PREFACE.

THE chief object which I have had in compiling this Handbook is to supply an existing want in a practical shape, as with the exception of Dr. Sutton's Introduction to Uriya, which was published about a generation ago, there is no book I know of, that will assist the Englishman in learning the Uriya language.

The plan adopted will, it is hoped, smooth over many difficulties, and make the language easy of acquisition by any one desiring to obtain a colloquial and useful knowledge of it.

Uriya, or rather O'diyá, is chiefly spoken in the Districts of Orissa in Bengal, and Ganjam in Madras, but the language is by no means confined to them, and extends over a much wider area of country than is usually supposed. Owing, however, to the countries in which Uriya is spoken being under the rule of three separate Governments, viz., Bengal, Madras, and the Central Provinces, the limits of the language have never been exactly ascertained. Its spoken area is irregular in shape, and extends in one line along the sea-coast from Midnapore in Bengal to Barwah, a small seaport town in Ganjam, a distance of 350 miles. From this point the language strikes inwards, leaving the sea-board free to Telugu, and continues to withdraw deeper and deeper inland, the farther it runs south, until it reaches its extreme limit amongst the Maliahs of Jeypore in the District of Vizagapatam. The language then runs northwards as far as Raigarh in the Central Provinces, and may be said to cease about half way between Sumbulpore and Raipore. It will thus be seen that the Uriya-speaking tract of country resembles a quadrilateral figure of four unequal sides, and contains an approximate area of 60,000 square miles. Amidst the mountainous tracts however of the ancient kingdom of Orissa dwell the wild tribes of Kols, Gonds, Kondhs, and Souras who each speak a language of their own. Their numbers must therefore be deducted in estimating the Uriya population. I append the names of the different Districts in which Uriya is spoken together with their approximate population.

JEYPORE IN VIZAGAPATAM.

Jeypore, in Vizagapatam, 429,513

Total, 8,900,040

Deducting one million as the probable population of the wild Hill tribes, we obtain a total Uriya population of close upon eight millions, without reckoning the Uriyas of Calcutta and Chota Nagpore.

The wildness and inaccessibility of the greater part of the country in which the Uriyas live will doubtless account for the backwardness of its inhabitants; and the small share of attention which their language has hitherto attracted, is rather due to this fact, than to the want of any intrinsic merits of its own.

Uriya is bounded north of Midnapore by Bengali, on the South by Telugu, and on the West by Hindustani. Its distinctive peculiarity is the frequent occurrence of the "o" sound, which gives it an accidental resemblance to Italian or Spanish, although I am not prepared to state that this resemblance goes much acquiring a useful practical knowledge of Uriya. I have abstained from attempting to give any undue prominence to the grammatical portion, as a mere knowledge of Grammar, however perfect, can no more teach a man to speak a language, than a knowledge of the science of music will teach him to play on the fiddle.

Practice in conversation, combined with a parrot-like imitation of the native pronunciation, is the only way to acquire a useful knowledge of any language. Never let the learner lose an opportunity of bringing what he knows into practice, no matter how small that knowledge may be, and with this object in view he must lay aside all hesitation in speaking. As a hint I would strongly recommend him always to read the language aloud, whether by himself or with a munshi, in order that he may accustom his ear to the sounds and acquire a correct pronunciation. Most people who attempt to learn a strange tongue begin by learning to read and write it. This is, however, a great mistake if their object is to learn to speak, as the more natural course is first to acquire a colloquial knowledge and afterwards to learn to read and write. For further remarks upon this subject, however, I would refer the learner to the "Mastery of Languages" by T. Prendergast, Esq., late Madras Civil Service, which is by far the best book upon the subject I have ever read.

With regard to the employment of the Roman character, I must observe that there are at present no means of acquiring an entrance into Uriya without being first obliged to wade through the mysteries, intricacies and uninviting difficulty of the Uriya alphabet. The crabbed hieroglyphics of native languages justify in my opinion any attempt to escape from their thralls, and when it is considered that this great stumbling-block in the shape of native alphabets is sufficient to prevent the greater number of our countrymen and countrywomen in India from ever attempting to learn the native languages, the great usefulness of the Roman alphabet in assisting to overcome this difficulty cannot fail to be recognized by all who consider the subject in an intelligent spirit. In romanising the Uriya character, I have taken all the care I could to ensure a correct pronunciation, and I trust that the arrangement of the alphabet and the explanations given therein will be sufficient to remove any doubts that may be entertained by the learner. One of the greatest advantages of beginning an Oriental language in the Roman character is, that it enables the learner to make use of the language at once, and thus encourages him to persevere. As Professor Wilson has however stated that the only trustworthy representation of an Indian word is its native costume, and that it can never be thoroughly nationalised in any other,

I do not advocate the employment of the Roman character with the object of supplanting the native one, but in order to render the acquisition of the latter more easy to all who desire to gain a fair knowledge of the language. I believe, however, that it is quite as possible to acquire a good pronunciation of Uriya with the use of the Roman character, as with its own, provided that the English pronunciation of the Roman letters be discarded, and the German or Italian substituted, and I can advise all European magistrates and others who are required to take down statements in the vernacular, to do so in the Roman character. A comparatively slight acquaintance with a language, and a good ear will enable a man to do this correctly, and he will find the practise an excellent one if he wishes to obtain a mastery of the language, besides being more likely to ensure the accuracy of the statements made before him. It is hoped that this book, although professedly for Europeans learning Uriya, may also be found useful to Uriyas learning English. And although the writer is aware that it is susceptible of improvement, yet he trusts that the mistakes are not such as to mar its usefulness.

In conclusion I take this opportunity of calling the attention of Government to the necessity that seems to exist for the compilation of a more or less uniform series of Handbooks, adapted to each of the different languages spoken in India. Competent persons might be selected to compile such a Handbook for every part of the country in which a distinct language prevails, and the Series might agree in its main particulars, so as to go hand in hand with the present collection of District Manuals now in course of preparation. In carrying out this scheme, the object to be attained, viz., a practical colloquial knowledge of each language should be chiefly aimed at, and I think that if this were done, and useless matter excluded, every one would recognize the utility of such a compilation. In many instances the want of such Handbooks to assist in bringing the governors and the governed more into contact, as in the case of so many of the numerous Hill tribes that exist in India, must force itself upon the conviction of all who give the matter their consideration.

The great importance to the administration of a knowledge on the part of public officers of the languages spoken by the people with whom they have to deal, seems to have been, to use their own words, lately prominently brought to the notice of the Government of India, and they have recently called for a general report as to the knowledge possessed by District officers of the less known, and more remote languages (Uriya amongst the number), in consequence of their having reason to fear that such languages were by no means generally known by officers living amongst the people they governed.

As regards many of the Hill languages, no means of acquiring them from books exists, and the necessity of Government promoting the compilation of Handbooks in such instances is sufficiently obvious, if they wish their officers to possess any real influence with the people, and the material welfare of the country to be developed.

In cases where no written character exists, as in Kondh, it is of the highest importance that the Roman character only should be used and adapted to the language. It is likely that such a course would ultimately have a most civilizing effect upon the wild Hill Tribes by narrowing the gulf that exists between them and the learning of the West.

The issue of the proposed Series might therefore begin with the less known languages and be gradually extended to those better known, for the compilation of which ample materials already exist. With regard to the latter, the only thing which would remain to be done, would be to give the material employed a definite method, and some plan of recognized usefulness, and these details might easily be settled by a properly qualified Committee appointed by Government.

As, however, the mere enunciation of such an idea without a practical illustration of what is in my humble opinion most required in acquiring a useful knowledge of a language, would not be of much avail, I beg to submit this book to the public as my part of the contribution towards carrying out the scheme, which I have ventured to suggest.

Berhampore, October, 1873.

URIYA ALPHABET.

The URIYA alphabet contains 50 letters. For easy reference the order of the ENGLISH alphabet has been observed.

