“Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta”

Ādi-līlā

Chapter 17

A Brief Description of the Pastimes of Young Manhood

(English translation from the Bengali, following the Gauḍīya Maṭha edition and the Anubhāṣya, 2026)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya

Summary. In the seventeenth chapter all of Mahāprabhu’s pastimes, from His sixteenth year until He accepted sannyāsa, are written briefly, in the form of sūtras. The reason is that Vṛndāvana dāsa Ṭhākura, the incarnation of Vyāsa, has described all these pastimes in detail in the Śrī Caitanya-bhāgavata. But wherever Vṛndāvana dāsa Ṭhākura left something out, this chapter describes it more fully. The mango festival and Mahāprabhu’s conversation with the Kāzī are told in particular detail. At the end the author shows that the son of Yaśodā, having become the son of Śacī, tasted the four kinds of devotional moods. To taste the sweetness of the rasa of Rādhā’s prema, He accepted Rādhā’s bhāva and took up the mood of the gopīs exclusively. Of all the kinds of devotional moods, the mood of the gopīs is the best, because in the mood of the gopīs no one but Vrajendranandana appears as worthy of worship. When Śrī Kṛṣṇa playfully became four-armed, the gopīs merely offered Him obeisance and withdrew: the ordinary mood of the gopīs rejects every form other than Kṛṣṇa’s form, and no more. But the bhāva of Śrīmatī Rādhikā, the crown jewel of the gopīs, is the highest of all. On seeing Rādhā, Śrī Kṛṣṇa could not keep His four-armed form. Nanda, the lord of Vraja, is in this (Gaura) pastime the father, Jagannātha; Yaśodā, the queen of Vraja, is Śacīmātā. Caitanya Gosāñi is the son of Nanda Himself: He is not a prakāśa or a vilāsa of Nanda’s son, but Nanda’s son in person. Nityānanda Prabhu has three moods, vātsalya, dāsya and sakhya; Advaita Prabhu has two, sakhya and dāsya. All the others serve Mahāprabhu each according to his former position. The Truth is one: now Kṛṣṇa in a dark form, the flute at His lips, sporting among the cowherds; now a brāhmaṇa; now, in the dress of a sannyāsī, Kṛṣṇa Caitanya in a golden form. The apparent contradiction is this: He who is Kṛṣṇa becomes a gopī. This idea is certainly very hard to grasp, but by Kṛṣṇa's inconceivable potency even this is possible. Arguing about it is futile, for to apply logic to what is inconceivable is the height of foolishness. At the end of this chapter Kavirāja Gosvāmī, following what Vyāsa did in the Bhāgavata, has separately recapitulated the seventeen chapters of the Ādi-līlā one by one.

By Gaura's grace even the impure become pure —

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
I worship Śrī Caitanyadeva, whose deeds are free and wonderful: by His grace even the yavanas become righteous and chant the name of Kṛṣṇa.

Anubhāṣya.
yat (of Caitanyadeva) prasādataḥ (by the compassion) yavanāḥ (the mlecchas) kṛṣṇa-nāma-prajalpakāḥ (being firmly devoted to chanting the name) sumanāyante (behave like people of good mind, sumanas), taṁ svairādbhutehaṁ (Him whose deeds are free, independent, and wonderful, beyond this world — Him who has the power to overstep the injunctions of the smārtas) caitanyam ahaṁ vande.

4 “In His young manhood Gaura shone in His play — in learning and beauty, in fine attire and its enjoyments, in dance and kīrtana, and in the gift of love and the holy name.”

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Through learning, beauty, fine dress, enjoyment, dancing, kīrtana, and the gift of prema and of the holy name, Gauracandra shone in His youth.

Anubhāṣya.
gauraḥ yauvane (when His fifteenth year had passed and youth appeared) vidyā-saundarya-sad-veśa-sambhoga-nṛtya-kīrtanaiḥ (with knowledge of the supreme goal, with beauty, with the dress of a sādhu, with the enjoyment of garments, garlands, sandalwood paste and the like, with dancing, kīrtana and so on) prema-nāma-pradānaiḥ (by distributing Kṛṣṇa’s name together with prema) dīvyati (sports).

7 Under the pretext of a disorder of the vital airs (vāyu), He revealed His love, and with the devotees He enjoyed many pastimes.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Having finished His studies and His teaching, Gauracandra, to preach pure devotion, pretended for some days to suffer from a disorder of vāyu (the air in the body). Everywhere He explained Kṛṣṇa's name to His students and showed the connection with Kṛṣṇa in every sūtra of grammar — and in this way He began to turn them away from their studies.

9 After His initiation His love was revealed, and when He came home again, He gave Himself to the play of love.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Thinking, "I shall offer śrāddha at Gayā for My father, who has departed to the other world," Mahāprabhu set out for Gayā with many students. On the way He was seized by fever; He drank water that had washed a brāhmaṇa's feet and was freed from the illness. By this pastime He showed that householders must honour brāhmaṇas. On reaching Gayā He accepted initiation into the Kṛṣṇa mantra from Śrī Īśvara Purī. From that initiation Mahāprabhu's prema began to manifest. Having finished His duties at Gayā, He returned to Śrī Dhāma Navadvīpa and began to preach prema.

Pastimes in Navadvīpa after initiation; Advaita sees the universal form —

Advaita obtained of the universal form the vision

10 He gave love to Śacī; then He met Advaita, and Advaita beheld His universal form.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
One day Mahāprabhu, sitting on Viṣṇu's couch (viṣṇu-khaṭṭā) in Śrīvāsa's house, said that His mother had committed an offence against a Vaiṣṇava, Śrī Advaitācārya. Unless she sought forgiveness for that offence and Advaita forgave her, she would not attain loving devotion (prema-bhakti). Hearing this, the devotees brought Advaita Prabhu, and Śrī Advaita (as he sang the glories of Āi) was overcome by prema. Śacīdevī seized that moment, took the dust of his feet, and was freed from the offence. Then "the Lord, pleased, says to His mother: 'Now you have devotion to Viṣṇu. There is no more offence against Advaita.'" From then on Śacīdevī had prema-bhakti.

One day Advaita, overcome by prema, said to the Lord in Śrīvāsa's courtyard, "Show me the universal form You once showed Arjuna." And the Lord mercifully showed him the universal form.

Anubhāṣya.

11 Then Śrīvāsa performed the Lord's abhiṣeka, and the Lord, seated on the couch, revealed His majesty.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

One day in Śrīvāsa's house all the devotees together performed Mahāprabhu's abhiṣeka. Mahāprabhu sat on Viṣṇu's couch and displayed His majesty as the King of kings. Many devotees sang kīrtana at that time. And Advaita and the other devotees began to worship Mahāprabhu with the sixteen articles of worship. To each the Lord granted whatever boon he desired.

Anubhāṣya.

Meeting Śrī Nityānanda —

তবে নিত্যানন্দ-স্বরূপের আগমন । প্রভুকে মিলিয়া পাইলা ষড়্ভুজ-দর্শন ॥ ১২ ॥

tabe nityānanda-svarūpera āgamana then of Nityānanda Svarūpa the arrival prabhuke miliyā pāilā ṣaḍ-bhuja-darśana
the Lord meeting obtained of the six-armed form the vision

12 Then Nityānanda Svarūpa came, and when He met the Lord, He was granted the vision of the six-armed form.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

Śrī Nityānanda Prabhu was born in the village of "Ekacakrā" in the Birbhum district, as the son of Hāḍāi Paṇḍita, from the womb of Padmāvatī. When Nityānanda had grown a little, a sannyāsī came to Hāḍāi Paṇḍita and begged Nityānanda from him as alms. From then on Nityānanda travelled with that sannyāsī through many lands, came to the Mathurā-maṇḍala, and lived there a long time. Drawn by Mahāprabhu, Prabhu Nityānanda came to Śrī Navadvīpa and stayed in the house of Nandana Ācārya. Mahāprabhu and the devotees brought Nityānanda from there to His own place.

Anubhāṣya.

The meeting with Nityānanda: see the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 3. How, at the Vyāsa-pūjā in Śrīvāsa's house, Nityānanda saw Mahāprabhu six-armed (holding conch, disc, club, lotus, plough and pestle, muṣala): ibid., Madhya, Chapter 5.

The Lord shows Nitāi His six-armed, four-armed and two-armed forms —

প্রথমে ষড়্ভুজ তাঁরে দেখাইল ঈশ্বর । শঙ্খচক্রগদাপদ্ম-শার্ঙ্গবেণুধর ॥ ১৩ ॥

prathame ṣaḍ-bhuja tāṁre dekhāila īśvara first the six-armed form to Him showed the Lord śaṅkha-cakra-gadā-padma-śārṅga-veṇu-dhara conch, disc, club, lotus, Śārṅga bow and flute holding

13 First the Lord showed Him the six-armed form, holding conch, disc, club and lotus, the Śārṅga bow and the flute.

পাছে চতুর্ভুজ হৈলা, তিন অঙ্গ বক্র ।
দুই হস্তে বেণু বাজায়, দুই হস্তে শঙ্খ-চক্র ॥ ১৪ ॥

pāche catur-bhuja hailā, tina aṅga vakra afterwards four-armed He became in three places body bent dui haste veṇu bājāya, dui haste śaṅkha-cakra
in two hands the flute He plays in two hands conch and disc

14 Then He became four-armed, His body bent in three places; with two hands He played the flute, and in the other two He held the conch and disc.

তবে ত' দ্বিভুজ কেবল বংশীবদন । শ্যাম-অঙ্গ পীতবস্ত্র ব্রজেন্দ্রনন্দন ॥ ১৫ ॥

tabe ta' dvi-bhuja kevala vaṁśī-vadana
then indeed two-armed only the flute at His lips śyāma-aṅga pīta-vastra vrajendra-nandana dark body yellow garment the son of Vraja's king

15 And then He was simply two-armed, with the flute at His lips: the son of Vraja's king, dark of body and dressed in yellow.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
One day Mahāprabhu showed Nityānanda Prabhu a six-armed form holding conch, disc, club, lotus, the Śārṅga bow and flute. Then He showed a four-armed form, holding conch and disc in two hands and the flute in the other two. Finally He showed the form of Śrī Kṛṣṇa holding the flute alone. (Śrī Caitanya-maṅgala, Madhya.)

