knees, now, displaying the nature of a cowherd boy, now, enacting many poses, dances, and now, seized by the mood of Sri Radha in separation from Krishna, weeps with the pain born of the suffering of separation: "Hari! Hari!! Hari!!!"

Verse 128

वेलायां लवणाम्बुधेर्मधुरिमप्राग्भावसारस्फुर-ल्लीलायां नववल्लवीरसनिधेरावेशयन्ती जगत् । खेलायामपि शैशवे निजरुचा विश्वैकसम्मोहिनी
मूर्तिः काचन काञ्चनद्रवमयी चित्ताय मे रोचते ॥ velāyāṁ lavaṇāmbudhermadhurimaprāgbhāvasārasphura-llīlāyāṁ navavallavīrasanidherāveśayantī jagat | khelāyāmapi śaiśave nijarucā viśvaikasammohinī

mūrtiḥ kācana kāñcanadravamayī cittāya me rocate ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): lavana-ambudheh — of the salt ocean; velayam — on the shore; shaishave api khelayam — even in childhood games; nija-ruca — by its own radiance; vishva-eka-sammohini — the only enchantress of the universe; nava-ballavi-rasa-nidheh — ("nava-ballavi" — the young Sri Radhika, the best of the gopis; Her rasa-nidhi, that is, the receptacle of Her rasa — Sri Krishna, the crown of the connoisseurs of rasa); madhurima-prak-bhava-sara-sphurat-lilayam — (madhurima — in sweetness; prag-bhava — the former bhava, that is, that supreme wondrous prema which the ashraya-vigraha Srimati Radhika bears for the vishaya-vigraha Krishna; the pastime manifesting through its essence, that is, the pastime of the divine madness of the mahabhava of Krishna, the king of rasa, in the mood of Radha — in it); jagat — the world [that has taken shelter of Him]; aveshayanti — immersing; kacana kancana-drava-mayi — a certain indescribable [form] of molten gold; murtih — form; me cittaya rocate — is pleasing to my heart.

128. On the shore of the salt ocean immersing the world in pastimes in which shines the essence of the feeling that the young cowherd girl (Radha) has for the sweetness of Krishna, the treasury of her rasa; already in His childhood games, by His radiance the one enchanter of the universe — an indescribable form, as if made of molten gold, delights my heart.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Devotion to Gaurahari, who immerses the world in the elevated ujjvala-rasa.

That form of Gaurahari which by the power of its own radiance, even in childhood games, is the only enchanter of the universe that has taken shelter of Him, and which immerses this world [that has taken] shelter in the pastime manifesting through the essence of the former bhava of the sweetness of Sri Krishna, the crown of the connoisseurs of rasa, the receptacle of the rasa of Sri Varshabhanavi, the best of the young [cowherd girls] (that is, through the essence of the supreme wondrous prema of Srimati Radhika, the ashraya-vigraha, for Krishna, the vishaya-vigraha) — that is, in the pastime of the divine madness of Krishna, the king of rasa, full of mahabhava, in the mood of Radha — that wondrous form of molten gold on the shore of the salt ocean is pleasing to my heart.

Verse 129

प्रेमा नामाद्भुतार्थः श्रवणपथगतः कस्य नाम्नां महिम्नः
को वेत्ता कस्य वृन्दावनविपिनमहामाधुरीषु प्रवेशः ।
को वा जानाति राधां परमरसचमत्कारमाधुर्यसीमा- मेकश्चैतन्यचन्द्रः परमकरुणया सर्वमाविश्चकार ॥ premā nāmādbhutārthaḥ śravaṇapathagataḥ kasya nāmnāṁ mahimnaḥ

ko vettā kasya vṛndāvanavipinamahāmādhurīṣu praveśaḥ | ko vā jānāti rādhāṁ paramarasacamatkāramādhuryasīmā-

mekaścaitanyacandraḥ paramakaruṇayā sarvamāviścakāra ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): prema nama — called prema; adbhuta-arthah — the highest goal of man; [prak — formerly]; kasya — whose; shravana-patha-gatah — hearing did it reach?; kah [va] namnam mahimnah — of the glory of the names (the genitive of the object); vetta [syat] — was a knower?; vrindavana-vipina-maha-madhurishu — (into the great sweetnesses of the forests of Vrindavana — "vipina," that is, thickets hard to penetrate); kasya praveshah — who had entry?; ko va — who indeed; parama-rasa-camatkara-madhurya-simam radham — (Radha, in whom is the limit of the wondrous sweetness of adhirudha-mahabhava, that is, Srimati Radhika, in whom alone the highest stage […] of the divine madness full of unearthly service to Krishna is manifest in its fullness — as the object of worship); janati — knew?; ekah caitanya-candrah — Sri Chaitanya-chandra alone (the word "candra" indicates the destruction of the darkness of duplicity and […]); parama-karunaya — out of supreme generosity; sarvam avishcakara — revealed all this; [Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, quoting this verse in the conclusion of the fifth chapter of the book Sri Mahaprabhu-shiksha, wrote: "The nectarean prema was brought into this world by Sri Chaitanyadeva alone; no one brought it before; to show this Srila Prabodhananda Sarasvati has presented this verse"].