DENTAL letters should be pronounced by applying the tongue to the teeth.

CEREBRAL letters can only be properly pronounced by turning the tip of the tongue upwards against the roof of the mouth.

URIYA words in the ROMAN character are to be pronounced as in GERMAN or ITALIAN rather than as in ENGLISH, and care must be taken that every letter be distinctly sounded.

It must be noted that the vowel œ pronounced like "o" in "not," is inherent in every consonant.

URIYA LETTERS.

Roman Letters.	Initial.	Medial.
A a	𑄢	has the sound of short "o," and is invariably written so, —
A' á	𑄣	is pronounced like á in father, 1
B b	𑄤	pronounced singly as "b," in combination as "w," —
Bh bh	𑄥	the aspirate of b pronounced by breathing hardly upon it, —
Ch ch	𑄦	softly pronounced like "ts" when not combined with e, i, or í, —
Chh chh	𑄧	the above letter aspirated, —
D d	𑄨	the dental or soft "d" as in "did," —
Dh dh	𑄩	the above letter aspirated, —
Ḍ ḍ	𑄪	the cerebral or hard ḍ as in the word "doll,":..... —
Ḍh ḍh	𑄫	the aspirate of the above letter, —
E e	𑄬	pronounced both long as in "ale" and short as in "end," —

GRAMMAR.

The following elements of Uriya Grammar contain, it is hoped, all that it is most essential for a learner to know.

Nouns.

Nouns in Uriya are declined as below :—

Singular.

NOMINATIVE	ଘର ghero, a house.
GENITIVE	ଘରର ghororo, of a house.
DATIVE	ଘରକୁ ghoroku, to a house.
ACCUSATIVE	ଘରକୁ ghoroku, a house.
LOCATIVE	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{ଘରେ ghore, or} \\ \text{ଘରରେ ghorore} \end{array} \right\}$ in a house. ଘରଠାରେ ghorotháre, at a house

The plural number is formed by adding to the singular the termination ମାନେ máne, which is sometimes abbreviated into ଏ e, as ଲୋକେ lóko, a person; plural ଲୋକମାନେ lókománe, or ଲୋକେ lóke, persons.

Plural.

NOMINATIVE	ଘରମାନେ ghorománe, houses.
GENITIVE	ଘରମାନଙ୍କର ghorománongkoro, of houses.
DATIVE	ଘରମାନଙ୍କୁ ghorománongku, to houses.

INSTRUMENTAL	ଘରମାନଙ୍କରେ ghorománongkore, by houses.

ABBREVIATIONS of the plural are not uncommon, as ଲୋକଙ୍କର lókongkoro, of the people, instead of ଲୋକମାନଙ୍କର lókománongkoro, &c., &c.

PRONOUNS.

The personal pronouns are four : ମୁଁ mun, I ; ତୁ tu, thou ; ସେ se, he ; and ତାହା táhá, it.

The honorific forms are ଅମ୍ଭେ ámbhe, I, ତୁମ୍ଭେ tum-bhe, you, and ଆମେ ápono, which may be rendered by “your honour,” and requires the verb to be in the plural number.

The pronouns ମୁଁ mun I, ତୁ tu, thou, and ସେ se, he, are thus declined :

ମୁ mu, I.

Singular.

NOMINATIVE	ମୁ mun, I.
GENITIVE	ମୋର móro, mine.
DATIVE	} ମୋତେ móte, to me, or me.
ACCUSATIVE

DATIVE	} ତାହାଙ୍କୁ táhángku or ତାଙ୍କୁ tángku, to them, or them.
ACCUSATIVE

In the plural ସେମାନଙ୍କର semánongkoro, theirs, and ସେମାନଙ୍କୁ, semánongku to them, are also used.

The relative pronoun ଯେଉଁ jeun, who or which, is declined as follows :—

Singular.

NOMINATIVE	ଯେଉଁ jeun, who, which.
GENITIVE	ଯାହାର jáháro, of whom.
DATIVE	} ଯାହାକୁ jáháku, to whom.
ACCUSATIVE

DATIVE	କାହାକୁ káháku, to whom.

Plural.

NOMINATIVE	କୋମାନେ komane.
GENITIVE	କୋମାନଙ୍କର kómánongkoro.
DATIVE	କୋମାନଙ୍କୁ kómanongku.

ADJECTIVES.

URIYA adjectives remain, as a rule, unaffected by either gender, number, or case : as, ଭଲ ମନୁଷ୍ୟ Bholo monushyo, a good man, ଭଲ ମାୟିକା Bholo maikiniá, a good woman, ଭଲ ଗୋମାନେ Bholo gots-homane.

THE affixes of URIYA adjectives are most of them derived from the SANSKRIT, and in a few instances it is the custom to retain their distinctive form in the feminine gender, as ସେ ଏକ ବୁଦ୍ଧି ମାୟିକା Sé eko budhi máikiniá, she is an old woman, ସେ ବାଲିକା ସୁନ୍ଦରୀ Se bálíká sundorí, that is a pretty girl.

COMPARISON is expressed either by means of the ablative case, or by means of the word ପ୍ରତି proti, the second object compared being placed first in the sentence ; as, ଝେଲିଠାରୁ ଗାଈ ଭଲ. Chhelitháru gai bholo. Lit. than a goat a cow good ; a cow is better than a goat, or, ଝେଲି କି ପ୍ରତି ଗାଈ ଭଲ Chheliki proti gáí bholo.

THE superlative is usually expressed with the assistance of the word ସବୁ sobu, all, or ସମସ୍ତ somosto, all, joined to the object compared ; as, ସବୁ ମନୁଷ୍ୟଠାରୁ ସେ ଭଲ Sobu monushyotharu se bholo, he is the best of men.

THE word ମଧ୍ୟରେ modhyore, in the midst of, is also employed to express the superlative ; as, ସବୁ ମନୁଷ୍ୟ ମଧ୍ୟରେ ସେ ଭଲ Sobu monushyo modhyore se bholo, he is the best of men.

Past verbal participle କର କори, having done.

Future relative participle କରବା koribá, who does or will do.

Past relative participle କଲ କолá, who or which did.

The formation of compound tenses is effected by means of the auxiliary verb ଥିବାର Thibáro, to be, and is as simple as the other parts of the Uriya verb :—

ମୁଁ କରୁଅଛି mu koru-ochhi, I am doing.

ମୁଁ କରୁଅଛି mu kori-ochhi, I have done.

ମୁଁ କରୁଥିଲି mu koru-thili, I was doing.

ମୁଁ କରୁଥିଲି mu kori-thili, I had done.

ମୁଁ କରୁଥିବି mu koru-thibi, I shall be doing.

ମୁଁ କରୁଥିବି mu kori-thibi, I shall have done.

ମୁଁ କରୁ ଥାଏ mu koru-tháe, I am in the habit of doing.

ମୁଁ କରୁ ଥାଏ mu kori-tháe, I used to do.

ମୁ କରୁଥିଲେ mu koru-thile, if I were doing.

ମୁ କରୁଥିଲେ mu kori-thile, if I had done.

ମୁ କରୁଥାନ୍ତି mu koru-thánti, I would be doing.

ମୁ କରୁଥାନ୍ତି mu kori-thánti, I would have done.

The use of the RELATIVE PARTICIPLE in Uriya is peculiar. It is formed by adding to the past verbal participle of the verb the termination ବା bá for the present tense, and ଲା lá for the past. Examples :

Present.

ମୁ ଦେବା ଧାନ mu debá dháno, lit. I, which give, the corn, or, The corn which I give.

Past.

ମୁ ଦେଲା ଟଙ୍କା mu delá ṭonká, lit. I, which gave, the rupee, or, The rupee which I gave.

Progr. present.

ମୁ ଦେଉଥିବା ଟଙ୍କା mu deu-thibá ṭonká, lit. I, which am giving, the rupee, or, The rupee which I am giving.