Gaura Himself is Nityānanda-Balarāma —

তবে নিত্যানন্দ-গোসাঞির ব্যাস-পূজন । নিত্যানন্দাবেশে কৈল মুষল ধারণ ॥ ১৬ ॥

tabe nityānanda-gosāñira vyāsa-pūjana
then of Nityānanda Gosāñi the Vyāsa-pūjā nityānandāveśe kaila muṣala dhāraṇa in the mood of Nityānanda made the club holding

16 Then Nityānanda Gosāñi performed the Vyāsa-pūjā, and the Lord, absorbed in the mood of Nityānanda, took up the club (muṣala).

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
By Mahāprabhu's order Śrī Nityānanda Prabhu resolved to perform the Vyāsa-pūjā on the full-moon night and had Śrīvāsa arrange the necessary articles. During the saṅkīrtana, Nityānanda Prabhu placed a flower garland around Mahāprabhu's neck. At that moment Nityānanda Prabhu saw the six-armed form. Nothing more of the Vyāsa-pūjā took place.

On the night before the Vyāsa-pūjā, during saṅkīrtana in Śrīvāsa's house, Mahāprabhu, in the mood of Balarāma, sat on Viṣṇu's couch and asked Nityānanda for the plough and the pestle (muṣala). Nityānanda Prabhu placed his own hand in His hand, and at that moment the devotees saw the plough and the pestle before their eyes.

Anubhāṣya.

Śacī's dream, and the deliverance of Jagāi and Mādhāi —

তবে শচী দেখিল, রামকৃষ্ণ — দুই ভাই। তবে নিস্তারিল প্রভু জগাই-মাধাই ॥ ১৭ ॥

tabe śacī dekhila, rāma-kṛṣṇa — dui bhāi
then Śacī saw Rāma and Kṛṣṇa two brothers tabe nistārila prabhu jagāi-mādhāi
then delivered the Lord Jagāi and Mādhāi

17 Then Śacī saw the two brothers as Rāma and Kṛṣṇa, and after that the Lord delivered Jagāi and Mādhāi.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

One night Śacīdevī dreamed that Kṛṣṇa and Balarāma, the two Deities of her house, were snatching the offered food (naivedya) from each other together with Gaurāṅga and Nityānanda. The next day, by Gaurāṅga's wish, Śacīdevī invited Nityānanda to eat at her house. While Viśvambhara and Nityānanda were eating, Śacīdevī saw Kṛṣṇa and Balarāma Themselves eating, and at that sight she fainted in prema.

Jagāi and Mādhāi were born in Navadvīpa and were given to all kinds of sin. When Nityānanda and Haridāsa, by Mahāprabhu's order, went from house to house preaching the holy name, they incurred the anger of these two drunkards. The two, in a frenzy, chased them, and they fled. Another day Mādhāi struck Nityānanda on the head with a shard of a broken pot. Jagāi was somewhat sorry for that deed. Hearing of it, Mahāprabhu came there with His followers, ready to punish Jagāi and Mādhāi. But the merciful Gaurāṅga, hearing of Jagāi's decent conduct, embraced him with love. By seeing and touching the Lord, the two sinners had a change of heart, and the Lord delivered them by giving them the name of Hari.

Anubhāṣya.

Śacī's dream, in which she saw Nitāi and Gaura as Balarāma and Kṛṣṇa: see the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 8; the deliverance of Jagāi and Mādhāi: the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 13.

The Lord's sāt-prahariyā bhāva —

তবে সপ্তপ্রহর ছিলা প্রভু ভাবাবেশে । যথা তথা ভক্তগণ দেখিল বিশেষে ॥ ১৮ ॥

tabe sapta-prahara chilā prabhu bhāvāveśe
then seven praharas remained the Lord in ecstatic absorption yathā tathā bhakta-gaṇa dekhila viśeṣe
wherever the devotees saw in a special way

18 Then for seven praharas the Lord remained absorbed in ecstasy, and the devotees, wherever they were, beheld Him in a special way.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

One day in Śrīvāsa's house Mahāprabhu sat on Viṣṇu's couch, and the devotees, reciting the Puruṣa-sūkta — "The Puruṣa with a thousand heads, a thousand eyes, a thousand feet…" — performed His abhiṣeka with Gaṅgā water. They worshipped

Him with various articles and gave Him many kinds of food to eat. The Lord began to eat everything the devotees offered. That day He remained in that bhāva for a full seven praharas and displayed the moods of all the avatāras. He revealed secret events from the devotees' past, dispelled everyone's doubts, and gave boons to all. Some call this bhāva the "sāt-prahariyā bhāva" (the bhāva that lasted seven praharas), and some the "mahā-prakāśa" (the great manifestation).

Anubhāṣya.

The Lord's seven-prahara bhāva in Śrīvāsa's house; how, during the abhiṣeka at that time, the Lord gave the name "Sukhī" (Happy) to a fortunate woman called "Duḥkhī" (Unhappy) who carried water; how Śrīdhara, the seller of banana leaves, saw the mahā-prakāśa; how Murāri Gupta saw the form of Rāma; the grace shown to Ṭhākura Haridāsa; how the Lord told Advaita the true meaning of the Gītā; the mercy shown to Mukunda, and so on: see the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 9.

The mood of Varāha in Murāri's house —

বরাহ-আবেশ হৈলা মুরারি-ভবনে ।

his on the shoulders climbing the Lord danced in the courtyard

19 In Murāri's house the Lord became absorbed in the mood of Varāha, and climbing onto Murāri's shoulders, He danced in the courtyard.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

One day Mahāprabhu, crying "Boar! Boar!", Himself assumed the form of Varāha and entered Murāri Gupta's house. With His tusks He lifted a vessel full of water (a gāḍu), as He once lifted the earth, and drank the water. And another day the Lord climbed onto Murāri's shoulders and danced at length.

20 Then He ate the raw rice that Śuklāmbara had begged, and He explained the meaning of the verse harer nāma.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Śuklāmbara Brahmacārī lived on the bank of the Gaṅgā in Śrī Navadvīpa. While Mahāprabhu was dancing, he arrived there with his bag of rice collected as alms. Out of love for His devotee, the Lord took that begged rice from his bag and began to eat it with great prema.

Anubhāṣya.
How the Lord ate the rice Śuklāmbara had gathered as alms: see the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 16.

Explanation of the verse harer nāma —

কলিকালে নামরূপে কৃষ্ণ-অবতার । নাম হৈতে হয় সর্ব্বজগৎ-নিস্তার ॥ ২২ ॥ kali-kāle nāma-rūpe kṛṣṇa-avatāra in the age of Kali in the form of the Name Kṛṣṇa’s avatāra nāma haite haya sarva-jagat-nistāra

the Name from comes of the whole world deliverance

22 In the age of Kali, Kṛṣṇa descends in the form of the holy name, and through the name the whole world is delivered.

দার্ঢ্য লাগি’ ‘হরের্নাম’-উক্তি তিনবার । জড় লোক বুঝাইতে পুনঃ ‘এব’-কার ॥ ২৩ ॥

dārḍhya lāgi’ ‘harer nāma’-ukti tina-vāra firmness for the sake of ‘harer nāma’ the words three times jaḍa loka bujhāite punaḥ ‘eva’-kāra dull people to make understand again the word ‘eva’

23 For emphasis the words harer nāma are said three times, and the word eva is added again to make dull people understand.

‘কেবল’ শব্দে পুনরপি নিশ্চয়-করণ ।
জ্ঞান-যোগ-তপ আদি কর্ম্ম নিবারণ ॥ ২৪ ॥

‘kevala’ śabde punarapi niścaya-karaṇa ‘kevala’ by the word once again certainty is made jñāna-yoga-tapa ādi karma nivāraṇa knowledge, yoga, austerity and the rest karma exclusion

24 The word kevala (“alone”) makes it certain once more, and rules out knowledge, yoga, austerity, karma and all the rest.

অন্যথা যে মানে, তার নাহিক নিস্তার । নাহি, নাহি, নাহি — তিন উক্ত ‘এব’-কার ॥ ২৫ ॥

anyathā ye māne, tāra nāhika nistāra otherwise who holds for him there is no deliverance nāhi, nāhi, nāhi — tina ukta ‘eva’-kāra no, no, no three times said the word ‘eva’

25 Whoever thinks otherwise has no deliverance: that is why “there is not” is said three times with eva.

How to chant the name —

তৃণ হৈতে নীচ হঞা সদা লবে নাম । আপনি নিরভিমানী, অন্যে দিবে মান ॥ ২৬ ॥

tṛṇa haite nīca hañā sadā labe nāma grass than lower being always shall take the Name āpani nirabhimānī, anye dibe māna oneself free from pride to others shall give honour

26 Thinking oneself lower than the grass, one should always chant the name, seeking no honour for oneself and giving honour to others.

তরুসম সহিষ্ণুতা বৈষ্ণব করিবে । ভর্ৎসন তাড়নে কাকে কিছু না বলিবে ॥ ২৭ ॥

taru-sama sahiṣṇutā vaiṣṇava karibe like a tree tolerance the Vaiṣṇava shall practise bhartsana tāḍane kāke kichu nā balibe
when scolded or beaten to anyone anything not shall say

27 A Vaiṣṇava should be as tolerant as a tree; scolded or beaten, he should say nothing to anyone.

কাটিলেহ তরু যেন কিছু না বোলয় ।

in this way the Vaiṣṇava of anyone anything not shall ask ayācita-vṛtti, kimbā śāka-phala khābe living on what comes unasked or greens and fruit shall eat

29 So a Vaiṣṇava should ask nothing of anyone; he should live on what comes unasked, or eat greens and fruit.

Words from His own lips — (a verse of the Śikṣāṣṭaka spoken by Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanyacandra)

তৃণাদপি সুনীচেন তরোরিব সহিষ্ণুনা । অমানিনা মানদেন কীর্ত্তনীয়ঃ সদা হরিঃ ॥ ৩১ ॥

tṛṇād api su-nīcena than grass even lower taror iva sahiṣṇunā
a tree like tolerant amāninā māna-dena
free from pride giving honour kīrtanīyaḥ sadā hariḥ
to be glorified always Hari

31 "Lower than a blade of grass, more tolerant than a tree, seeking no honour and offering honour to others, one should always sing the glories of Hari." (Śikṣāṣṭaka, 3)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
One who considers himself lower than grass, who is tolerant like a tree, who seeks no honour himself and gives honour to others — he alone is qualified to chant about Hari always.

Anubhāṣya.
tṛṇād api (than even grass, which all feet trample and which has no importance at all) su-nīcena (lower in every way, that is, endowed with a mood free of worldly claims to prestige) taror api[7] (than even a tree) sahiṣṇunā (by a person endowed with tolerance) amāninā (who, though himself worthy of honour, has given up such worldly claims to prestige) māna-dena (giving honour and respect to others — even to those without honour and to the unworthy; by such a person) sadā (always) hariḥ (Hari alone) kīrtanīyaḥ (is to be chanted — uttered with the lips, the tongue and so on).