129. Who had ever before heard of the wondrous thing called prema? Who knew the glory of the Names? Who entered the great sweetness of the forests of Vrindavana? Who knew Radha — the limit of the sweetness and wonder of the highest rasa? Chaitanya-chandra alone, out of supreme mercy, revealed all this.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari is the only one who revealed ujjvala-rasa, the sweetness of Vrindavana and the glory of Radha.

Who had ever heard of the highest goal of human life called "prema"? Who knew the glory of the holy name? Who had penetrated the impenetrable mass of the great sweetnesses of the forest of Vrindavana? Who knew (as the object of worship) Sri Varshabhanavi, the highest limit of the sweetness of the most wondrous adhirudha-mahabhava? Chaitanya-chandra alone, displaying the pastime of supreme generosity, revealed all this.

The beauty and dance of Gaura

Verse 130

पूर्णप्रेमरसामृताब्धिलहरीलोलाङ्गगौरच्छटा-
कोट्याच्छादितविश्वमीश्वरविधिव्यासादिभिः संस्तुतम् ।
दुर्लक्ष्यां श्रुतिकोटिभिः प्रकटयन्मूर्तिं जगन्मोहिनी- माश्चर्यं लवणोदरोधसि परं ब्रह्म स्वयं नृत्यति ॥ pūrṇapremarasāmṛtābdhilaharīlolāṅgagauracchaṭākoṭyācchāditaviśvamīśvaravidhivyāsādibhiḥ saṁstutam | durlakṣyāṁ śrutikoṭibhiḥ prakaṭayanmūrtiṁ jaganmohinī-

māścaryaṁ lavaṇodarodhasi paraṁ brahma svayaṁ nṛtyati ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): purna-prema-rasa-amrita-abdhi-lahari-lola-anga-gaura-cchata-koti-acchadita-vishvam — (that Purusha by whom the universe is covered with millions of golden rays of His body, set trembling by the waves of the ocean of the nectar of the rasa of perfect prema); ishvara-vidhi-vyasa-adibhih samstutam — ("Ishvara" — Maheshvara, the god of gods; "Vidhi" — Brahma; and fully praised by the sages headed by Vyasa); shruti-kotibhih durlakshyam — hidden from multitudes of shrutis; jagat-mohinim murtim —

a world-enchanting form; prakatayat — manifesting; ashcaryam param brahma — the world-astonishing Supreme Brahman, Sri Bhagavan; lavanoda-rodhasi — on the shore of the salt ocean; svayam nrityati — Himself dances.

130. He covers the universe with millions of reflections of the golden lustre of His body, swaying on the waves of the ocean of the nectar of the rasa of complete love; He is praised by the Lord (Shiva), the Creator (Brahma), Vyasa and others; revealing a form that enchants the world, barely discernible by millions of shrutis — oh wonder! — on the shore of the salt ocean the Supreme Brahman Himself dances.

Gaudiya-bhashya. […], beyond the reach of logic, […], the wondrously dancing Supreme Brahman, Sri Gaurahari.

He who has covered the universe with millions of rays of His golden lustre, set trembling by the waves of the ocean of the nectar of the rasa of perfect prema, and whom the wise — Shiva, Brahma, Vyasa and the others — incessantly praise — that wondrous Supreme Brahman, Sri Gaurasundara, manifesting a world-enchanting form hidden from millions of shrutis, Himself dances on the shore of the salt ocean.