Progr. Past.

ମୁ ଦେଇଥିବା ଟଙ୍କା mu dei-thibá ṭonká, lit. I, which have given, the rupee, or, The rupee which I have given.

THE PASSIVE VOICE in Uriya is formed by adding to the passive participle of the verb, either the auxiliary verb ହେବାର hebáro, to become, or the irregular verb ଯିବାର jibáro, to go.

The PASSIVE PARTICIPLE is formed by adding ଅ a to the root of the verb, as ଦେଖ dekho, see, becomes ଦେଖା dekhá, seen. EXAMPLE, ସେ ଦେଖା ହେଲା Se dekhá helá the usual form, or ସେ ଦେଖା ଗଲା Se dekhá golá, he was seen.

If, however, the root of the verb ends in ଏ e, this vowel must be changed into ଇ i before the passive affix ଅ á, as in ଦେ de, give, which becomes ଦିଆ diá, given.

In like manner when the root of the verb ends either in ଅ á, or in ଓ ó, the passive participle is formed by changing these two vowels into ଉ u before the passive affix ଅ á thus ଖା kha, eat, becomes ଖୁଆ khuá, eaten, and ଧୋ dhó, wash, becomes ଧୁଆ dhuá, washed. Whilst ମାର máro, beat, becomes ମରା morá, beaten.

THE VERB ଯିବାର jibáro, to go, is irregular and is declined as follows :—

PRESENT TENSE.

Person

Singular.

- | | |
|-----|-----------------------------------|
| 1st | ମୁଁ ଯାଉଛି mu jáuchhi, I go. |
| 2nd | ତୁ ଯାଉଛୁ tu jáuts-hu, thou goest. |
| 3rd | ସେ ଯାଉଛି se jáuchhi, he goes. |

Person

Plural.

- | | |
|-----|--|
| 1st | ଅମ୍ଭେ ଯାଉଛୁ ámbhe jáuts-hu, we go. |
| 2nd | ତୁମ୍ଭେ ଯାଉଛୁ tumbhe jáuts-ho, you go. |
| 3rd | ସେମାନେ ଯାଉଛନ୍ତି semáne jáuts-honti, they go. |

PAST TENSE.

Person	Singular.
1st	ମୁ ଗଲି mu goli, I went.
2nd	ତୁ ଗଲୁ tu golu, thou wentest.
3rd	ସେ ଗଲା se golá, he went.

Person	Plural.
1st	ଅମ୍ଭେ ଗଲୁ ámbhe golu, we went.
2nd	ତୁମ୍ଭେ ଗଲୁ tumbhe golo, you went.
3rd	ସେମାନେ ଗଲେ semáne gole, they went.

FUTURE TENSE.

ମୁ ଯିବି mu jibi, I will go.
 ଅମ୍ଭେ ଯିବୁ ámbhe jibu, we will go.

CONDITIONAL.

ମୁ ଯାନ୍ତି mu jánti, I would go.
 ଅମ୍ଭେ ଯାନ୍ତି ámbhe jántu, we would go, etcetera.
 PRESENT v. part. ଯାଉ jáu, going.
 PAST v. part. ଯାଇ jái, having gone.
 PRES. rel. part. ଯିବା jibá, who or which goes.
 PAST rel. part. ଗଲା golá, who or which went.

Lastly, CAUSAL VERBS in Uriya are formed by adding ଅ á to the root of the verb, as in the passive voice, and adding to the passive participle the termination ଇବାରo ibáro.

EXAMPLE: ଦେଖିବାର dekhibáro, to see, becomes ଦେଖାଇବାର dekháibáro, to cause to see i. e. to show ଦେବାର debáro, to give becomes ଦିଆଇବାର diáibáro, to cause to give.

ଖାଇବାର kháibáro, to eat, becomes ଖୁଆଇବାର khuái-báro, to cause to eat i. e. to feed.

ଆଣିବାର ánibáro, to bring, becomes ଅଣାଇବାର onáibáro to cause to bring, i. e. to fetch, and ଡାକିବାର dákibáro, to call, becomes ଡକାଇବାର dokáibáro, to cause to call i. e. to summon.

ENGLISH.

About 26 or 27 days ago I was sleeping in my field. I looked up and saw people tying the corn together, and removing it from the field. Náná Nárono was tying a bundle together. I ran and laid hold of him with the bundle from behind. Upon catching hold of him, I shouted out, "They are stealing my corn, run." I then got frightened, for I thought that the Dandasí man might perhaps stab me or beat me, and so I untied the rope round the bundle and bound him with it. A'nondo A'tsári and Tsondro Moni then arrived, and upon their coming I brought him close to the watch-hut. As I was standing holding him, Gongá Dáso came up and told me to let him go. I said: "He was taking away my corn, why should I let him go? I will report (the matter) to the authorities." He said to me: "We will (first) see how much of your corn he has taken." I said: "I am holding the thief, do you go and see." A'nondo A'tsári and Gongadáso, these two went to have a look at the field. Directly afterwards Govindo Náýoko came up with a man Govindo Náyoko ran away with a knife in his hand (lit. holding a knife). Tsondro Moni Behor and Ononto Atsário said to us: "If we had not been here, he would have cut him down in another instant (lit. in this instant)." When we saw him, he was running away with a thrust-knife as long as this (indicating its length on his arm). Gongá Dáso then said to the complainant: "If he had stabbed you, you would have lost your life, let this thief go." Whereupon the complainant said: "He has taken away a lot of my corn, and I won't let him go." Gongá Dáso said (to him): "Give information to the authorities (Sirkar) and let him go." The complainant however would not, and so Gongá Dáso untied the thief and let him go. This is all I know, I know nothing more, Sir.

 THIRD WITNESS.

Some 27 or 28 days ago I was sleeping in my field at night. The man named A'rtotá A'tsário shouted out, that they were carrying off his corn, and called to us to run. Accordingly I ran. When I got there, they were running off with 3 or 4 bundles of corn. When Anonto A'tsário, A'nondo A'tsário and myself saw (them) they threw down the bundles and ran off.

Gongá Dáso said: "Go and look at your field, and see how much of your corn has been stolen." The complainant said: "I am holding the thief; if I let go, the thief will run away; do you go and examine it." Anondo Atsário taking Gongá Dáso with him (then) went to the field. At this time the man named Govindo Náyoko arrived and said: "Who bound you?" The complainant said: "I laid hold of him for stealing my corn." Govindo Náyoko said: "If you do not let him go, I will cut you down" (idiom.) and raised his knife in the air, (lit. upwards). The complainant had a stick in his hand which he raised. The Dandási retreated but came at him again, and raised his knife. The complainant shouted out: "He is killing me, run," and again menaced him with his stick. All this time we were sitting near the watch-house. We stood up and said: "Hullo! Govindo Náyoko, what's all this about? Have you come to murder a Brahmin in the night time? On Friday morning at 9 o'clock Head Constable Chelomáyá brought a necklace to my shop to weigh. Upon his telling me to weigh the gold, and to let him know whether it was good or bad, I weighed the golden necklace. When I had weighed it, I told him that the weight was three tolas and one grain. The Head Constable then said: "I have got another piece of the same gold with me, look at this." I did so, and found that the specimen differed from the gold in the piece that the Head Constable had with him. I told him that he had received one rupee less gold than the weight (of gold) supplied by him, and told him to take it to another shop and enquire, and that I was ready to take it of him at the price which any other shopkeeper might settle. The other shopkeeper fixed the same price upon it that I had. I afterwards left for my house to take my meal. After eating, I returned to the bazar, and sat down in my shop. This man Rama Sámi, then came up and abused me in terms which will not bear repeating (lit. which will not come to the mouth). Upon his abusing me thus, I told him that it was not proper of him. STATEMENT MADE BY PRISONER.