Kavirāja Gosvāmī earnestly urges everyone to live by this verse —

ঊর্দ্ধ বাহু করি' কহোঁ, শুন, সর্ব্বলোক । নাম-সূত্রে গাঁথি' পর কণ্ঠে এই শ্লোক ॥ ৩২ ॥

ūrddhva bāhu kari' kahoṁ, śuna, sarva-loka upraised arms making I say listen all people nāma-sūtre gāṁthi' para kaṇṭhe ei śloka
on the thread of the Name stringing wear on the neck this verse

32 With arms upraised I say: listen, everyone! String this verse on the thread of the holy name and wear it around your neck.

প্রভু-আজ্ঞায় কর এই শ্লোক আচরণ । অবশ্য পাইবে তবে শ্রীকৃষ্ণ-চরণ ॥ ৩৩ ॥

prabhu-ājñāya kara ei śloka ācaraṇa
by the Lord's order do this verse practise avaśya pāibe tabe śrī-kṛṣṇa-caraṇa surely you will attain then Śrī Kṛṣṇa's feet

33 Live by this verse, as the Lord has ordered, and you will surely attain the feet of Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

The author says: "O people! With upraised arms I tell you: listen! String this verse on the garland of Kṛṣṇa's name and wear it around your neck." The meaning is this: if one chants the name without being qualified, the result is nāmābhāsa (a mere shadow of the name) or nāmāparādha (offence against the name). Then the jīva does not attain the fruit of the name, "love for Kṛṣṇa." Chant the name of Hari while acting on the instruction Mahāprabhu gave in the verse tṛṇād api; then you will certainly attain the feet of Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

Anubhāṣya.

“Strung on the thread of the name”: the thread is Śrī Harināma, and what is strung on it as a garland or protective amulet (rakṣā-kavaca) is the four moods free of worldly self-conception: (1) humility (sunīcatva), (2) tolerance (sahiṣṇutva), (3) freedom from claims to honour (amānitva), (4) readiness to give honour (mānadatva). With worldly self-conception one cannot chant the name of Hari always: material self-conceptions obstruct the name of Hari. Free of these four kinds of self-conception, the pure jīva can chant the name of Hari always. Whoever obeys this command — the instruction of sādhana-bhakti — will certainly attain the feet of Śrī Kṛṣṇa as the fruit of chanting the name of Hari.

37–38 There was a brāhmaṇa named Gopāla Cāpāla, a foul-mouthed babbler and the chief of the unbelievers. One night he took all the articles for the worship of Bhavānī and smeared the ground at Śrīvāsa's door to prepare a place for the rite.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

While Mahāprabhu, with the doors shut, was tasting the bliss of kīrtana in Śrīvāsa's courtyard, many brāhmaṇas of the town who were turned away from God tried in many ways to ridicule the Vaiṣṇavas. A certain garrulous Bhaṭṭācārya nicknamed "Gopāla Cāpāla" left outside the closed door the articles for worshipping the Devī — a banana leaf, a javā flower, red sandalwood and so on — together with a pot of wine. In the morning Śrīvāsa Paṇḍita saw it and said to everyone in jest, "Look, look! Every night I worship Bhavānī. Now you have learned how great I am as a 'śākta'!" The respectable people were deeply distressed at the sight. They called a hāḍi (a sweeper), had the wine and the other vile things thrown far away, and purified the place with water and cow dung. For that offence against a Vaiṣṇava, Gopāla Cāpāla was stricken with a rotting leprosy.

Anubhāṣya.

Worship of Bhavānī is the business of a non-Vaiṣṇava, that is, it is not the business of a Vaiṣṇava. By condemning it, the Lord taught people to regard as "bad association" the worldly, mixed Vaiṣṇava (prākṛta viddha-vaiṣṇava) who at heart nourishes the doctrine of many gods, that is, who leans towards the worship of many gods and goddesses.

One who offends a Vaiṣṇava suffers constantly and so cannot easily die —

tabe sei pāpī prabhura laila śaraṇa
then that sinner of the Lord took shelter
hita upadeśa kaila haiyā karuṇa beneficial instruction gave becoming compassionate

55–56 After the Lord had taken sannyāsa and gone to Nīlācala, He once came from there to the village of Kuliyā. Then the sinner took shelter of Him, and the Lord, moved to compassion, gave him good counsel:

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

Kuliyā-grāma: at that time Navadvīpa was on the eastern bank of the Gaṅgā, and on the other bank was the village of Kuliyā — the place now known as "Navadvīpa."

Anubhāṣya.

Kuliyā-grāma: the present town of Navadvīpa. "Between Nadīyā and Kuliyā there is only the Gaṅgā" (Caitanya-bhāgavata, Antya 3.380): Kuliyā is on the western bank of the Gaṅgā, and Navadvīpa on the eastern bank. For mentions of Kuliyā on the western bank of the Gaṅgā, see the Bhakti-ratnākara (twelfth wave), the Caitanya-carita mahākāvya, the play Caitanya-candrodaya, and the Caitanya-bhāgavata. In the village of Kuliyā, which belongs to Koladvīpa, there is to this day a quarter called "Kuliyār Gañj" and a stream called "Kuliyār Daha"; it lies within the present municipal town of Navadvīpa. In Śrī Mahāprabhu's time there were villages called "Kuliyā" and "Pāhāḍapura" on the western bank of the Gaṅgā. They lie among the fields of "Bāhir-dvīpa." But then and ever since, Navadvīpa was in "Antardvīpa," on the eastern bank of the Gaṅgā. In Śrī Māyāpura that place is still known as "Dvīper Māṭh" ("the field of the island"). The village called "Kuliyā" near Kāñcaḍāpāḍā is not the Kuliyā mentioned above, nor the "pāṭa of Aparādha-bhañjana" (the place where offences were forgiven). The false notion about it arose only a few years ago — from fancies born of hostility towards the Dhāma, and from error.

The Lord tells him to beg forgiveness from Śrīvāsa Paṇḍita —

শ্রীবাস পণ্ডিতের স্থানে আছে অপরাধ । তথা, যাহ, তেঁহো যদি করেন প্রসাদ ॥ ৫৭ ॥

śrīvāsa paṇḍitera sthāne āche aparādha Śrīvāsa Paṇḍita's with regard to there is offence tathā, yāha, teṁho yadi karena prasāda
there go he if does grace

57 "You have offended Śrīvāsa Paṇḍita. Go to him, and if he shows you his grace,

After surrendering, one must not sin again —

তবে তোর হবে এই পাপ-বিমোচন । যদি পুনঃ ঐছে নাহি কর আচরণ ॥ ৫৮ ॥

tabe tora habe ei pāpa-vimocana
then your will be this sin release yadi punaḥ aiche nāhi kara ācaraṇa
if again such not you do conduct

58 you will be freed from this sin, if you never act in such a way again."

Gopāla Cāpāla takes shelter at Śrīvāsa's feet and is freed from his offence —

তবে বিপ্র আসি' লইল শ্রীবাস-শরণ । তাঁহার কৃপায় হইল পাপ বিমোচন ॥ ৫৯ ॥

tabe vipra āsi' laila śrīvāsa-śaraṇa
then the brāhmaṇa coming took Śrīvāsa's shelter tāṁhāra kṛpāya haila pāpa vimocana
by his grace became of sin release

59 So the brāhmaṇa came and took shelter of Śrīvāsa, and by his grace he was freed from his sin.

Another foolish brāhmaṇa curses the Lord —

আর এক বিপ্র আইল কীর্ত্তন দেখিতে ।

āra eka vipra āila kīrtana dekhite another one brāhmaṇa came kīrtana to see dvāre kapāṭa, — nā pāila bhitare yāite
at the door the bolt not could inside go

60 Another brāhmaṇa came to see the kīrtana, but the door was shut and he could not get in.

phiri' gela vipra ghare mane duḥkha pāñā returning went the brāhmaṇa home in his mind grief feeling āra dina prabhuke kahe gaṅgāya dekhiyā

61 He went home with a heavy heart, and the next day, seeing the Lord at the Gaṅgā, he said to Him:[1]

শাপিব তোমারে মুঞি, পাঞাছি মনোদুঃখ । পৈতা ছিণ্ডিয়া শাপে প্রচণ্ড দুর্ম্মুখ ॥ ৬২ ॥

śāpiba tomāre muñi, pāñāchi mano-duḥkha
I shall curse You I I have got grief of heart paitā chiṇḍiyā śāpe pracaṇḍa durmukha his thread tearing curses fierce foul-mouthed

62 "I will curse You, for You have grieved me!" And tearing his sacred thread, the fierce, foul-mouthed man cursed Him:

সংসার-সুখ তোমার হউক বিনাশ । শাপ শুনি' মহাপ্রভুর হইল উল্লাস ॥ ৬৩ ॥

saṁsāra-sukha tomāra hauka vināśa worldly happiness Your may be destroyed śāpa śuni' mahāprabhura haila ullāsa
the curse hearing of Mahāprabhu was delight

63 "May Your worldly happiness be destroyed!" Hearing the curse, Mahāprabhu was filled with delight.

প্রভুর শাপ-বার্ত্তা শুনে হঞা শ্রদ্ধাবান্ । ব্রহ্মশাপ হৈতে তার হয় পরিত্রাণ ॥ ৬৪ ॥

prabhura śāpa-vārtā śune hañā śraddhāvān
the Lord's curse story hears becoming faithful brahma-śāpa haite tāra haya paritrāṇa from a brāhmaṇa's curse his becomes deliverance

64 Whoever hears with faith the story of the Lord's curse is delivered from the curse of a brāhmaṇa.

Anubhāṣya.
Whoever thinks that the Lord, the master of māyā, is subject to curses and the like, or that He is a jīva punished by Yama and subject to the fruits of karma, invites godlessness upon himself. But once the jīva comes instead to know Him as the Supreme Lord, eternally worthy of service, its beginningless aversion to Kṛṣṇa disappears. This incident is not in the Caitanya-bhāgavata.