Verse 131

कोऽयं पट्टधटीविराजितकटीदेशः करे कङ्कणं
हारं वक्षसि कुण्डलं श्रवणयोर्बिभ्रत्पदे नूपुरम् ।
ऊर्ध्वीकृत्य निबद्धकुन्तलभरप्रोत्फुल्लमल्लीस्रगा- पीडः क्रीडति गौरनागरवरो नृत्यन्निजैर्नामभिः ॥ ko'yaṁ paṭṭadhaṭīvirājitakaṭīdeśaḥ kare kaṅkaṇaṁ

hāraṁ vakṣasi kuṇḍalaṁ śravaṇayorbibhratpade nūpuram | ūrdhvīkṛtya nibaddhakuntalabharaprotphullamallīsragāpīḍaḥ krīḍati gauranāgaravaro nṛtyannijairnāmabhiḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): patta-dhati-virajita-kati-deshah — He on whose waist shines a silk cloth; kare kankanam — on the arm a bracelet; vakshasi haram — on the chest a necklace; shravanayoh kundalam — in the ears earrings; pade nupuram — on the feet ankle-bells; bibhrat — wearing; urdhvi-kritya nibaddha-kuntala-bhara-protphulla-malli-srak-apidah — He on whose high-bound curling hair is a crown adorned with a garland of full-blown mallika; kah ayam gaura-nagara-varah — who is this indescribable ("Gaura" — golden in colour; "nagara-vara" — the crown of the supreme connoisseurs of rasa; that is, Gaura is Krishna Himself, the crown of the connoisseurs of rasa, enacting the pastime on the side of the ashraya); nijaih namabhih — with the kirtana of His own names; nrityan — dancing; kridati — plays.

131. Who is this Gaura, the foremost nagara, the crown of the knowers of rasa?[2] His hips are adorned with silk cloth; on His arm is a bracelet, on His breast a necklace, in His ears earrings, on His feet ankle bells; He has gathered up and tied His abundant curls, crowning them with a garland of blossoming jasmine — He sports, dancing to His own names.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaura-Krishna, dancing to the sankirtana of His own names.

Who is this golden Purusha, the supreme nagara, the crown of the supreme connoisseurs of rasa, who, clothed in silk at the waist, with bracelets on His arms, a necklace on His chest, earrings in His ears, ankle-bells on His feet and a crown of full-blown garlands of jasmine (mallika) on His high-bound curling hair, plays, dancing to the kirtana of His names?

Verse 132

देवा दुन्दुभिवादनं विदधिरे गन्धर्वमुख्या जगुः
सिद्धाः सन्ततपुष्पवृष्टिभिरिमां पृथ्वीं समाच्छादयन् ।
दिव्यस्तोत्रपरा महर्षिनिबहाः प्रीत्योपतस्थुर्निज-प्रेमोन्मादिनि ताण्डवं रचयति श्रीगौरचन्द्रे भुवि ॥ devā dundubhivādanaṁ vidadhire gandharvamukhyā jaguḥ siddhāḥ santatapuṣpavṛṣṭibhirimāṁ pṛthvīṁ samācchādayan | divyastotraparā maharṣinibahāḥ prītyopatasthurnijapremonmādini tāṇḍavaṁ racayati śrīgauracandre bhuvi ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): nija-prema-unmadini shri-gauracandre — when Sri Gaurachandra, maddened with His own prema; bhuvi — on earth; tandavam — the dance; racayati [sati] — performed, that is, manifested; devah — the demigods; dundubhi-vadanam — the playing of the dundubhis; vidadhire — performed; gandharva-mukhyah — the chief Gandharvas; jaguh — sang; siddhah — the Siddhas; santata-pushpa-vrishtibhih — with an incessant rain of flowers; imam prithvim — this earth; samacchadayan — wholly covered; divya-stotra-parah — skilled in reciting charming hymns; maharshi-nivahah — hosts of great rishis; pritya — lovingly; upatasthuh — praised.

132. When Sri Gaurachandra, maddened with His own love, performed a vigorous dance on earth, the gods beat the kettledrums, the best of the Gandharvas sang, the Siddhas covered this earth with an unceasing rain of flowers, and hosts of great rishis lovingly drew near, offering wondrous hymns.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurahari's dance gives joy and wonder to the gods, the Gandharvas and the Siddhas.

When Sri Gaurachandra, maddened with His own prema, began His dance on earth, the demigods began to beat the dundubhis, the chief Gandharvas began sankirtana, the Siddhas covered the earth with an incessant rain of flowers, and hosts of great rishis, skilled in reciting charming hymns, began lovingly to offer praise.