About eight days ago Rájibo Dákuá, a child nine years old, son of a man named Nokiyá in my village, was outside in the street eating tamarinds and wearing on his neck a gold bead bracelet. It was then 9 o'clock of day. I called to him to come to the jungle to eat honey. Upon his coming with me, I took the child to a nullah which is in the jungle (forming) the boundary between Belogumá and Mádhobopoli. As I intended to take the gold bead necklace that was on the child's neck and to kill him I threw the child into the nullah, and pressing with my knee upon his waist, I twisted the child's neck round with both my hands. Upon my twisting his neck in this manner, the child died immediately. After the child was dead, I broke off the gold bead necklace that was on his neck with eight single beads and the centre ornament. One of the beads dropped on the ground. I was unable to find it. Afterwards I cleared away the earth to a depth of one span with my hand, and buried the child in the

After I had returned to my village, Rájibo Dákuá's father Nokiyá saw me the evening of the same day. He questioned me about his son having gone with me as some child had told him. I said that I knew nothing about it. At the same moment I left the village of Belogumá and went off to my aunt's house in the village of Mádhobopoli. I went to sleep in my aunt's house. At the break of day a Constable came and arrested me. Upon his asking me the reason of my running away from my village, I told him that I had run away, as I had committed an offence. I went with the constable and shewed him the place where I had buried Rájibo Dákuá. Upon clearing away the sand from the spot, the corpse appeared. I had taken the necklace that was on Rájibo Dákuá's neck and placed it in the purse in my waist. I gave the necklace to the constable at the village of Belogumá. When I brought Rájibo Dákuá from the village, I took him into the jungle for the express purpose of killing him, and of taking the bead necklace that was on his neck. I have stated the whole of the above circumstances truthfully as they occurred, and no one taught me what I was to say.

On Thursday at 2 o'clock I arrived at the fair from my village. At 4 o'clock I bought a cloth. The price for the cloth was 11 annas 9 pice (lit. three 4 anna pieces, less 3 pice). After the price had been fixed I asked him to give me the cloth. Defendant said : "First put down your money." When he had said this, I told him that I would give him a Rupee, and that he must give me the change out of it. So saying I gave him a rupee. I gave him a good rupee and he gave me back a 4-anna piece and 3 pice. He rang the rupee in the air three times after receiving it, and placed it in his waist. I (then) said : "Give me my cloth." He tore (the stuff in two) and gave me one half of it for the cloth. As he gave it to me, I said : "This is thin, keep it, and give me back my Rupee." Upon my saying this, the defendant told me to throw the cloth away. I said : "Take off² an anna, and give it to me." The cloth-merchant said that he would do no such thing. I stood there for a short time. A man close to me said : "You have made him tear up his stuff, take your cloth and come away, what more do you want?" I afterwards came away. After leaving I looked at the shops, and walked along looking at them, until I came to a fish shop and After getting there, the weaver said: "You gave me this Rupee." "I never gave it, Sir," said I. "There is a mark on my rupee, I took it from my money-box" (lit. I was holding it).

I said to a constable: "There was a mark on the Rupee which I gave (him) look and see." The constable said: "What sort of a mark was there on your Rupee?" I said: "There was a mark of turmeric upon it (lit. upon my Rupee)." Upon saying this, the constable procured the good Rupee and examined it. When he had examined it, there was a mark of turmeric upon it. The constable said: "Come along to the station." We went to the station. The rupee which I had given was a good one. The weaver rang it three times, and (then) put it away. It was the defendant who produced the bad Rupee (lit. tin,) which is in court.

On Thursday I took 5 Rupees and 8 annas (with me) in coppers, and changed them at the market. I got rid of my coppers and left the market to return to my village. On my way I passed by the road where the cloth shops are. When I got there Kanu Suáin and Goborá Báriko were buying stuff at a weaver's shop. A bargain had already been struck, and they were all standing about. Afterwards this weaver said: "Give (me) a Rupee, and take the cloth." Goborá Báriko then took a rupee from his money-box, and gave it. After Goborá Báriko had given him the rupee, he (the weaver) tore off the cloth and gave it to him, as also 4 annas 3 pice. After giving it, we went to the fish-shop. The weaver afterwards came to the fish shop and pulled Goborá Báriko, and the two men pulling and shoving each other, returned to the cloth-shop. I bought some fish and taking them with me went off to my village. I saw Goborá Báriko place a Rupee in this weaver's hand. The weaver examined the Rupee twice, and gave him back 4 annas 3 pice.

On Thursday I went to market. This man was bargaining with the weaver about some stuff. Upon my asking him about it, he told me that the price agreed upon was 12 annas. When the weaver asked for the price, this man gave him one Rupee. The weaver rang the Rupee three times, and put it on the cloth. He then took out 4 annas and 3 pice, and gave it to this man. Afterwards the weaver handed Goborá Báriko the cloth and I returned to my village. Goborá Báriko never gave the weaver this bad Rupee. I was quite close. The weaver rang the Rupee three times, and as the Rupee was a good one he kept it and gave him (back) 4 annas 3 pice. It was 4 o'clock at the time.

land in my favour. He made a second and a third complaint to the Tahsildar. The Tahsildar neither accepted them nor listened to him. The following year he made a complaint before the court at Aska, but they would have nothing to say to it. From that day up to the present time, Asirá and I have been on bad terms. Meanwhile in the month of June last, the Forest Overseer came to Dorpingiá and other villages and told me that I must point out to him the trees that had been cut down in the fields. Accordingly I took two other persons with me, and went to inspect the fields, and after inspecting them, we measured their length and breadth and counted the large trees. (The overseer) then appointed us three persons as his witnesses, and upon receiving summonses from the Tahsildar we repaired to Russellkonda. The Tahsildar then fined all persons, who had cut down the forest trees three rupees each. In consequence of the enmity between Asir Moliko and myself, he and I do not speak up to the present day. Asir Moliko is trying to ruin my reputation, and has deceitfully appeared against me as a witness to prove that I got him punished, and that he has given me a bribe (i. e. paid me money) for the express purpose of depriving me of the very land for which he formerly sued me. I have never taken his money. He was also on bad terms with me for some time, because I got his brother fined for clearing land, and also because he thinks that I bought the two fields that were mortgaged to me by Dodziá. About three years ago Dodzia was caught for stealing. At that time the Police Deputy asked me to assist him in the case, which I did. For these reason Dodziá complains against me, but from the 12th of September I was employed as a road gumasta and I never said one word about any order having come from the Collector, nor did I frighten him. What they say about having given me money is false. The Kondhs have three or four times put their heads together to drive me out of the village of Dorpingiá. Three people in Russellkonda heard them say that if Krishna Sau did not pay them back the amount of fine that they had paid, that they would charge him with taking money from them. Again, last year I went to plough my field, and Dodzia assembled some Kondhs in order to beat me, and the Kondhs came out and abused me and said that if I ploughed the land again they would kill me. I ploughed the land however and then came away. Out of spite for this they have brought this charge against me, but I neither asked them for money, nor went to their village. When I was road gumasta, I stayed in Bodimá village for three or four months, but I never once had any conversation with Bishnu, nor did I either obtain any money from him, nor ask him for any.

In Balingiá village, Moliko and others are in the habit of borrowing corn of me from year to year, and I have been thither to dun them for my debt. My people have also been thither from time to time to ask for it. This year the above named Moliko cut down a big jungle, and the whole village built themselves new houses. Upon my reporting this circumstance to the Forest Overseer, the forest peons went and interfered, and Moliko has a grudge against me as he knows that I reported it, but I neither took any money from him, nor did I ask him for any. If I had taken money from the Kondhs when they cleared the land of trees, would I have informed the Overseer about their having done so? I gave information to the Overseer about all the land that they had cleared. The Overseer told me to report any clearing to him and accordingly I did so, otherwise it was no business of mine. After the Kondhs had been fined, I informed the Overseer at the same time that they intended to ruin me. They have the whole country on their side, whilst I stand quite alone. It is now twenty years since I built a house in the village, and am supporting myself by farming and trading. They have brought a false complaint against me, but I have committed no offence. LETTERS IN ROMANIZED URIYA AND ENGLISH.