65 To Mukunda Datta the Lord gave His grace in the form of punishment, and so dispelled all the dejection of his heart.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

On the day of the Lord's mahā-prakāśa, Mukunda Datta stayed lying outside the door. When the Lord had shown His grace to the other devotees one by one, they told the Lord that Mukunda Datta was outside. The Lord replied, "I will not soon be pleased with Mukunda Datta. Before devotees he speaks of 'pure devotion,' but sitting among the Māyāvādīs he accepts the 'Māyāvāda' set out in the Yoga-vāsiṣṭha. This always pains Me." Mukunda Datta heard these words from outside and said, "I am fortunate! Though not soon, at some time Mahāprabhu, the deliverer of the world, will show me mercy." Seeing that Mukunda Datta was firmly resolved to give up the company of Māyāvādīs, the Lord at once had him brought near and showed him His favour. In this way the Lord punished him for the offence of associating with Māyāvādīs and granted him grace as the fruit of associating with pure devotees.

Anubhāṣya.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Advaitācārya was a godbrother of Īśvara Purī, Mahāprabhu's guru. For this reason the Lord, although Advaita was His servant, honoured him as a guru. Advaita was pained that Mahāprabhu showed him such honour. To receive Mahāprabhu's grace in the form of punishment, he went to Śāntipura and began to explain the path of jñāna to some unfortunate people. Hearing of this, the Lord went to Śāntipura in anger and gave Advaita Prabhu a sound beating. Having received the blows, Advaita Prabhu began to dance, saying, "Look, today my desire is fulfilled! Mahāprabhu was stingy and treated me as His guru; today He saw me as His own servant and disciple and tried to save me from the evil notion of Māyāvāda." Seeing this ploy of Advaitācārya, the Lord was embarrassed and became pleased with him.

Murāri Gupta's exclusive devotion to Śrī Rāma —

69 Hearing from Murāri Gupta the glories of Rāma, the Lord wrote the name “Rāmadāsa” on his forehead.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

One day Mahāprabhu asked Murāri Gupta, who worshipped Śrī Rāma with the Rāma mantra, to recite a prayer to Śrī Rāma. Murāri recited the Rāmāṣṭaka with great prema: “Having thus heard the eight verses about Raghunandana, the lion among kings, Bhagavān placed His foot on the head of Murāri the physician and wrote on his forehead: ‘O, by My grace, become “Rāmadāsa”!’”

Anubhāṣya.

Caitanya-maṅgala, Madhya-khaṇḍa: “I ever worship Rāma, the guru of the three worlds.” “Having thus heard the eight verses about Raghuvīra, He Himself placed His foot on Murāri’s head. He wrote the name ‘Rāmadāsa’ on his forehead: ‘By My grace you have become “Rāmadāsa.”’ Saying this, He showed him the form of Rāma. Murāri, falling at His feet, offers prayers.” The Lord’s mercy to Murāri Gupta: see the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 10.

The Lord drinks water from an iron pot in Śrīdhara’s house and gives boons —

70 He drank water from Śrīdhara’s iron pot, and to all the devotees He granted the boons they desired.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

On the night of the first city kīrtana, after the Kāzī had been delivered, Chāď Kāzī came along with the kīrtana as far as Śrīdhara’s courtyard. When the kīrtana stopped there to rest, Mahāprabhu mercifully drank the water that was in Śrīdhara’s leaky iron pot, calling it “water offered by a devotee.” From that spot the Kāzī turned back. That place, in the northeastern part of Māyāpura, is still called the place where the kīrtana rested.

Anubhāṣya.

How the Lord drank water from Śrīdhara's iron pot: see the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 23.

Mercy to Ṭhākura Haridāsa; the pastime of freeing Śacī from her offence —

71 He showed His grace to Haridāsa Ṭhākura, and freed His mother from her offence against the Ācārya.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

On the day of the mahā-prakāśa, Mahāprabhu embraced Haridāsa, declared him an avatāra of Prahlāda, and gave him a boon.

When Viśvarūpa took sannyāsa, Śacīmātā blamed Advaita Ācārya for it. She thus committed an offence against a Vaiṣṇava, and the Lord freed her from that offence by having His mother take the dust of the Ācārya's feet.

Anubhāṣya.

A godless student calls the glory of the holy name exaggeration (arthavāda) —

ভক্তগণে প্রভু নাম-মহিমা কহিল ।

bhakta-gaṇe prabhu nāma-mahimā kahila to the devotees the Lord of the Name the glory told śuniyā paḍuyā tāṁhā artha-vāda kaila hearing a student there explaining it away made

72 The Lord told the devotees of the glory of the holy name, and a student who heard it explained it away as mere praise (arthavāda).

Anubhāṣya.

The glory of Śrī Nāma Prabhu is non-different from Kṛṣṇa Himself. To consider it "exaggerated praise," "not real," and therefore "untrue" — this divisive mentality is what is called "arthavāda," that is, (false) praise or else defamation. It is outright godlessness, or atheism — nothing but enmity towards God.

নামে স্তুতিবাদ শুনি' প্রভুর হৈল দুঃখ । সবারে নিষেধিল, — ইহার না দেখিহ মুখ ॥ ৭৩ ॥

nāme stuti-vāda śuni' prabhura haila duḥkha of the Name exaggerated praise hearing of the Lord was pain
sabāre niṣedhila, — ihāra nā dekhiha mukha to all He forbade his not you shall see face

73 Hearing the name called an exaggeration, the Lord was pained, and He forbade everyone to look upon that man's face.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

One day Mahāprabhu was describing to the devotees the boundless glory of the holy name. Hearing it, an unfortunate student said, "All this glory of the name is not real: the scriptures merely praise the name." To reinterpret the glory of the name like this is the offence against the name called arthavāda. No offence is as terrible as an offence against the name. The Lord forbade everyone to look at that offending student's face and, with His associates, bathed in the Gaṅgā sacele, that is, with His clothes on. The meaning is: whoever has seen the face of an offender of the name should bathe with his clothes on — that is the lesson.

The Lord and His associates bathe in the Gaṅgā with their clothes on, and He glorifies devotion, the one and only means (abhidheya) —

সগণে সচেলে গিয়া কৈল গঙ্গাস্নান । ভক্তির মহিমা তাঁহা করিল ব্যাখ্যান ॥ ৭৪ ॥

sagaṇe sacele giyā kaila gaṅgā-snāna with His associates in their clothes going made bath in the Gaṅgā bhaktira mahimā tāṁhā karila vyākhyāna of bhakti the glory there made explanation

74 Then He went with His companions and bathed in the Gaṅgā in His clothes, and there He explained the glory of devotion.

76 (Śrī Kṛṣṇa said:) "O Uddhava, neither yoga nor sāṅkhya, neither dharma nor study of the Vedas, neither austerity nor renunciation can win Me as intense devotion to Me does." (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.14.20)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

O Uddhava! As strong devotion to Me can win Me over, so I am not won over by aṣṭāṅga-yoga, by sāṅkhya-jñāna — the doctrine of non-difference from Brahman, by svādhyāya — a brāhmaṇa's study of his own branch of the Veda, by every kind of austerity, or by sannyāsa and the like, which is renunciation.

Anubhāṣya.

Śrī Kṛṣṇa said to Uddhava: O uddhava, yogaḥ (yama, niyama, āsana, prāṇāyāma and the rest, born of the restraint of the breath), sāṅkhyam (the enumeration of the tattvas taught by Kapila), dharmaḥ (the dharma of varṇa and āśrama), svādhyāyaḥ (study of the Veda), tapaḥ, tyāgaḥ (sannyāsa) tathā (so) mām na sādhayati (do not win Me over), yathā (as) mama ūrjitā (intensified) bhaktiḥ mām (wins Me over).

Praise of Murāri —

śuniyā murāri śloka kahite lāgilā hearing Murāri a verse to recite began

77 The Lord said to Murāri, "You have brought Kṛṣṇa under your control," and hearing this, Murāri began to recite a verse:

(Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, Canto 10, Chapter 81, Verse 14)[8]

ক্বাহং দরিদ্রঃ পাপীয়ান্ ক্ব কৃষ্ণঃ শ্রীনিকেতনঃ ।
ব্রহ্মবন্ধুরিতিস্মাহং বাহুভ্যাং পরিরম্ভিতঃ ॥ ৭৮ ॥

kvāhaṁ daridraḥ pāpīyān
where I poor most sinful
kva kṛṣṇaḥ śrī-niketanaḥ where Kṛṣṇa the abode of Śrī brahma-bandhur iti smāhaṁ a brāhmaṇa by birth only thus indeed I bāhubhyāṁ parirambhitaḥ with both arms was embraced

78 "Who am I, a poor and sinful man, and who is Kṛṣṇa, the abode of the goddess of fortune? Yet because I was born a brāhmaṇa, He embraced me in His arms!" (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.81.16)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Where am I, a great sinner and a pauper, and where is Kṛṣṇa, the abode of Śrī! Knowing me to be an unworthy son of a brāhmaṇa, He embraced me. This is truly astonishing.

Anubhāṣya.
Mahāprabhu said to Murāri, "By your prema and devotion you have brought Kṛṣṇa under your control." In reply Murāri recited the verse from the Bhāgavata spoken by the brāhmaṇa "Sudāmā."

These were the words the brāhmaṇa "Śrīdāmā," or "Sudāmā," spoke to himself as he went home: daridraḥ (devoid of wealth) pāpīyān (sinful) aham kva (where)? śrī-niketanaḥ (the form in whom all majesty is rooted, the shelter of all piety) kṛṣṇaḥ kva (where)? aham brahma-bandhuḥ (the lowest of brāhmaṇas by birth) iti — thus (by Kṛṣṇa) bāhubhyām parirambhitaḥ (embraced). (The words that Kṛṣṇa could never embrace me, an unworthy brahma-bandhu, show only Kṛṣṇa's greatness; the sentence expresses the speaker's humility.)

If Murāri accepted Mahāprabhu's words favourably, he recited the verse with this thought: "Murāri has no power to bring Kṛṣṇa under control; it is Kṛṣṇa who, by His own love for His devotees, on the pretext of something incidental and secondary, makes an unworthy servant the recipient of unimaginable good fortune."

If, however, Murāri recited the verse to set aside Mahāprabhu's words as unfavorable to himself, then he said, "I am wholly unfit to control Kṛṣṇa; I have not been able to control Kṛṣṇa." The brāhmaṇa Śrīdāmā listed his own disqualifications — poverty, a bent towards sin, not being a true brāhmaṇa and so on — and proclaimed his good fortune: Kṛṣṇa embraced him. But Murāri Gupta thinks, “Even in that way I am unworthy.”