Verse 133

क्षणं हसति रोदिति क्षणमथ क्षणं मूर्च्छति
क्षणं लुठति धावति क्षणमथ क्षणं नृत्यति ।
क्षणं श्वसिति मुञ्चति क्षणमुदारहाहारुतिं महाप्रणयसीधुना विहरतीह गौरो हरिः ॥

kṣaṇaṁ hasati roditi kṣaṇamatha kṣaṇaṁ mūrcchati kṣaṇaṁ luṭhati dhāvati kṣaṇamatha kṣaṇaṁ nṛtyati | kṣaṇaṁ śvasiti muñcati kṣaṇamudārahāhārutiṁ
mahāpraṇayasīdhunā viharatīha gauro hariḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): maha-pranaya-sidhuna gaurah harih — (mahapranaya — mahabhava; sidhu — the nectar rasa; marked by it, that is, Gaurahari full of mahabhava; the instrumental of attribute); iha — in this world; viharati — sports; kshanam hasati — now laughs; kshanam roditi — now weeps; atha kshanam murcchati — now loses consciousness; kshanam luthati — now rolls on the ground; kshanam dhavati — now runs; atha kshanam nrityati — now dances; kshanam shvasiti — now heaves long sighs; kshanam udara-haha-rutim muncati — now utters loud (great) cries of "ha! ha!"

133. Now He laughs, now weeps, now faints, now rolls on the ground, now runs, now dances, now sighs, now utters loud cries of "Ha! Ha!" — intoxicated with the wine of great love, Gaura-Hari sports here.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari, maddened by mahabhava.

Immersed in the nectar rasa of mahabhava, Sri Gaurahari now laughs, now weeps, now loses consciousness, now rolls on the ground, now runs swiftly and now dances again, now heaves long sighs and now utters loud cries of "ha! ha!" — (thus, in various states) He sports in this world.

Verse 134

अश्रूणां किमपि प्रवाहनिवहैः क्षौणीं पुरः पङ्किलां
कुर्वन् पाणितले निधाय बदरापाण्डुं कपोलस्थलीम् ।
आश्चर्यं लवणोदरोधसि वसन् शोणं दधानोंऽशुकं गौरीभूय हरिः स्वयं वितनुते राधापदाब्जे रतिम् ॥ aśrūṇāṁ kimapi pravāhanivahaiḥ kṣauṇīṁ puraḥ paṅkilāṁ kurvan pāṇitale nidhāya badarāpāṇḍuṁ kapolasthalīm | āścaryaṁ lavaṇodarodhasi vasan śoṇaṁ dadhānoṁ'śukaṁ

gaurībhūya hariḥ svayaṁ vitanute rādhāpadābje ratim ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): lavanoda-rodhasi — on the shore of the salt ocean; vasan — sitting; ashcaryam — wondrous; shonam amshukam — ("shona" — red, "amshuka" — garment); dadhanah — wearing (in the shastras it is said that Srimati Radhika too wears garments of a red colour — the colour of anuraga for Krishna); pani-tale — on the palm; badara-pandum — slightly pale like a badari fruit; kapola-sthalim — the cheek; nidhaya — placing; ashrunam — of tears; kim api pravaha-nivahaih — with certain wondrous streams; purah kshaunim — the ground before Him; pankilam — muddy; kurvan — making; svayam harih — Bhagavan Sri Krishna Himself; gauri-bhuya — having become Gauranga; radha-pada-abje — for Radha's lotus feet; ratim vitanute — spreads rati.

134. With indescribable floods of tears turning the ground before Him to mud, resting on His palm a cheek pale as a badari fruit, dwelling — how wondrous! — on the shore of the salt ocean and wearing a red garment, Hari Himself, having become golden, spreads love for the lotus feet of Radha.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari, who gives rise to […] attachment to the service of Radha.

Sri Krishna Himself, having accepted the bhava on the side of the ashraya, in the form of Gauranga sits on the shore of the salt ocean, clothed in saffron garments, and, resting on His palm His cheek, slightly pale like a badari fruit (which indicates vaivarnya, change of colour), turning the ground before Him into mud with streams of tears, spreads rati for Radha's lotus feet.

Verse 135

पादाघातरवैर्दिशो मुखरयन्नेत्राम्भसां बिन्दुभिः
क्षौणीं पङ्किलयन्नहो विशदयन्नट्टाट्टहासैर्नभः ।
चन्द्रज्योतिरुदारसुन्दरकटिव्यालोलशोणाम्बरः को देवो लवणोदकूलकुसुमोद्याने मुदा नृत्यति ॥