N. B.—The following letters on different subjects will serve to illustrate the epistolary style made use of by the Uriyas. The learner may study the letters with advantage.

1. FIRST LETTER.

ENGLISH.

The petition of us three persons Benu Behorá, Norosingho Goudo, and Sároti Mohángkudo, is as follows : It is now 21 days since the Berhampore Police sent us hither. We are poor people, and gain our livelihood by daily cooly. The two complainants have given us no batta, and up to the present time at the rate of two rupees a man, we three people have incurred expenses amounting to six rupees. As our children have nothing to eat at home, they must have suffered want. If your honour will therefore give us permission, we will go away to our homes. Moreover we will come and present ourselves on whatever day they summon us. May you graciously be pleased to understand this.

If therefore my peons go about without guns, swords, bows and arrows, etcetera, whether when with me, or when going about amongst the villages, it will be exceedingly dangerous for these people. Moreover on the road which I have to travel to Serogodo, there is a great deal of jungle, and if these people do not carry their arms, my own life might perhaps be in danger. Besides, when I go into the Maliahs, if they do not carry arms, it will be impossible to get on. 5. FIFTH LETTER.

After many salams, the letter which Lakshmi Narayana Pat Naik, an inhabitant of the town of Parla Kimidi, writes, is as follows :

Whilst I was discharging the duties of head writer, which is hereditary in our family, in the service of Sri Rajah Jaganath Gajapathi, and supporting myself along with my family, your honour dismissed me, and as nine months have now passed since I was brought to head-quarters as a prisoner, and the tenth month has begun, the soukars who lent me a thousand rupees refuse to give me credit any longer, and cause me much annoyance. The women and children, forty souls in all, also suffer much for want of food and clothing. Moreover my aunt has rheumatism, my elder sister has diarrhoea, and my wife has fever, and as there is no one to help them, and give them medicine, it seems as if they must die. Besides the twenty-first day and night of my son's birth is near at hand. For this reason and on account of the water and air here not agreeing with my body, and causing my stomach to swell, and giving me rheumatism, I beg that your honour who is just, generous,

 6. SIXTH LETTER.

After many salams, the letter which Narayano Ráyo Guru, an inhabitant of the Fort of Surada writes is as follows: On the 8th of this month as I was not worthy to visit your honour, I wrote a letter, and made known to you the ups and downs of my previous condition. You will (doubtless) have taken it into your consideration, and I now beg to state, that formerly we enjoyed a good reputation in our family, and supported ourselves by trading, but as at present I have no work, the time passes in great distress (for me.) Formerly your honour gave me work for some days in Surada as peshkar, but as I have no work at present, I only stay at home in great distress and do nothing. I therefore beg that your honour, who is a father to me, will take compassion upon me, and grant me employment any where in some capacity attached to a zamindary taluk, in order that I may earn my livelihood. In spite of their efforts, however, the Kondhs of the said village would not desist, and after pulling down their houses, they left for the mountains. In a battle which took place, four Kondhs were killed, and one man wounded, and although the aforesaid Bhokto Pátro and Podono Behorá Dolái did their best to put a stop to the disturbances, they were unable to do so. Immediately upon their coming and informing me of the matter, I sent off a letter and the two individuals in question to your honour. Large numbers of Kondhs from the Maliahs, attached to the Bodogodo side, have also joined these Kondhs. I therefore begged in my letter that your honour would take the matter into your consideration and come here, as it would then be easy to put a stop to the disturbances. I also gave written instructions to all the fort-holders that if any outrages took place of a criminal nature, they were forthwith to send a written report of the same to Russellkonda. In accordance with these instructions, they have been in the habit of acting without fail from that time to the present, but whether in the present instance they have reported matters or not, I am not aware. I myself have received no information from them until now, but I now beg to report what I know to your honour in this letter.

The petition of Dzonárdono Pátro, who is performing the duty of Karnam in Khásopágoḍo in the Bodogodo Táluk, is as follows: I have neither land nor wages attached to my office of Karnam. I used (formerly) to receive yearly russooms in the shape of one adda of paddy for every bharnam of land from the cultivating ryots and Inamdars, as well as other articles. Besides this, ryots subject to the moturpha tax; and the merchants of the place used to give me a rupee or twelve annas for each house, but for the last two years, owing to the Government having abandoned the collections of the Moturpha (tax), all these people have proved refractory and will not pay me my fees. For the last five years also the inamdars have paid me nothing, either in the shape of paddy or other things. As the ryots did not pay me, I presented two petitions to the Collector, but got no answer to them. I have also informed your honour personally two or three times of the fact, and have presented petitions besides, but owing to my bad luck, it was all of no use. I therefore write this letter to you. This place is a fort, and if I do not stay here, and always do my work, I cannot exist. If I don't get any food, how am I to do my work? I therefore beg

Whilst I was constantly in the village the Karji and ryots conspired together against me, and reported to the Tahsildar that I was absent from it. At present, in consequence of my having made a charge against these ryots five months ago for throwing down rubbish, they assembled in one spot (lit. sat down), and after some of them had agreed to be the complainants, and others the witnesses, they asserted : firstly, that I had secretly cultivated land bearing an assessment of three annas ; secondly, that I had embezzled Government revenue because I had accidentally omitted to insert any date in a receipt ; and lastly, the complainants and their shepherds gave evidence that I had embezzled the pound dues collected from the shepherds, because I had prevented the ryots' female buffaloes from trampling down the bund recently repaired by Government. The persons who were witnesses in the first case, then became complainants in the second, and deposed that the Karnam had pledged his Inám land for ten rupees, because I had allowed the first complainant Jogonátho Prodháno to cultivate part of it, and in order to prove this, they produced a forged document made by the complainants, and to which they themselves were the only witnesses, and although neither I nor my divided brother had executed the document, owing to the name of the person who wrote the document not appearing upon it, they asserted that I had written the whole of it, so as to appear as if my brother and myself had each of us consented in part. Had I really mortgaged my land to the first complainant, why would the complainants not have informed the Government of it in the first complaint that they brought against me? With regard to this fact I informed the Tahsildar that I would prove that the complainants had conspired against me, but without paying any attention to this, he never wrote the matter in any statement, nor examined the witnesses whom I called, and without paying the slightest attention to what I said, he accepted the story of the complainants as perfectly true. I therefore beg that your honour will be pleased to take compassion upon me, and after calling for the records of the cases inquired into by the Tahsildar, that you will ascertain all the circumstances connected with the complaints preferred against me, and reverse the sentences passed upon me.