In the commentary on the tenth canto, the Vaiṣṇava-toṣaṇī, the meaning of the verse is explained thus: “Kva, and so on. Pāpīyān: unfortunate; kṛṣṇaḥ: Bhagavān Himself. Thus ‘Kṛṣṇa’ and ‘most sinful’ contradict each other, and so do ‘poverty’ and ‘abode of Śrī.’ Nevertheless, brahma-bandhuḥ, born in a family of brāhmaṇas, bāhubhyām, with both arms, parirambhitaḥ, embraced. Sma expresses wonder. Thus brāhmaṇa birth alone is named as the cause of the embrace, not friendship, for there he considered himself utterly unworthy. Therefore it is only the Lord’s devotion to brāhmaṇas that is praised, not even His love for His devotees.”

In the preceding verse Sudāmā’s mood is recorded thus: “With the chest on which Kamalā, dearer to Him than life, resides — with that chest Brahmaṇya-deva, out of love for brāhmaṇas, embraced a pauper like me, bereft of Lakṣmī.” In keeping with the mood of that verse, the commentary on the following verse, quoted here, says: “The cause of the embrace is brāhmaṇa birth alone, not friendship.” And the brāhmaṇa Śrīdāmā in his humility thinks: “I myself am utterly unworthy; I myself do not live as a brāhmaṇa. It is only the Lord, to show the excellence of devotion to brāhmaṇas and His own excellence, who has shown such love even to a brahma-bandhu — that is what is astonishing.” The brāhmaṇa Śrīdāmā, wishing to express his humility and his own insignificance, condemned himself as a “brahma-bandhu.” And by saying that Kṛṣṇa shows extraordinary grace even to a brahma-bandhu, he truly revealed his humility and his brāhmaṇa nature. By this the brāhmaṇa Sudāmā set a shining example of giving up one’s own greatness. Being a brahma-bandhu is not his own quality or his own achievement; rather, being a brahma-bandhu is something extraneous — that which, for the brāhmaṇa Sudāmā, is not his own property, is itself the cause of Kṛṣṇa’s love. Neither his own greatness nor his own devotion to Kṛṣṇa compelled Kṛṣṇa to act so.

Murāri Gupta, too, adopted such a mood: covering his own greatness, he displayed humility. In the social view of that time Murāri Gupta was merely a śūdra by birth, and the word “brahma-bandhu” does not apply to him. But reflecting on the import of the verse “Women, śūdras and dvija-bandhus have no access to hearing the three Vedas” (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 1.4.25), Murāri Gupta likened the position of a dvija-bandhu to that of a śūdra.

In his commentary on the Chāndogya Upaniṣad, Śaṅkarācārya, explaining the word brahma-bandhu, says: “He calls the brāhmaṇas his kinsmen, but does not himself live as a brāhmaṇa.” (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 1.7.57): “Shaving the head, seizing one’s wealth, expelling one from one’s dwelling — this is the execution of brahma-bandhus; there is no other, bodily execution for them.” In the Kūrma Purāṇa: “The servant of a śūdra, a servant of the king, a vṛṣala, a priest for a whole village, and one who lives by killing and imprisoning — these six are brahma-bandhus.” Being a brahma-bandhu, that is, a brāhmaṇa merely by birth, is no proof of one’s own qualification; rather, it proves only dependence on something else.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
One day the Lord, tired from the city kīrtana with the devotees, came to a certain place and planted a mango seed in the courtyard of the devotee who lived there. At once it bore fruit, and a mango festival took place. That place is now known as "Āmraghaṭṭa" ("Āmaghāṭā").

Anubhāṣya.

During the kīrtana the Lord keeps the clouds from raining —

89 Once, while the Lord was holding kīrtana, clouds gathered, and by His own will He sent them away.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
One day Mahāprabhu was performing saṅkīrtana far away, and at that time the sky was massed with clouds. The Lord willed the clouds to go and ordered them away, and they at once dispersed. For this reason that sandbank of the Gaṅgā came to be called "Megher Car" ("the Cloud Sandbank"). Now, because the Gaṅgā has changed its course, that "Megher Car" has shifted to the village of "Belpukhuriyā."

And the place where Belpukhuriyā used to be is now called “Tāraṇavāsa” and “Ṭoṭā.”

Anubhāṣya.

Caitanya-maṅgala, Madhya-khaṇḍa: “The day was done, evening came, the far horizons grew lovely[9]. Suddenly clouds overspread the vault of the sky; thunder rolls again and again with a deep roar. Seeing this, the Vaiṣṇavas took it for a calamity. Then Mahāprabhu took cymbals in His hands and loudly sang the saṅkīrtana of the names and qualities. Thinking, ‘I shall bless the world of the gods,’ the Lord turned His face up to the sky. The clouds went far away, the sky cleared, and the Vaiṣṇavas’ joy grew. The night became pure, tinted by the moon. His followers sing His qualities, and He Himself dances.”

91 As he read, the hymn came to the name of Nṛsiṁha, and hearing it, the Lord, the abode of all virtues, became absorbed in His mood.

Absorbed in the mood of Śrī Nṛsiṁha, the one chastiser of godlessness, the Lord puts the godless to flight —

Bhāge: they flee. This incident is not in the Caitanya-bhāgavata.

95 Dejected, the Lord said to Śrīvāsa, "I have frightened the people. The offence is Mine."

Anubhāṣya.

Caitanya-maṅgala, Madhya-khaṇḍa: "Śrīvāsa Paṇḍita was performing the rite for his ancestors. With a very pure heart he hears the 'Sahasra-nāma.' At that time Gaurahari came to that place. He hears the 'Sahasra-nāma' to His heart's content. As He listened, He became absorbed in the mood of Nṛsiṁha. Both His eyes turned red with anger, His hair stood on end. His whole body thrilled, the colour of the dawn. Again and again a loud roar — the roar of a lion. Suddenly He seized a club and rushed off. Seeing this, everyone trembled at heart. Restraining it all, the Lord sat on His seat: 'I do not know what offence I have committed.'"

Śrīvāsa's words: Gaura's name destroys offences —

The Lord asks an astrologer about His own past —

āra dine jyotiṣa eka sarva-jña āila another day an astrologer one all-knowing came tāhāre sammāna kari' prabhu praśna kaila him honour showing the Lord a question asked

103 Another day an all-knowing astrologer came, and the Lord, receiving him with honour, asked him a question:

Anubhāṣya.
Sarvajña: one who knows the three times — past, future and present.

কে আছিলুঁ পূর্ব্বজন্মে আমি, কহ গণি' ।
গণিতে লাগিলা সর্ব্বজ্ঞ প্রভুবাক্য শুনি' ॥ ১০৪ ॥

ke āchiluṁ pūrvajanme āmi, kaha gaṇi' who was in a previous birth I tell calculating gaṇite lāgilā sarvajña prabhuvākya śuni'
to calculate began the all-knowing one the Lord's words hearing

104 "Calculate and tell Me who I was in My previous birth." Hearing the Lord's words, the astrologer began his calculations.

To this day in East Bengal (especially in the Ḍhākā division), in place of verb forms such as chila, chile, chilām, people use āchila, āchilā and āchilām.

The astrologer realises that the Lord is the Supreme Lord —

গণি' ধ্যানে দেখে সর্ব্বজ্ঞ, — মহাজ্যোতির্ম্ময় । অনন্ত বৈকুণ্ঠ-ব্রহ্মাণ্ড — সবার আশ্রয় ॥ ১০৫ ॥

gaṇi' dhyāne dekhe sarva-jña, — mahā-jyotirmaya calculating in meditation sees the all-knowing one a great effulgence ananta vaikuṇṭha-brahmāṇḍa — sabāra āśraya of endless Vaikuṇṭhas and universes of all the shelter

105 Having calculated, he saw in meditation a great effulgence, the shelter of all, of endless Vaikuṇṭhas and universes.

পরমতত্ত্ব, পরব্রহ্ম, পরম-ঈশ্বর ।
দেখি' প্রভুর মূর্ত্তি সর্ব্বজ্ঞ হইল ফাঁফর ॥ ১০৬ ॥

the Supreme Truth the Supreme Brahman the Supreme Lord dekhi' prabhura mūrti sarva-jña haila phāṁphara seeing the Lord's form the all-knowing one became bewildered

106 Seeing the Lord's form as the Supreme Truth, the Supreme Brahman, the Supreme Lord, the astrologer was bewildered.

The astrologer is bewildered —

বলিতে না পারে কিছু, মৌন হইল । প্রভু পুনঃ প্রশ্ন কৈল, কহিতে লাগিল ॥ ১০৭ ॥ balite nā pāre kichu, mauna haila to say not could anything silent became prabhu punaḥ praśna kaila, kahite lāgila

the Lord again question made to speak he began

107 He could say nothing and fell silent; but when the Lord asked again, he began to speak:

The astrologer's answer to the Lord's question —

পূর্ব্বজন্মে ছিলা তুমি পরম-আশ্রয় । পরিপূর্ণ ভগবান্ — সর্ব্বৈশ্বর্য্যময় ॥ ১০৮ ॥

pūrva janme chilā tumi parama-āśraya in a previous birth were You the supreme shelter paripūrṇa bhagavān — sarvaiśvaryamaya
the complete Bhagavān full of all majesty

108 "In Your previous birth You were the supreme shelter, the complete Bhagavān, full of all majesty.

পূর্ব্বে যৈছে ছিলা তুমি এবেহ সেরূপ ।
দুর্ব্বিজ্ঞেয় নিত্যানন্দ — তোমার স্বরূপ ॥ ১০৯ ॥

before as were You now too the same durvijñeya nityānanda — tomāra svarūpa hard to know eternal bliss Your own nature

109 As You were then, so You are now; Your own nature is eternal bliss, hard to fathom."

The Lord declares Himself a cowherd —

প্রভু হাসি' কৈলা, — তুমি কিছু না জানিলা । পূর্ব্বে আমি আছিলাম জাতিতে গোয়ালা ॥ ১১০ ॥

prabhu hāsi' kailā, — tumi kichu nā jānilā
the Lord smiling said you anything not have understood pūrve āmi āchilāma jātite goyālā
before I was by caste a cowherd

110 The Lord smiled and said, "You have understood nothing. Before, I was a cowherd by caste.

গোপগৃহে জন্ম ছিল, গাভীর রাখাল । সেই পুণ্যে হৈলাঙ আমি ব্রাহ্মণ-ছাওয়াল ॥ ১১১ ॥

gopa-gṛhe janma chila, gābhīra rākhāla in a cowherd's home birth was of the cows herdsman sei puṇye hailāṅa āmi brāhmaṇa-chāoyāla
by that merit became I a brāhmaṇa's son

111 I was born in a cowherd's home and tended the cows, and by that merit I have now become the son of a brāhmaṇa."

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Serving cows brings piety. In My previous birth I was a cowherd and served the cows. The piety I earned in this way was the cause (bore the fruit) of My becoming a "brāhmaṇa" this time.