pādāghātaravairdiśo mukharayannetrāmbhasāṁ bindubhiḥ
kṣauṇīṁ paṅkilayannaho viśadayannaṭṭāṭṭahāsairnabhaḥ | candrajyotirudārasundarakaṭivyālolaśoṇāmbaraḥ
ko devo lavaṇodakūlakusumodyāne mudā nṛtyati ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): aho — ah!; pada-aghata-ravaih — with the sounds of the strokes of His feet, that is, with stamping in the dance; dishah — the ten directions; mukharayan — making resound; netra-ambhasam — of tears; bindubhih — with drops; kshaunim — the earth; pankilayan — making muddy; atta-atta-hasaih — with peals of loud laughter; nabhah — the sky; vishadayan — making white; candra-jyotih — with a golden lustre like that of the moon; udara-sundara-kati-vyalola-shona-ambarah — wearing charming saffron garments hanging from His beautiful waist; lavanoda-kula-kusuma-udyane — in the flowering garden on the shore of the salt ocean; kah devah — what Purusha of pastimes; muda — with joy (with bliss); nrityati — dances?

135. Making the directions resound with the stamping of His feet, turning the ground to mud with drops of tears, — oh! — making the sky bright with peals of laughter, shining like the moon, His red garment swaying on His beautiful, graceful hips — what Lord is this who dances joyfully in the flower garden on the shore of the salt ocean?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Sri Gaurahari, dancing the uddanda and displaying […] and many other anubhavas.

Ah! What Purusha of pastimes is this, shining golden like the moon, in charming saffron garments hanging from His beautiful waist, who dances in the flowering garden on the shore of the salt ocean, making the ten directions resound with the sound of the stamping of His feet, turning the ground into mud with drops of tears and making the sky white with peals of loud laughter?

Lament (shochaka)

Verse 136

सर्वैराम्नायचूडामणिभिरपि न संलक्ष्यते यत्स्वरूपं
श्रीशब्रह्माद्यगम्या सुमधुरपदवी कापि यस्यातिरम्या ।
येनाकस्माज्जगच्छ्रीहरिरसमदिरामत्तमेतद्व्यधायि श्रीमच्चैतन्यचन्द्रः स किमु मम गिरां गोचरश्चेतसो वा ॥ sarvairāmnāyacūḍāmaṇibhirapi na saṁlakṣyate yatsvarūpaṁ

śrīśabrahmādyagamyā sumadhurapadavī kāpi yasyātiramyā | yenākasmājjagacchrīharirasamadirāmattametadvyadhāyi
śrīmaccaitanyacandraḥ sa kimu mama girāṁ gocaraścetaso vā ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): sarvaih amnaya-cudamanibhih api — even by all the jewelled crowns of the shrutis, that is, by the Upanishads, the summit of the Vedas; yat-svarupam — whose essence; na samlakshyate — cannot be fully known; yasya — whose; kapi — never given before; sumadhura-padavi — supremely relishable path, that is, path of instruction; shri-isha-brahma-adi-agamya — ("Sri" — Lakshmi, the original guru of the [Sri-]sampradaya, worshipped by Sri Ramanujacharya, the teacher of vishishta-advaita; "Isha" — Rudra, worshipped by Sri Vishnusvami, the teacher of shuddha-advaita; "Brahma" — the original guru of the Brahma-sampradaya, worshipped by Sriman Madhvacharya, the teacher of shuddha-dvaita; "and the rest" — Sanaka, Sanandana and the others, the original gurus of the Catuhsana-sampradaya, worshipped by Nimbaditya; inaccessible even to them, that is, a path on which even they could not set foot); [atha ca — and yet]; ati-ramya — easy to travel, that is, very accessible to Gaura's devotees; yena — by that Gaurasundara; akasmat — unexpectedly; etat jagat — this world; shri-hari-rasa-madira-mattam vyadhayi — ("Sri" — Srimati Radhika, the embodiment of all the Lakshmis, "Hari" — Krishna; was intoxicated with the wine of the rasa of the prema of Sri Sri Radha-Krishna); sah shrimat caitanya-candrah — that Sri Chaitanya-chandra; mama giram cetasah va — of my words and mind; gocarah kimu [syat] — will He become accessible?

136. Whose nature even the crest-jewels of all the Vedas cannot discern; whose sweetest path, inaccessible even to Lakshmi, Shiva, Brahma and the others, is yet indescribably beautiful and easily accessible to those on whom His merciful glance has fallen; who suddenly intoxicated this world with the wine of the rasa of Sri Radha and Hari — can that Sri Chaitanya-chandra be within the reach of my words or my mind?

Gaudiya-bhashya. The prema which the Upanishads and the rest seek and which is hard to comprehend even for the four sampradayas — of Sri, Brahma, Rudra and [Sanaka] — is easily accessible to Gaura's devotees.