nurdzoyo Bhondzo reigned in the above taluk. Owing to the rajah however having probably misconducted himself, and the matter coming to the knowledge of Government, Mr. — came to this taluk accompanied by an army, and took the rajah prisoner. The Government then placed the aforesaid taluk under “amani” tenure, and Dili Ochuto Rámo became manager, and transacted the business. Formerly Dyáno Poto Náyoko, who was diwán to the Rajah, and Rotonó Prodháno had managed the country and were acquainted with all the affairs of the Kondh Maliahs attached to the taluk. In Fusly 1226, two persons named Dorá Bisoi and Báhu Bolindro began to create disturbances and after first killing Rotonó Prodháno and Dyáno Poto Náyoko, they caused disturbances throughout the country and in three days’ time burnt all the villages of the taluk, killed and beat the people, and plundered all their property. The people of the taluk then abandoned all that they had and fled to the different taluks of Dosopolá, Nuágoḍo, Athogodo, Dhorakóto and Sorodá, and there we abode. For a whole year, we remained in these taluks, suffering much distress. In the meanwhile the people who had caused the disturbances got hold of a female child and pretending that it was the rajah’s son Boḷo Bhodro Deu, they made it rajah. The Government, however, detained Rajah Sri Koro Bhondzo at Bhábopuro (Bápur). The rajah having left that place by some means or other, came to Durgáprosádo, and having summoned the people, who had caused the disturbances, to the place, and sent for the female child, whom they had made rajah, he ascertained its sex, and forwarded the child to the gentleman. Subsequently Mr. Thackeray came to Nuágán, and after summoning Sri Koro Bhondzo the rajah, he made over to him the estate, and sending for the people who had fled from this and the other taluks, he entrusted them to the rajah's care, and departed. During the fourteen years that the rajah reigned, besides affording us every protection, he allowed no thefts, disturbances, or other misdemeanours to take place, and we lived in great comfort. After this, in Fusly 1242, the Government brought forward Dhonondzo Bhondzo as rajah, and gave him the estate, and upon their detaining rajah Sri Koro Bhondzo at the shrine of Purushottomo, Dhonurdzo Bhondzo reigned as rajah for three years. Upon his incurring the displeasure of Government by some misconduct, the rajah through fear fled to the Maliahs, upon their bringing an army into the country, and having summoned all the paiks of the taluk, he gave them strict orders not to fire upon the Government troops. In the meanwhile the Government troops advanced and encamped at Galeri. Up to that time not a single bullet had been fired. The riotous people though who had formerly caused the disturbances disobeyed the rajah's orders, and fired upon the troops. The rajah hearing that his people had disobeyed his orders, and fired upon the Government troops was grieved, and departed this life in the Maliahs. Those people then plundered all the wealth and property that the rajah possessed. They burnt and plundered the taluk, and fired besides upon the Government troops. After this the Honourable Mr. Russell advanced with a considerable army. Brodzo Radzo Bhondzo, the son of Rajah Dhonondzoyo Bhondzo then came to Nuágán together with his family, and gave himself up to Mr. Russell. Mr. Russell detained him in old Gumsur, and taking the troops with him, he went over the Maliahs and investigated matters, hanging some of the rebels, and transporting others as prisoners to some other country. The Government also deported Brodzo Radzo Bhondzo from the country, and detained him elsewhere. After a tahsildar had been appointed to the taluk, no disturbances took place, and for some time we lived in peace. Mr. Russell also protected us ryots, and in order that no disturbances might occur, he allotted Inam land to the Sirdars, Naiks and Paiks of the taluk, 1500 men in number. In Fusly, 1256, the former rebels and the people attached to them joined together, and commenced disturbances, burning the villages, and killing and plundering. Owing to these disturbances, the General advanced into the country with an army, and whether owing to the influence of certain persons, or because he thought it right, he released the persons who had been confined in the prison at Nuágán for taking part in the disturbances with the other rebels. committing numerous other misdemeanours, they have caused all sorts of trouble for the last three years. We people in the taluk are all of us without any security and are afraid for our lives. Owing to no man moreover being able to follow his trade or profession in peace, we are reduced to the last extremity by this accumulation of evils. Moreover the rebels after coming to a village and burning it, and killing people, say to the others: "If you people in the taluk don't go to the Sirkar, and beg of them to set up the Rajah, neither your lives nor your property will be safe." They also state openly that the Rajah's child is with them. For three years past, these troubles have not been put a stop to, and now that they are constantly repeated, the lives of all the people are in danger. We therefore humbly pray that your honour taking into consideration the safety of the people, will determine, whether it is better, as it appears, to put a stop to this accumulation of evils by restoring the Raj in order that we may live in peace; or, if this course does not commend itself to Government, that either troops may be sent, or other steps taken in order to take all these rebels prisoners, so as to allow of a stringent enquiry being made, in order that a repetition of these troubles may never again occur, and in order that we may henceforth continue to live in peace.

Be pleased to consider it.

FIFTH PART.

A PRACTICAL HANDBOOK OF THE URIYA OR O'DIYA' LANGUAGE.

NI'TI KOTHA' OR MORAL FABLES.

1. THE DEER AND LION.

ENGLISH.

Once upon a time a deer ran away through fear of a hunter, and entered into a cave. A lion afterwards caught the deer there and killed it. Then the deer as it was dying began to say: "Alas! what a misfortune has happened to me; in fleeing from the hand of man, I have fallen into the hand of an enemy more powerful than he."

The moral of this is, that if a man does not act carefully, it may so happen that in fleeing from one danger, he will fall into another danger still more dreadful.

2. THE HARE AND THE TIGRESS.

A hare approaching a certain tigress exclaimed: "O tigress listen, whilst I produce a numerous offspring yearly, you from your birth until your death do not bring forth more than one." The tigress then said: "The solitary offspring which I produce is worth more than your numerous ones."

The moral of this is, that one good son is better than many bad ones.

3. THE WOMAN AND THE GOOSE.

ENGLISH.

A certain woman kept a goose which laid every day a silver egg. Then the woman said to herself: "If I increase the goose's food, it will perhaps lay at the rate of two eggs daily." With this desire she began to give it more food than previously, but owing to the goose's stomach becoming swollen with excess of food, it died.

The moral of this is, that the man who is desirous of excessive profit loses even his previous gains.

4. THE MOSQUITO AND THE BULL.

A mosquito sat on a bull's horn, and, in its pride imagining that it was heavy, said to the bull: "If you feel tired by my sitting upon you, pray say so, and I will fly away to some other spot." The bull said: "O mosquito, I had not even the slightest idea that you were sitting upon me."

The moral of this is, that he who prides himself upon his own renown and prowess will speedily suffer shame.

5. THE MAN AND DEATH.

ENGLISH.

A man who was carrying a faggot of sticks along, got very tired as it was heavy, and throwing down the faggot began to pray for his death. Then death approaching him said: "Tell me, why are you calling me?" Hearing these words the man said: "I called you that you might place this faggot upon my head."

The moral of this is, that all desire to dwell in the world, and lo! even though a man be very old and unfortunate, yet scarce any one wishes for death.

6. THE TORTOISE AND THE HARE.

Once upon a time a tortoise and a hare making the top of a mountain their goal, said: "Come let us see which of us two will arrive there first." Hereupon the two began to run. The hare owing to its being slender, light, and swift was boastful, and went to sleep in the middle of the road; but the tortoise being heavy and slow, was afraid, and not delaying on the road was the first to ascend the mountain. The hare afterwards arose from its sleep and seeing that the tortoise had got there first, was much ashamed.

The moral of this is, that if there be a contest between a strong man and a weak one, it is very improper for the strong man to be careless, because by the neglect and carelessness of a powerful man, a weak one is able to gain the victory.

7. THE THORN TREE.

A thorn tree said to a gardener : " If any one were to take the trouble to plant me in a garden, and water my roots every day, then kings would certainly desire to see my flowers and fruit." The gardener accordingly took it, and planting it in a fertile spot in the middle of the garden, watered it twice every day. By so doing the thorns of the tree all increased in strength, and owing to its boughs and branches extending, the trees that grew on all four sides of it, all perished ; afterwards its roots grew by degrees, and the tree overran the whole garden. Finally no one could go near it on account of the thorns.

The moral of this is, that if you give shelter to a bad man and protect him, his evil disposition will only increase, and should you do him a kindness he will only do you an unkindness in return.

8. THE BLACK MAN.

ENGLISH.

A black man took his clothes off and smeared his body over with chunam. A certain person thereupon asked him : " Why do you smear your body over with chunam ? " Hearing this, he answered : " I am smearing my body over with chunam in order to get white." The other man thereupon said : " O black man, do not give your body unnecessary trouble, for although you may be able to make the chunam on your body black, yet chunam can never remove your own blackness."

The moral of this is, that a bad man may make a good man bad, but no one can ever make a bad man good.