Anubhāṣya.
The Lord's playful, mysterious words to the all-knowing astrologer.

Seeing the dark form, the astrologer is bewildered and takes shelter of the Lord

সর্ব্বজ্ঞ কহে, আমি তাহা ধ্যানে দেখিলাঙ । তাহাতে ঐশ্বর্য্য দেখি' ফাঁফর হইলাঙ ॥ ১১২ ॥

sarva-jña kahe, āmi tāhā dhyāne dekhilāṅa the all-knowing one says I that in meditation saw tāhāte aiśvarya dekhi' phāmphara hailāṅa in that majesty seeing bewildered I became 112 The astrologer said, "I saw that in my meditation, but I saw majesty in it and was bewildered.

সেইরূপে এইরূপে দেখি একাকার । কভু ভেদ দেখি, এই মায়ায় তোমার ॥ ১১৩ ॥ sei-rūpe ei-rūpe dekhi ekākāra in that form in this form I see one kabhu bheda dekhi, ei māyāya tomāra sometimes difference I see this by māyā Your 113 That form and this one I see as one; if at times I see a difference, that is Your māyā.

The Lord shows mercy to the astrologer and gives him prema —

যে হও, সে হও তুমি, তোমাকে নমস্কার । প্রভু তারে প্রেম দিয়া কৈল পুরস্কার ॥ ১১৪ ॥

ye hao, se hao tumi, tomāke namaskāra whoever You are so be You to You obeisance prabhu tāre prema diyā kaila puraskāra
the Lord to him love giving made reward

114 Whoever You may be, I bow to You." And the Lord rewarded him with love.

Anubhāṣya.
The story of the astrologer is not found in the Caitanya-bhāgavata.

In the mood of Baladeva, the Lord enacts the pastime of dragging the Yamunā —

'bring honey' 'bring honey' says calling out

115 One day, sitting in the hall of Viṣṇu, the Lord called out, "Bring honey! Bring honey!"

the pastime of drawing the Yamunā see all

117 Drinking the water, the Lord danced, overwhelmed, and everyone saw the pastime in which Balarāma drew the Yamunā to Himself.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
The pastime of dragging the Yamunā: one day Baladeva, angry with the Yamunā, dragged the Yamunā with His plough and pestle. When Mahāprabhu, in the mood of Baladeva, cried, "Bring honey, bring honey!", all the others at that moment were seeing that very pastime of dragging the Yamunā.

Anubhāṣya.
Baladeva went to Gokula and lived there in the months of Caitra and Vaiśākha surrounded by the gopīs. Having drunk vāruṇī, Baladeva called the Yamunā to come near so that he could sport in the water. (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.65.25–30, 33): "The Lord called the Yamunā for sport in the water. But the river disregarded his words, thinking him drunk, and did not come. Then Bala, angered, dragged her with the tip of his plough. 'Sinful one! Disregarding me, you do not come when I call. With the tip of my plough I will bring you here, split into a hundred streams, you wilful one!' Thus rebuked, the frightened Yamunā, O king, trembling, fell at the feet of the delight of the Yadus and said: 'Rāma, Rāma, mighty-armed one! I did not know your might: by a single portion of it you uphold the earth, O lord of the universe. O Bhagavān, soul of the universe, lover of your devotees! Release me: I did not know the supreme nature of the Lord, and now I have surrendered to you.' Then, being entreated, Lord Bala released the Yamunā and plunged into the water with the women, like the king of elephants with his she-elephants. Even today, O king, the channel along which the Yamunā was dragged can be seen; it seems to proclaim the might of Bala, whose power is unlimited."

Candraśekhara Ācāryaratna sees the Lord in the form of Baladeva —

Vanamālī Ācārya sees a golden plough sabe mili' nṛtya kare ānande vihvala
all together dance in bliss overwhelmed

119 Vanamālī Ācārya saw a golden plough, and all danced together, overwhelmed with bliss.

Anubhāṣya.

Caitanya-maṅgala, Madhya-khaṇḍa: "With him was his son, named Vanamālī. Born in a brāhmaṇa family, he lives in the eastern land, Vaṅga. He saw the Lord's body fashioned of gold, adorned with jewels, like the peak of Sumeru. In the guise of Halāyudha the Lord of the three worlds dances." "Vanamālī Paṇḍita," mentioned in Ādi 10.73, also saw the golden plough and pestle in the Lord's hands. That one has the title "Paṇḍita," and this one the title "Ācārya": are they one and the same person, or two different people?

A dance lasting twelve hours —

এইমত নৃত্য হইল চারি প্রহর । সন্ধ্যায় গঙ্গাস্নান করি' সবে গেলা ঘর ॥ ১২০ ॥

ei-mata nṛtya haila cāri prahara in this way the dancing went on four praharas

in the evening bath in the Gaṅgā taking all went home

120 So the dancing went on for four praharas; in the evening they all bathed in the Gaṅgā and went home.

By the Lord's order, kīrtana of Kṛṣṇa in every home —

নগরিয়া লোকে প্রভু যবে আজ্ঞা দিলা । ঘরে ঘরে সংকীর্ত্তন করিতে লাগিলা ॥ ১২১ ॥

nagariyā loke prabhu yabe ājñā dilā of the town to the people the Lord when order gave ghare ghare saṁkīrtana karite lāgilā in house after house saṅkīrtana to perform they began

121 When the Lord gave His order to the townspeople, they began to hold saṅkīrtana in every house:

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

When preaching the name in the town, the Lord first ordered the townspeople who lived near Śrīvāsa's courtyard to chant the name of Hari while clapping their hands; gradually mṛdaṅgas, karatālas and the like began to be played. From then on saṅkīrtana has spread from door to door, and it continues to this day.

A song of the names —

‘হরি হরয়ে নমঃ, কৃষ্ণ যাদবায় নমঃ ।
গোপাল গোবিন্দ রাম শ্রীমধুসূদন’ ॥ ১২২ ॥

‘hari haraye namaḥ, kṛṣṇa yādavāya namaḥ
Hari to Hari obeisance Kṛṣṇa to Yādava obeisance
gopāla govinda rāma śrī-madhusūdana’
Gopāla Govinda Rāma Śrī Madhusūdana

122 “Hari haraye namaḥ, kṛṣṇa yādavāya namaḥ, gopāla govinda rāma śrī-madhusūdana.”

মৃদঙ্গ-করতাল সংকীর্ত্তন-মহাধ্বনি । ‘হরি’ ‘হরি’-ধ্বনি বিনা অন্য নাহি শুনি ॥ ১২৩ ॥

mṛdaṅga-karatāla saṁkīrtana-mahādhvani
mṛdaṅga and karatāla of saṅkīrtana the great sound ‘hari’ ‘hari’-dhvani vinā anya nāhi śuni
‘Hari’ ‘Hari’ the sound except other not is heard

123 The great sound of saṅkīrtana rose with mṛdaṅgas and karatālas, and nothing could be heard but “Hari! Hari!”

The yavanas and the Kāzī oppose the kīrtana —

শুনিয়া যে ক্রুদ্ধ হৈল সকল যবন । কাজী পাশে আসি’ সব কৈল নিবেদন ॥ ১২৪ ॥

śuniyā ye kruddha haila sakala yavana hearing this angry became all the Muslims kājī pāśe āsi’ saba kaila nivedana
the Kazi to coming all made complaint

124 Hearing it, the Muslims grew angry and all came to the Kazi to complain.

Anubhāṣya.

The townspeople's kīrtana of Kṛṣṇa, the Kāzī's anger, and the Kāzī's deliverance: see the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 23.

Kāzī: the phaujadāra (district magistrate), Chāṅd Kāzī. In former times the land tax was collected by the zamindars — rājās or maṇḍalas (village headmen). Punishment, administration and the like were in the hands of the kāzīs. Both zamindar and kāzī were subordinate to the subādāra, the governor of Subā Bāṅgālā. The parganās of Nadīyā, Islāmapura, Bāgoyāna and others then belonged to Hari Hoḍa or to his descendant Kṛṣṇadāsa Hoḍa. But although they owned the land, it was the Kāzī who had taken over the government. It is said that Chāṅd Kāzī was the guru of the Nawab of Bengal, "Husain Shah." According to some, his other name was "Maulānā Sirājuddin"; others say "Habibar Rahamān." His descendants still live in that place, and Chāṅd Kāzī's tomb also survives.

The Kāzī breaks the khola —

ক্রোধে সন্ধ্যাকালে কাজী এক ঘরে আইল । মৃদঙ্গ ভাঙ্গিয়া লোকে কহিতে লাগিল ॥ ১২৫ ॥

krodhe sandhyā-kāle kājī eka ghare āila in anger in the evening the Kazi one house came to mṛdaṅga bhāṅgiyā loke kahite lāgila
the mṛdaṅga breaking to the people to speak began

125 In the evening the Kazi came angrily to one house, broke the mṛdaṅga and said to the people:

Anubhāṣya.
To this day in the village of Śrī Māyāpura there is a well-known piece of land called "Khol-bhāṅgār Ḍāṅgā" ("the mound where the khola was broken").

The Kazi opposes the kīrtana and forbids it —

এতকাল প্রকটে কেহ না কৈল হিন্দুয়ানি । এবে যে উদ্যম চালাও, কার বল জানি' ॥ ১২৬ ॥

eta-kāla prakaṭe keha nā kaila hinduyāni
all this time openly anyone not practised Hindu ways ebe ye udyama cālāo, kāra bala jāni'
now this zeal you carry on on whose strength I would know 126 "All this time no one here has dared to follow Hindu ways openly. Now you carry on with such zeal — on whose strength, I would like to know?

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
From the coming of Bakhtiyar Khilji up to the time of Cāṅd Kāzī, Hinduism in Navadvīpa had sunk into utter decline. Those who truly had faith in the Hindu religion would quietly say "Hari, Hari" once and then fall silent. That is why the Kazi said, "For so long Hinduism has not shown itself at all — by whose strength are you now undertaking such an effort?"