He whose essence even the Upanishads — the jewelled necklace on the crown of all the shrutis — cannot fully indicate; He whose never-before-given, supremely relishable path is hard to comprehend even for Sri, Brahma, Rudra and the others — that is, the path of the elevated ujjvala-prema is unknown not only to the founders of the sampradayas of Sri, Brahma, Rudra and Sanaka but even to their original gurus — but which is very easy [to walk] for those who have received His merciful glance, that is, which is very accessible to Gaura's devotees; He who suddenly intoxicated this world with the wine of the rasa of the prema of Sri Radha and Krishna — will that Chaitanya-chandra, radiating supreme beauty, become accessible to my words and mind?

Verse 137

जाड्यं कर्मसु कुत्रचिज्जपतपोयोगादिकं कुत्रचिद्
गोविन्दार्चनविक्रियः क्वचिदपि ज्ञानाभिमानः क्वचित् ।
श्रीभक्तिः क्वचिदुज्ज्वलापि च हरेर्वाङ्मात्र एव स्थिता हा चैतन्य कुतो गतोऽसि पदवी कुत्रापि ते नेक्ष्यते ॥

jāḍyaṁ karmasu kutracijjapatapoyogādikaṁ kutracid govindārcanavikriyaḥ kvacidapi jñānābhimānaḥ kvacit | śrībhaktiḥ kvacidujjvalāpi ca harervāṅmātra eva sthitā
hā caitanya kuto gato'si padavī kutrāpi te nekṣyate ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): ha caitanya — O Sri Chaitanya!; kutah gatah asi — where have You gone?; te padavi — Your (pure, secret path of the bhakti of the elevated ujjvala-rasa); kutrapi — in any sampradaya; na ikshyate — is not seen; kutracit — in one sampradaya; karmasu jadyam — the inertness of karma; kutracit japa-tapo-yoga-adikam — in another sampradaya austerity, japa, yoga and the like; kvacit api govinda-arcana-vikriyah — in another the rules of the worship of Govinda on the path of arcana; kvacit jnana-abhimanah — in another bhakti mixed with knowledge; kvacit ca — and somewhere; hareh — of Sri Hari; ujjvala api shri-bhaktih — even ujjvala-bhakti; vak-matre eva sthita — abides only in words, that is, no one practises bhakti in deed.

137. Somewhere there is dullness in rituals, somewhere japa, austerity, yoga and so on, somewhere ritualistic worship of Govinda, somewhere pride of knowledge; and the sacred bhakti of Hari, though radiant, somewhere remains only in words. Ah, Chaitanya, where have You gone? Your path is seen nowhere!

Gaudiya-bhashya. With the concealment of Gaurahari's pastimes, the path of bhakti again fell into disorder.

O Sri Chaitanya! Where have You gone! Your pure, secret path of the bhakti of the elevated ujjvala-rasa is no longer seen in any sampradaya. In one sampradaya there is the inertness of karma, in another austerity, japa, yoga and the like, in a third the rules of the worship of Govinda on the path of arcana, in a fourth bhakti mixed with knowledge, and somewhere even ujjvala-bhakti abides only in words, without practice.

Verse 138

अभिव्यक्तो यत्र द्रुतकनकगौरो हरिरभू- न्महिम्ना तस्यैव प्रणयरसमग्नं जगदभूत् । अभूदुच्चैरुच्चैस्तुमुलहरिसङ्कीर्तनविधिः स कालः किं भूयोऽप्यहह परिवर्तेत मधुरः ॥ abhivyakto yatra drutakanakagauro harirabhūnmahimnā tasyaiva praṇayarasamagnaṁ jagadabhūt | abhūduccairuccaistumulaharisaṅkīrtanavidhiḥ

sa kālaḥ kiṁ bhūyo'pyahaha parivarteta madhuraḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): yatra — at the time when; druta-kanaka-gaurah harih — Sri Gaurahari, golden like molten gold; abhivyaktah abhut — became visible in this world; [tada — then]; tasya eva mahimna — by His very greatness; jagat — the earth; pranaya-rasa-magnam abhut — was immersed in the rasa of prema; [ca] uccaih uccaih tumula-hari-sankirtana-vidhih — the loudly resounding, tumultuous Krishna-sankirtana; abhut — arose; ahaha — alas!; sah madhurah kalah — that sweet time; api kim bhuyah parivarteta — will it ever return?