9. THE LION AND THE TWO BULLOCKS.

A lion one day sprang at two bullocks in order to kill them, but the two bullocks keeping together would not allow the lion to get between them and struck at him with their horns. The lion afterwards played them a trick and said : " O bullocks, if you will separate, I will do no harm to either of you." The bullocks relying upon this speech separated, and the lion then killed them both.

The moral of this is, that so long as men remain united, no man's enmity can prevail against them, but once they separate, all will perish.

10. THE LONG-HORNED ANTELOPE.

 ENGLISH.

Once upon a time a long-horned antelope suffering from thirst went to a pond and drank. Then seeing in the midst of the water the ugliness of its feet it was grieved, but on seeing the length of its horns it was pleased. In the meanwhile some hunters approached, and the antelope fled to the open waste land, and the hunters were unable to catch it. Afterwards it entered a dense jungle, and its long horns becoming entangled in the branches of trees and in brambles, the hunters killed it without any difficulty. The antelope as it was dying, regretfully exclaimed: "Alas! alas! the feet which I despised saved me, but the horns of which I was proud have caused my destruction."

The moral of this is that, a man should not enquire whether a thing is beautiful or ugly, but what its use is, and relying upon this, should estimate its value accordingly.

 11. THE ANTELOPE.

Once upon a time an antelope was sick, and the friendly and neighbouring animals coming to see it, ate up all the grass both dry and sprouting that grew all round it. After the antelope's sickness had abated, it wished to partake of some food but could find

The moral of this is, that it is better not to have any relations at all rather than to have foolish ones.

12. THE LION AND BULLOCK.

A lion once intended to kill a bullock, but as the strength of the bullock was considerable, it did not dare to go near it. Afterwards it went to it and said in a deceitful manner: "O bullock, I have killed a fat young lamb, and I want you therefore to come to my house and dine."

The bullock accordingly accepted the invitation, and went to the lion's house, where the lion had collected a quantity of firewood, and some very large vessels. The bullock seeing this returned. The lion then said: "Why do you go back after coming here?" To these words the bullock replied: "I have understood your intention; for a mere lamb such a fuss would not be made, and it is quite evident that your preparations were made for some animal larger than it."

The moral of this is, that to accept the tales of dangerous people as true and to associate with them, is not the duty of wise people.

13. THE LION AND THE FOX.

ENGLISH.

A lion becoming weak from old age was no longer able to capture living animals. On this account he practised cunning for the sake of food and pretending that he was sick, he took up his abode in a cave resolving that if any animals came to see him, he would seize them and eat them in the cave. Afterwards a fox came, and standing at the door of the cave made his obeisance and said : " O king of beasts, how are you ?" The lion then said : " Why do you not come inside ?" In answer to this, the fox said, " Sir, I see the signs of many animals going in, but not a single one of any coming out."

The moral of this is that it is not proper for men to begin any business without reflection.

14. THE LION AND THE MAN.

Once upon a time a lion and a man met each other on a road, and a dispute arose between them regarding their respective strength and prowess. The lion was boastful of its strength and power. Meanwhile the man drew upon a wall the picture of a man grasping the throat of a lion, and laughingly showed it to the lion. The lion then said ; “ If a lion could draw like a man, the lion would not have allowed the man to grasp the lion’s throat, but the lion would be grasping the man’s.”

The moral of this is, that from a man’s own witnesses no one else can make his escape.

15. THE SPIDER AND THE BEE.

Once upon a time, a spider said to a bee : “ If you will make me your companion, I shall be able to gather honey like you.” As it was constantly repeating the same story, the bee consented. The spider accordingly accompanied the bee, but being unable to gather any honey, the bee stung it and killed it. As the spider was dying, it exclaimed regretfully : “ Alas ! alas ! Why did I ever attempt a work which I had not the ability to perform ?”

The moral of this is, that if a man does not possess the ability to perform a work and enters upon it, because he thinks himself very clever, the falseness of his representations and his own unworthiness will be made self-evident, and he will reap the fruit thereof.

16. THE YOUNG MAN.

ENGLISH.

Once upon a time a young man went into a river of his own accord, and not knowing how to swim began to sink. A certain man was coming along the path at the time, and the young man seeing him, called to him to save him. The man then came near and began to abuse the young man for falling into the water. The young man exclaimed "Hulloh! save me first, and abuse me afterwards!"

The moral of this is, that if a friend of yours falls into any danger, rescue him first from it, and you can then abuse him afterwards.

17. THE DOG AND THE FOX.

Once upon a time a dog saw a piece of tiger's skin in some place, and going towards it began to gnaw in with his teeth. A fox then said to the dog: "If this tiger were alive, you would soon learn that the claws on its feet were longer than your teeth."

The moral of this is, that it is not by exposing a strong man to indignities in times of danger, that the prowess of low-born people will be displayed.

 ENGLISH.

The belly and the body had a dispute between each other about supporting and protecting the body. The body said: "It is I who by my own individual strength carry the body." The belly answered: "If I did not take food, you would not be able to carry anything."

The moral of this is, that no one should despise another, for every one has it in his power to render a mutual kindness.

19. THE SUN AND WIND.

A wager arose between the sun and wind to see which of the two would first be able to make a man part with his cloth. The wind accordingly began to blow with great velocity, and the man to protect himself against it, wrapped his cloth round his body. The clouds afterwards dispersed, and the sun began to shine with great power; as he felt very warm, and the cloth was heavy, the man removed it from his body.

The moral of this is, that the wishes of gentle people are more likely to be accomplished, than those of strong but unstable men.

20. THE TWO COCKS.

ENGLISH.

Two cocks had a fight about some thing. One of them remained the conqueror, and the other one ran away. Then the one who was victorious perched itself on a very high straw-rick, and boastfully flapping its wings, began to crow proudly. A hawk in the meanwhile perceived it, and swooping down upon it, carried it off.

The moral of this is, that he who boasts of his own prowess will quickly be put to shame.

21. FABLE OF CERTAIN HYÆNAS.

Certain Hyænas who saw a cow's hide in a cave wanted to eat it, but the cave was full of water and the hide was nowhere near the edge. Thereupon they all of them with one accord reflected amongst themselves that if they first drank up the water and drained the cave dry, they would be able to get at the skin and eat it. Having come to this resolution, they drank water until their stomachs were full. Owing to their drinking so much water, however, their stomachs burst, and they all died. Moreover they were not able to eat the hide at all.

The moral of this is, that the counsels of people of little sense is profitless.

22. THE FOX AND THE ADJUTANT BIRD.

ENGLISH.

Although the fox was not very much given to joking, and was rather given to getting angry, yet one day he came to the determination to make fun of his neighbour the adjutant-bird. After making a great fuss therefore, he invited him to dinner at noon. Meanwhile he had placed different kinds of messes in large but shallow plates. The adjutant-bird afterwards presented itself at the dinner table, but being only able to dip in the point of its beak, in spite of repeated endeavours, it was unable to appease its hunger. In the meanwhile the fox was lapping up, and eating away rapidly, and in pressing his guest to eat he would say: "How do you like all these viands of mine?" The fox was however joking, and the adjutant-bird knowing this, replied, without paying attention to what he said: "Your viands are all of them exceedingly good." Subsequently when taking leave, the adjutant-bird invited the fox so pressingly to come to his house, that the latter found himself quite unable to decline.

Accordingly on the appointed day after the fox had gone to the adjutant-bird's house as he had promised, no sooner were the eatables brought in, than the fox perceived his own great shame, for the adjutant-bird had divided the meat into small pieces, and had quite filled a narrow long-necked vessel with them. The fox not being able to help himself to any of the eatables remained quite hungry, but the adjutant-bird

I should like you to eat with as much pleasure as I did on the day of your invitation." The fox upon hearing this speech, lowered his head, and was much displeased. The adjutant-bird thereupon exclaimed : " Do not be annoyed at this affair, for those who are unable to stand a joke themselves, should not attempt jokes upon others."