The distressed good people come to the Lord with their complaint —

prabhu-sthāne nivedila pāñā baḍa śoka
the Lord before told feeling great grief

129 With these words the Kazi went away, and the townspeople, in great distress, told the Lord what had happened.

The Lord grows angry and orders everyone to perform saṅkīrtana —

প্রভু আজ্ঞা দিল — যাই' করহ কীর্ত্তন । মুঞি সংহারিমু আজি সকল যবন ॥ ১৩০ ॥

prabhu ājñā dila — yāi' karaha kīrtana
the Lord order gave go do kīrtana

130 The Lord ordered, "Go and hold kīrtana! Today I shall destroy all the Muslims."

135 Having said this, Gaurarāya set out in the evening, and He formed the kīrtana into three groups.

The kīrtana is divided into three groups —

আগে সম্প্রদায়ে নৃত্য করে হরিদাস । মধ্যে নাচে আচার্য্য-গোসাঞি পরম উল্লাস ॥ ১৩৬ ॥

āge sampradāye nṛtya kare haridāsa
in the front group dance does Haridāsa

139 So, holding kīrtana, He wandered through the town, and in His wandering He came to the Kazi's door.

Anubhāṣya.
The Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 23: "May my mind cling to Your feet, (O Śārṅgadhara,) may my mind cling to Your feet! This is Caitanyacandra's first saṅkīrtana: the devotees sing, and Śrī Śacīnandana dances. In Nadīyā a road runs along the bank of the Gaṅgā, and along that road, ahead of all, Gaurarāya goes dancing. First Gaurahari danced a long while at His own ghāṭa, and then He went on to Mādhāi's ghāṭa. 'Viśvambhara, the Lord of all, dances along the banks of the Bhāgīrathī' (refrain). Reaching Bārakoṇā Ghāṭa and Nāgariyā Ghāṭa, the Lord passed through Gaṅgānagara and came to Simuliyā. At the edge of Nadīyā lies the settlement of Simuliyā, and there the Lord arrived, dancing all the way. Then the Ṭhākura took the road to the Kazi's house, and dancing He came to the Kazi's quarter."

gauracandra-bale loka praśraya-pāgala
by Gauracandra's strength the people emboldened mad

140 The people shouted threats and made a great uproar: under Gauracandra's protection they had grown wild with boldness.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Then, by the strength of Śrī Śrī Gauracandra, the people grew bold and went almost mad.

143 Then Mahāprabhu sat down at his door and sent respectable men to call the Kazi.

The Lord honours the Kazi according to worldly custom —

দূর হইতে আইলা কাজী মাথা নোঙাইয়া ।

144 The Kazi approached from a distance, his head bowed, and the Lord received him with honour and gave him a seat.

The Lord expresses surprise at the Kazi's behaviour —

প্রভু বলেন, — আমি তোমার আইলাম অভ্যাগত ।

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

In one part of the village of Brāhmaṇa-puṣkariṇī the old house of the Kazis still stands. Joined to the other part of that village is Tāraṇavāsa, formerly Bilva-puṣkariṇī. That village and the Kazis' Brāhmaṇa-puṣkariṇī were one and the same village, and so Mahāprabhu stood to Cāṅd Kāzī in the relation of a sister's son to a maternal uncle.

Anubhāṣya.

Cakravartī — Nīlāmbara Cakravartī. Cācā — a father's brother, an uncle; in colloquial speech, kākā. Sāčā — genuine, pure, true (saccā).

153 The Lord said, "You drink cow's milk, so the cow is your mother; the bull produces grain, so he is your father.

Anubhāṣya.

Anna upajāya ("produces grain"): the bull draws the plough and prepares the field for sowing and planting rice and other crops. In this way he gives the farmer the chief help in producing seed, grain and rice.

ataeva go-vadha keha nā kare ekhane
therefore cow-killing anyone not does now

163 In the age of Kali the brāhmaṇas have no such power, and so now no one kills cows.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
(The Kazi said:) That scripture, the Koran, distinguishes two kinds of path: pravṛtti (the path of engagement) and nivṛtti (the path of renunciation). On the path of nivṛtti killing living beings is forbidden. But those who, like us, follow the path of pravṛtti do not become sinners if they kill cows by the order of scripture. And look at your Vedas: they contain injunctions to kill cows, and that is why great sages have killed cows from time immemorial.

Mahāprabhu said: The Vedas contain no injunction to kill cows. The statements about sacrifice performed by killing a cow that one does find in them concern the jaradgava, that is, a very old cow. The sages would kill a jaradgava and then, by Vedic mantras, bring it back to life in a youthful body. Such killing is no killing at all; it is only a kindness to the old cow. Since the brāhmaṇas of Kali have no such power, cows may not be killed now.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
The aśvamedha, the gomedha, sannyāsa, a śrāddha to the forefathers with meat, and begetting a son by the husband's brother — these five are forbidden in the age of Kali.

Anubhāṣya.
aśvamedhaṁ (a particular sacrifice in which a horse is killed) gavālambhaṁ (the gomedha) sannyāsaṁ (entering the fourth āśrama) pala-paitṛkam (a śrāddha to the forefathers with meat) devareṇa (by the husband's younger brother) sutotpattiṁ (begetting a son) — (these) pañca kalau (in the Kali-yuga) vivarjayet (one should give up).

Anubhāṣya.
Bhrānta (mistaken): because he approved of needless violence to living beings, his absorption in a "second" (dvitīyābhiniveśa) left his understanding perverted, that is, confused.

The Kazi has no answer and admits that his scripture is incomplete —

Anubhāṣya.

Ādhunika (recent) — new, arisen within time; it is not apauruṣeya (not of human authorship) like the Veda.

Vicāra-saha naya (does not withstand scrutiny): since it does not establish the eternal, real truth, it is easily refuted by reasoning.

171 The reasoning of the yavanas' scriptures is by nature unsound. Smiling, Mahāprabhu questioned him once more:

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

The scriptures of the yavanas are of three kinds: the old book of the "Yu" (the Jews), the Koran and the Bible. All these books have a beginning; none of them is beginningless like the words of the Veda. Therefore, since the reasoning in those scriptures has no firm root, it is open to doubt.

Anubhāṣya.

Adṛḍha vicāra (unsound reasoning) — reasoning that can be cut through, that is, refuted, by argument.

The Lord asks again —

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Even though the Pādśāh is your relative, he can punish you. The Pādśāh — the Pādśāh of Gauḍa, “Husain” Shah.

Anubhāṣya.
Pātsāha (the Pādśāh) — ʿAlāʾ-ud-dīn Sayyid Husain Shah (1498–1511 A.D.), at that time the independent ruler of Bengal. He killed his patron and master, the terribly oppressive Nawab Muzaffar Khan of the Abyssinian (Habshi) dynasty, and ascended the throne of Bengal. On taking the masnad of Bengal he assumed the name “Sayyid Husain ʿAlāʾ-ud-dīn Sharīf Makka.” Ghulam Husain, the author of the chronicle Riyāẓ-us-Salāṭīn, says that one of Nawab Husain Shah’s ancestors had been the Sharif of Mecca, and so he probably took that name in memory of his family’s glory. In the stone inscriptions of Gauḍa, however, he is known simply as “Husain Shah.” After his death his eldest son Nasrat Shah became Nawab of Bengal (1521–1533 A.D.). This cruel-natured nawab terribly oppressed the Vaiṣṇavas and, as a result of his own sins, was killed in a mosque by one of his officials.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

The Kazi said: “O Gaurahari, when I questioned that mleccha peon, he answered: ‘I said to the Hindus, “Some of you, calling yourselves Kṛṣṇadāsa, Rāmadāsa or Haridāsa, keep saying ‘Hari, Hari.’ But the word hari, hari means ‘I steal, I steal,’ so it seems you say ‘Hari, Hari’ (‘I take away, I take away’) because you mean to steal other people’s wealth.” Ever since the day I joked with them like this, my tongue keeps saying “Hari, Hari” against my will, and I can do nothing about it.’”

Anubhāṣya.

Parihāsa (mockery) is one of the four kinds of nāmābhāsa, as it is said: “Chanting the name of Vaikuṇṭha — to indicate something else, in jest, for the sake of a tune, or with disregard — destroys all sins: so the wise know.” (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 6.2.14) Yet nāmābhāsa based on indication, mockery, musical filler or disregard is not merely the material pronunciation of syllables. Directed towards the eternal, real Substance, nāmābhāsa awakens remembrance of Viṣṇu, and so it destroys the jīva’s desire for sense objects. As a result, the liberated jīva, now turned towards service, gains the qualification to utter the pure name.

212 In the Hindu scriptures, we know, the name of Īśvara is a great mantra; if everyone hears it, the mantra loses its power.

Anubhāṣya.
These polytheists (bahv-īśvara-vādīs) are called by the word pāṣaṇḍa because they considered the Lord, or the Lord's name, "a part of karma" (karmāṅga). They did not know how supremely magnanimous and glorious Kṛṣṇa's name is. Blinded by worldly high birth and social standing, they thought: if a low person, that is, one born in a low family, takes Kṛṣṇa's name, that is a special kind of sin; therefore taking Kṛṣṇa's name depends on good family or high birth. These polytheists equated the mahā-mantra, Kṛṣṇa's name, with other mantras for japa, and thought: if the mahā-mantra, which is to be chanted always, is spoken or sung aloud — that is, if it suddenly comes onto the tongue and reaches the ear — then instead of revealing its own matchless supreme majesty and delivering everyone from Brahmā down to a blade of grass, it becomes fruitless. So opposed are they to the path of the Śrutis, these arguers whose reasoning rests on sense knowledge (akṣaja-hetuvādīs)!

229 The Lord made the dead son speak words of divine knowledge, and the two brothers Themselves became Śrīvāsa's sons.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

One night Mahāprabhu was performing kīrtana in Śrīvāsa's courtyard, and at that time one of Śrīvāsa's sons departed from this world. Fearing that the rasa of the kīrtana would be broken, Śrīvāsa forbade everyone to show any grief, and Mahāprabhu danced and sang kīrtana until late in the night. When the kīrtana ended, Mahāprabhu could understand that some misfortune had befallen the house. Learning that Śrīvāsa's son had departed, the Lord first expressed sorrow that He had not been told sooner. Then He had the dead boy laid before Him and asked him, "Boy, why are you leaving Śrīvāsa?" The dead boy replied, "I was destined to stay in Śrīvāsa's house for a certain number of days. Those days are over, and now by Your will I am going elsewhere. I am a jīva, eternally subordinate to You and dependent on You, and I have no right to do anything beyond Your will." Hearing the dead boy's words, Śrīvāsa's family gained divine knowledge, and no grief remained in them. Then the boy's funeral rites were performed. The Lord said to Śrīvāsa, "The son you had has gone. But Nityānanda and I are your eternal sons; We can never leave you."

Anubhāṣya.