138. When Hari appeared, golden as molten gold, by His glory alone the world was immersed in the rasa of love, and everywhere the sankirtana of Hari thundered loudly, loudly — ah, will that sweet time ever return?

Gaudiya-bhashya. The heartache of the devotees at the concealment of Gaurahari's pastimes.

At the time when Sri Gaurahari, shining like molten gold, became visible in this world, by His power the earth was immersed in the rasa of prema, and a tumultuous Krishna-sankirtana resounded loudly. Alas! Will that sweet time ever return?

Verse 139

सैवेयं भुवि धन्यगौडनगरी वेलापि सैवाम्बुधेः
सोऽयं श्रीपुरुषोत्तमो मधुपतेस्तान्येव नामानि तु ।
नो कुत्रापि निरीक्ष्यते हरि हरि प्रेमोत्सवस्तादृशो हा चैतन्य कृपानिधान तव किं वीक्ष्ये पुनर्वैभवम् ॥

saiveyaṁ bhuvi dhanyagauḍanagarī velāpi saivāmbudheḥ so'yaṁ śrīpuruṣottamo madhupatestānyeva nāmāni tu |
no kutrāpi nirīkṣyate hari hari premotsavastādṛśo
hā caitanya kṛpānidhāna tava kiṁ vīkṣye punarvaibhavam ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): bhuvi — on earth; sa eva iyam dhanya-gauda-nagari — the same blessed city of Gauda; sa eva ambudheh vela api — the same shore of the ocean with its gardens and groves; sah ayam shri-purushottamah — the same Sri Purushottama, Sri Jagannathadeva; madhupateh — of Sri Krishna; tani eva namani tu — the same names "Hare Krishna" and the rest; [vartate — exist]; hari hari — Hari! Hari! (a cry of grief); kutrapi — nowhere; tadrishah prema-utsavah — that festival of the bliss of prema; no nirikshyate — is seen; ha caitanya [ha] kripa-nidhana — O Chaitanya! O treasury of mercy!; tava vaibhavam — Your splendour; punah kim vikshye — shall I see again?

139. This is the same blessed capital of Gauda, the same shore of the ocean, the same Sri Purushottama (Jagannatha), the same names of Madhupati — but, Hari, Hari! — such a festival of love is seen nowhere. Ah, Chaitanya, treasury of mercy, shall I ever see Your glory again?

Gaudiya-bhashya. Separation from Gaura at the sight of […], Sri Navadvipa, the holy name of Sri Hari and the other things that awaken the mood of Gaurahari.

On earth there is the same blessed city of Gauda, the same shore of the ocean with its gardens and groves, the same Sri Purushottama, and the same names of Sri Krishna exist — "Hare Krishna" and the rest. Hari! Hari! But nowhere is that festival of the bliss of prema to be seen. O Chaitanya, O treasury of mercy, will my eyes behold Your splendour again?

Verse 140

यदि निगदितमीनाद्यंशवद्गौरचन्द्रो
न तदपि स हि कश्चिच्छक्तिलीलाविकाशः ।
अतुलसकलशक्त्याश्चर्यलीलाप्रकाशै- रनधिगतमहत्त्वः पूर्ण एवावतीर्णः ॥ yadi nigaditamīnādyaṁśavadgauracandro

na tadapi sa hi kaścicchaktilīlāvikāśaḥ | atulasakalaśaktyāścaryalīlāprakāśai-
ranadhigatamahattvaḥ pūrṇa evāvatīrṇaḥ ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): gauracandrah nigadita-mina-adi-amshavat yadi api [syat] — if you say that Gaurachandra is like the partial avataras — the Fish, the Boar and the others — of whom the shrutis speak; tat na hi — He certainly is not so; sah — they (the partial avataras, Matsya and the rest); kashcit shakti-lila-vikashah — the manifestation of some particular potency and pastime; [ayam gauracandrah — this Gaurachandra]; anadhigata-mahattvah — He whose greatness is unfathomed; atula-sakala-shakti-ashcarya-lila-prakashaih — (atula — incomparable; by the manifestation of wondrous pastimes endowed with all potencies); purnah eva — certainly in fullness; avatirnah — has descended.

140. If one says that Gaurachandra is like the partial incarnations — the Fish and the rest — He is not so: for they are only the manifestation of some potency and pastime. But He, whose greatness is unfathomable, revealing wondrous pastimes with the matchless fullness of all potencies, descended as the complete [Lord].

Gaudiya-bhashya. Gaurahari is not a partial avatara but the complete Bhagavan Himself, the son of the lord of Vraja.