The moral of this is, that when we attempt a joke upon another man, we should first reflect whether when he returns it, we are able to bear it ourselves or not.

23. THE BOYS AND THE FROGS.

A number of frogs were sitting in a large paddy field. At the edge of this field some children began to play roughly with broken pieces of tile, and every now and then showered the pieces into the water. The moral of this is, that it is exceedingly unjust and cruel of us to find any pleasure in the destruction of the comfort and happiness of others.

24. THE COWHERD AND THE PEASANTS.

A herdsman who grazed his cattle in a certain plain was frequently in the habit of raising a false alarm and calling out : " Ho ! peasants, a tiger has got in amongst my cattle ; come to my rescue." Thereupon the peasants hearing the alarm given by the herdsman, would snatch up their sticks and other weapons and run to kill the tiger ; but there was no tiger, and they found that the cowherd had only been mocking them. Thus annoyed by the herdsman's deceitful fun, they had to go back again. Some time afterwards a tiger really got into the cattle-fold. The herdsman thereupon began to shout loudly for the peasants, as before, but they, thinking that the herdsman was probably deceiving them, did not go to assist him, and the tiger, after killing several cattle, finally killed the herdsman himself. As the cowherd was dying, he called out and said : " Alas ! alas ! why did I ever deceive the peasants ; when

The moral of this is, that liars are not believed even when they speak the truth.

25. THE PADDY-BIRD AND THE SANDPIPER.

A paddy-bird and a sand-piper lived near a certain tank, and fed upon the fish and worms in the paddy-fields. Afterwards it happened not to rain, and the water in the tank drying up, nothing but the mud remained.

The paddy-bird being accustomed to feed on the fish that it caught in the water, and not being in the habit of walking about only in mud, was greatly distressed for want of food, and began to resemble death itself. The sand-piper, however, was able to procure worms from the mud, and as it had plenty to eat, it danced about daily in perfect happiness. The paddy-bird not seeing any other resource, said to the sand-piper very deceitfully : " You lucky fellow, you and I have lived together for a long time in this place, and we both of us drive the same trade, but neither love, friendship nor sympathy exists between us. This is not proper and I am therefore anxious to be upon more intimate terms with you." The sand-piper thereupon, not knowing the paddy-bird's deceitful character, gave its consent, and they both of them struck up a mutual friendship. Some days afterwards, the paddy-bird said: "Ah, my friend, the water in the fields has all dried up, and I can catch no fish and am put to much distress for want of food. If you will therefore now give me a little food, I shall be relieved and must remain indebted to you. Besides, if you are ever in distress, I can then repay your kindness. You are moreover now in a position to do a good action, and it is always our duty to render a kindness to others, for there is no greater virtue than to do good to others. Moreover it is the proper thing never to fail to do a kindness to helpless people, for it is of no use providing healthy people with medicine. It is quite certain however that there is some benefit in supplying the sick with it. As I am at present suffering for want of food, give me some therefore and remove my distress." The sand-piper being very compassionate did not suspect anything in the plausible but deceitful proposal of the paddy-bird and taking it under its protection, began to supply it with food. Some days afterwards, there was a great fall of rain, and the paddy-fields being full of water, the paddy-bird exerted itself to catch fish for food. The sand-piper not being able to obtain its food on account of excess of water, now imagined that the paddy-bird, to whom it had done a kindness, would certainly return it. always on the look out to discover some fault in the sand-piper. Not being able however to discover any other fault, it said : "Look here, sand-piper, I really cannot stand your nonsensical dancing about, and I must therefore leave this place on account of you." So saying it flew away to some other field, and the sand-piper died of hunger.

The moral of this is, that deceitful and wicked people make friends, when they themselves are in danger, by divers honeyed words and by plausible but treacherous behaviour, for the sole purpose of obtaining their own ends. Afterwards when they have got what they want, they have no idea of returning the kindness but invent some false excuse to abandon you.

26. THE DOG AND THE BULL.

A dog was sleeping upon a heap of grass when a hungry bull came up to eat it, but the dog seeing the bull, loudly growled, and drove it off. Thereupon the bull not venturing to eat the grass for fear of the dog, said to it : "You spiteful creature, you cannot eat this grass yourself, and you will not allow any one else to do so. Very well, this spite will be your ruin." Saying this the bull went away. Afterwards the dog still continuing to guard the grass, died of hunger.

27. THE PEASANT AND THE BLACK SNAKE.

As a peasant was walking along the bank of a river very early in the morning in the cold season, he saw a snake nearly dead with cold half buried in the mud. Taking pity upon it, he brought the snake home with much trouble, and after placing it near the fire, he resuscitated it, and protected it by giving it daily milk, plantains, et cetera. The peasant had a son, and the latter from constantly living with the snake became very familiar with it. In this way the snake lived for some time in the peasant's house. One day the peasant's son struck the snake for some reason and no sooner had the snake in obedience to its instincts bitten him than he died. Afterwards the peasant arrived, and seeing that the snake had killed his son by its bite he reproached it severely, and said, "You wicked creature, I saved you when at

28. THE BELL-METAL MERCHANT.

Two thieves went to a bell-metal seller's shop to buy a vessel, and seeing that the bazar-man was busy with other customers, one of the thieves stole a brass pot, and gave it to his fellow thief who concealed it in the cloth which he wore. Afterwards when the other customers had left, the bell-metal merchant perceived that a brass pot was missing, and immediately seized upon the aforesaid two persons as the thieves. The two thieves, however, denied the fact upon oath. The man who had stolen it, said: "I have not got the brass pot," whilst the man who had hidden it said: "I never took it." Thereupon the bell-metal merchant not being certain as to the thief said: "Good, you have denied the theft, but one of you has most certainly committed theft; be it so, but you will not be able to conceal it from God in whose name you have sworn; for He who is all-wise and the Searcher of hearts knows it, and will award meet punishment for the deed.

The moral of this is, that he who commits theft or any other grievous sin is almost certain to be caught, and although he escape detection by man, he will certainly not escape detection by God. He will at least mete out the punishment for it for He is all knowing and all-wise. It is therefore not right for a man to steal.

29. THE HUNTER AND THE JACKAL.

A hunter went to a certain forest to hunt, and killed a large boar and a stag. As these two animals were very heavy, the day came to an end as he was carrying them along. The hunter however out of covetousness not liking to abandon the boar and the stag, remained under a mango tree. A black snake was living at the spot and was in the habit of feeding upon such of the mangoes of the tree as were ripe. When the snake saw the hunter, it imagined that he would carry off all the mangoes as soon as day broke, and that in this case, it would be difficult to obtain any for food. It resolved therefore to practise some stratagem in order to prevent the hunter carrying off the mangoes. Having thus determined it bit him. Afterwards the hunter became ill with the strength of the poison and in his anger letting fly an arrow at once killed the snake, and then died himself. A jackal who was near the tree when the hunter arrived had been reflecting that as soon as it became dark, the hunter would cook some meat and eat it, and that he would certainly get some of it, for although the hunter might eat up the meat, yet he would certainly throw away the bones, &c. which the jackal would obtain. But when the jackal saw that the hunter had died from the bite of the snake, and the snake had died by the hunter's arrow, it went under the tree and having obtained so much meat for food without any trouble, it began to reflect that the man would easily last as food for a month, the deer and the boar would last for two months, and the snake would serve as nice food for a day, but for the night it would have to make shift somehow or other, and begin to eat on gradually from the morrow. After reflecting thus, the jackal perceived the hunter's bow, and thought that if it ate the leather bow-string, it would last it for the night. So thinking, it gnawed the string in two, but had no sooner done so, than the bamboo bow rebounded and striking the jackal in the throat, killed it.

The moral of this is, that almost every danger that happens to a man arises from greed. Moreover, if a man accumulates too much, it is a great nuisance. Covetousness and excessive forethought therefore are improper.