If you say that Gaurachandra is like the partial avataras — the Fish and the others of whom the shrutis speak — in fact He is not so, for the partial avataras, Matsya and the others, are only the manifestation of some particular potency and pastime. But this Gaurachandra, whose greatness is unfathomed, displaying a wondrous pastime endowed with the incomparable fullness of all potencies, has certainly descended in fullness.

Verse 141

ब्रह्मेशादिमहाश्चर्यमहिमापि महाप्रभुः ।
मुग्धबालोदितं श्रुत्वा स्निग्धोऽवश्यं भविष्यति ॥ brahmeśādimahāścaryamahimāpi mahāprabhuḥ |

mugdhabāloditaṁ śrutvā snigdho'vaśyaṁ bhaviṣyati ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): brahma-isha-adi-maha-ashcarya-mahima api — He whose might, having neither equal nor superior, is more wondrous even than that of Sri Narayana, the original [source] of Brahma and Maheshvara; mahaprabhuh — Sriman Mahaprabhu; mugdha-bala-uditam — words befitting a foolish child; shrutva — having heard; avashyam — surely; snigdhah bhavishyati — will become affectionate, that is, will mercifully bestow tender love on me.

141. Though Mahaprabhu has a glory more wondrous even than that of the Original One, the source of Brahma and Shiva, on hearing the prattle of an innocent child He will surely be tender.

Gaudiya-bhashya. Bhagavan Gaurahari Himself is more primeval even than Shiva, Brahma and the rest, the possessor of inconceivable power.

Sriman Mahaprabhu, whose might, having neither equal nor superior, is more wondrous even than Sri Narayana — the original cause of Shiva and Brahma — on hearing these words befitting a foolish child, will surely become affectionate, that is, will mercifully bestow His tender love on me.

Verse 142

दृष्टं न शास्त्रं गुरवो न दृष्टा
विवेचितं नापि बुधैः सुबुद्ध्या ।
यथा तथा जल्पतु बालभावा- त्तथैव मे गौरहरिः प्रसीदतु ॥ dṛṣṭaṁ na śāstraṁ guravo na dṛṣṭā vivecitaṁ nāpi budhaiḥ subuddhyā | yathā tathā jalpatu bālabhāvā-ttathaiva me gauraharih prasīdatu ||

Word for word (Bhaktisiddhanta's anvaya): [maya — by me]; shastram na drishtam — the shastras have not been seen (not studied); guravah — the teachers of many sampradayas; na drishtah — have not been seen, that is, I have not received instruction from them; [su]buddhya — with […] intelligence; budhaih api — even with panditas learned in the shastras; na vivecitam — has there been discussion; [tathapi shri-gaurahari-vishayartha mama vani — and yet my words about Gaurahari]; bala-bhavat — out of childishness (in the anuvada: out of foolishness); yatha tatha [va] jalpatu — let them say whatever they may (however they may describe); gaura-harih — Gaurasundara; tatha eva — by that very means; me prasidatu — may He be pleased with me.

142. I have not seen the shastras, I have not seen gurus, the wise have not examined [my words] with their keen intellect — so however I may prattle like a child, may Gaura-Hari be pleased with me.

Gaudiya-bhashya. The only thing worth praying for is Gaurahari's mercy.

I have not seen [the shastras], I have not received instruction from many teachers, I have not discussed the shastras with panditas learned in them; and yet, however my words, spoken in foolishness, may describe Gaurahari, may Sri Gaurahari be pleased with me.

Thus ends the Sri Sri Chaitanya-chandramrita in twelve sections, composed by Shripada Srimat Prabodhananda Sarasvati — the jewel in the crown of the family of the tridandi-gosvamis, the best of wandering teachers, an eminent associate of Gaura.

Thus ends the Sri Sri Chaitanya-chandramrita in twelve sections, composed by Srimat Prabodhananda Sarasvati-pada, the crest-jewel of the line of tridandi-gosvamis, the best of wandering acharyas, the foremost of Gaura's associates.

Thus ends the Gaudiya-bhashya on the Sri Chaitanya-chandramrita.

1. "Knowers of non-duality" (advaita) — the experts in non-dualism (Advaita Vedanta); this is also how Bhaktisiddhanta explains the word.

2. Nagara-vara — according to Bhaktisiddhanta, "the crown of the highest knowers of rasa": Gaura is Krishna Himself, enacting His pastime on the side of the ashraya (tasting the feelings of Radha). It does not mean a worldly "gallant lover," nor does it support the doctrine of gaura-nagari, which Bhaktisiddhanta rejected.