230 Then He gave boons to all the devotees, and He honoured Nārāyaṇī by giving her His remnants.

Anubhāṣya.
See the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 10. Certain characterless prākṛta-sahajiyā "Ṭhākuras," pāṣaṇḍīs by nature, wishing to present Śrīla Vṛndāvana dāsa as a golaka[10], say: "Śrīmatī Nārāyaṇī ate the remnants of Śrīman Mahāprabhu's food, or His chewed betel, and as a result, while a widow, gave birth to Ṭhākura Vṛndāvana dāsa." Such slanderous babble is wholly offensive, and therefore one must not listen to it.

232 Crying, “I have seen! I have seen!”, he went mad with love and began to dance, and he became foremost among Vaiṣṇavas.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

A yavana tailor who lived near Śrīvāsa used to sew his clothes. When he watched Mahāprabhu’s dancing with faith and was charmed, the Lord showed him the spiritual (cinmaya) nature of His own form. The tailor began to dance, mad with prema, crying, “I have seen! I have seen!” Āgala — foremost.

At the Lord’s wish Śrīvāsa describes Kṛṣṇa’s sweet pastimes —

247 One day, sitting at home in the mood of a gopī, the Lord was calling "Gopī! Gopī!", sunk in sorrow.

A pāṣaṇḍī student, not understanding the heart of the matter, tries to stop the Lord —

257 By blaspheming the Lord they all lost their intelligence, and the learning they had studied so well no longer shone in any of them.

Anubhāṣya.

For (Śvetāśvatara Upaniṣad 6.23): “Only to the great soul whose supreme devotion is for God, and for the guru as for God, are the meanings of these words revealed.” That is, the true meaning of these Śrutis, whose import is devotion to Hari, is revealed only in the pure heart of that great soul whose supreme (causeless and uninterrupted) devotion is for Viṣṇu, his supreme Deity, and equally for Śrī Gurudeva, the best of His servants. In no other heart is it revealed.

Śrī Prahlāda’s words (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 7.5.24): “If a person, having offered himself to Viṣṇu, performs the ninefold devotion directly for Bhagavān, I consider that the best learning.” Śrīdhara’s commentary: “If it is performed already offered, and not first performed and offered afterward, I consider that the best learning. The sense is: nothing of that kind have I studied or learned from this teacher.” That is, first self-surrender, then the activity of serving Hari — this alone is the rule. Only then may the study of scripture be considered the best. No learning or study can be higher than worship of Viṣṇu preceded by self-surrender.

Under the sway of ignorance (avidyā), the proud man who prides himself on worldly learning disregards Viṣṇu, the life of the bride of transcendental knowledge. Since that hypocrite does not surrender to Viṣṇu, the eternal, real Substance, knowledge does not dawn in his heart, stained with sin. Therefore it is said (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 11.11.18): “If one expert in the śabda-brahman is not absorbed in the Supreme, his labour yields him only labour, like one who tends a cow that gives no milk.” If someone, though thoroughly versed in the Vedas and other scriptures, is not devoted to Viṣṇu, the Parabrahman, all his labour in studying scripture ends only in useless toil.

Anubhāṣya.
A smārta student sunk in karma could not understand that the Lord's anger towards Kṛṣṇa and His reproaches of Kṛṣṇa in the mood of a gopī were transcendental, and he argued with the Lord. The Lord, full of the mood of a gopī, took him for Kṛṣṇa's partisan and angrily chased him, and the student fled. Seeing this, the so-called brāhmaṇas (brāhmaṇa-bruvas), sunk in karma and averse to Hari, deluded as they were, plotted to beat the Lord. And the Lord, to free them from their evil fate and misery, wished to accept the fourth āśrama — the āśrama of the guru of those who, in the eyes of worldly society, are highest in birth and proud of their varṇa. See the Caitanya-bhāgavata, Madhya, Chapter 25.

The Lord wishes to deliver the pāṣaṇḍīs —

মোরে নিন্দা করে যে, না করে নমস্কার । এসব জীবেরে অবশ্য করিব উদ্ধার ॥ ২৬৪ ॥

more nindā kare ye, nā kare namaskāra
Me blasphemy makes who not makes obeisance
esaba jīvere avaśya kariba uddhāra
these souls surely I will make deliverance

264 Those who blaspheme Me and will not bow to Me — all these souls I must surely deliver.

The resolve to enact the pastime of sannyāsa, honoured by the world —

অতএব অবশ্য আমি সন্ন্যাস করিব । সন্ন্যাসি-বুদ্ধ্যে মোরে প্রণত হইব ॥ ২৬৫ ॥

ataeva avaśya āmi sannyāsa kariba therefore surely I sannyāsa will take sannyāsi-buddhye more praṇata haiba thinking Me a sannyāsī to Me bowed down they will be 265 So I shall certainly take sannyāsa; then, taking Me for a sannyāsī, they will bow down to Me.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

According to the scriptures, when a brāhmaṇa accepts sannyāsa, everyone — householders, brāhmaṇas and all the rest — bows to him with the thought of a sannyāsī, that is, knowing that a sannyāsī is worthy of obeisance. If I accept sannyāsa, the blaspheming brāhmaṇas will surely bow down to Me and receive good sense from Me.

By bowing to the Lord as a sannyāsī, even the pāṣaṇḍīs — brāhmaṇas and other high castes — will be purified in heart, and the urge to serve will awaken

in them —

প্রণতিতে হ'বে ইহার অপরাধ ক্ষয় । নির্ম্মল হৃদয়ে ভক্তি করাইব উদয় ॥ ২৬৬ ॥

praṇatite ha'be ihāra aparādha kṣaya
by bowing will be their offences destruction nirmala hṛdaye bhakti karāiba udaya
in a pure heart devotion I will make arise

266 By bowing down they will be freed from their offences, and in their purified hearts I shall make devotion arise.

Anubhāṣya.

Mahāprabhu was convinced that even so-called brāhmaṇas, pāṣaṇḍīs by nature, would prostrate themselves before a Vaiṣṇava sannyāsī; and in those days such was proper conduct (sadācāra) as well. Nowadays, however, there are people even more arrogant than those so-called brāhmaṇas, who do not prostrate themselves before a Vaiṣṇava sannyāsī. For them the scripture enjoins: "A man who sees a Deity or a tridaṇḍī yati and does not bow down must perform atonement." (A variant reading: "…if he does not bow down, he is purified by fasting.") That is, if some so-called brāhmaṇa sees the Deity of Śrī Viṣṇu, the supreme Godhead, or a Vaiṣṇava tridaṇḍi-sannyāsī and does not bow down, then for that lapse he must perform atonement or be purified by fasting.

272 With these words Bhāratī Gosāñi went to Kāṭoyā, and Mahāprabhu went there and took sannyāsa.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

At the end of Mahāprabhu's twenty-fourth year, on the day of the saṅkramaṇa (the sun's passage into a new sign) that begins the uttarāyaṇa and that fell in the bright fortnight of Māgha, Mahāprabhu left Śrī Navadvīpa at the end of the night. He swam across the Gaṅgā at "Nidayā's Ghāṭa," reached Kaṇṭakanagara, that is, the village of Kāṭoyā, and accepted (one) daṇḍa from Keśava Bhāratī. On Mahāprabhu's order Candraśekhara Ācāryaratna performed all the ritual parts of sannyāsa. The kīrtana went on all day, and only when the day was nearly over was the shaving of the head completed. The next morning Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya, dressed as a sannyāsī and bearing the daṇḍa, set out to wander through Rāḍha-deśa. Keśava Bhāratī went with Him for some distance.

Caturvidha bhakta-bhāva (the four kinds of devotees' moods) — the four kinds of devotional mood based on the rasas of dāsya, sakhya, vātsalya and madhura.

Gaurasundara is Himself the viṣaya-vigraha, filled with the bhāva of the āśraya; refutation of the "Gaura-nāgarī" doctrine —

Anubhāṣya.
Śrī Gaurasundara is Kṛṣṇa illumined by the mood and lustre of Śrī Rādhā. Therefore, for the sake of serving Śrī Kṛṣṇa, He never gave up the heartfelt mood of Śrīmatī Rādhikā and the other gopīs, the mood of the āśraya. Never, like Śrī Kṛṣṇa Himself, did He take on the conduct of the viṣaya; that is, never, conceiving of Himself as the enjoyer, did He display the ways of a "lecherous nāgara," such as looking at other men's wives. The worldly, lustful Sahajiyā sect, lechers after other men's wives, try to load their own abominable lustful thirst and adultery onto the shoulders of Śrī Gaurasundara, the guru of the world, who displays the pastimes of an ācārya. But by this they only increase their offence at the feet of Śrī Svarūpa Dāmodara, the crest jewel of Vaiṣṇava ācāryas, and of Ṭhākura Vṛndāvana dāsa. The Caitanya-bhāgavata, Ādi, Chapter 15: "He never jested with other men's wives; when He saw a woman, the Lord moved far to one side. In this way He was playful with everyone — only at women would He not look even from the corner of His eye. In this avatāra the Lord would not even let the word 'woman' reach His ears — this is known to all the world. Therefore no great soul ever offers a prayer such as 'Gaurāṅga-nāgara.' Although every prayer befits Him, the wise still sing only of His true nature." In these three verses the imaginary "Gaura-nāgarī doctrine," which opposes the conclusions of devotion and is nourished by immorality, is clearly refuted.

The gopīs have no love for any form other than Kṛṣṇa's svayaṁ-rūpa —

শ্যামসুন্দর, শিখিপিচ্ছ-গুঞ্জা-বিভূষণ ।

279 Śyāmasundara, adorned with a peacock feather and guñjā beads, in a cowherd's dress, His body bent in three places, the flute at His lips.

281 "What wise man can fathom the ways of the gopīs' love for the son of the cowherd king — a love that moves on a path beyond comprehension? For even when He reveals a form of Viṣṇu, wondrous in its splendour, with four victorious arms, their love, alas, shrinks back." (Lalita-mādhava, 6.14)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

Once Śrī Kṛṣṇa, in jest, manifested the four-armed form of Nārāyaṇa, endowed with wondrous beauty — and the love (rāga) of the gopīs, instead of awakening, shrank. So which paṇḍita can understand the workings of the gopīs' bhāva? For they follow the inaccessible path of parakīya, worshipping the son of Nanda alone.

Anubhāṣya.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

At the beginning of the rāsa, Kṛṣṇa, in play, hid in a kuñja. Seeing the doe-eyed gopīs coming towards Him, He grew anxious and displayed His charming four-armed form. The ordinary gopīs said only, "This is not Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the object of our love." But how wondrous is the glory of Rādhā's love! As soon as Śrī Rādhā arrived, Kṛṣṇa, try as He might, could not keep that four-armed form.

Anubhāṣya.

These verses describe the gradations in the wondrous variety of moods in which Śrī Nityānanda and Śrī Advaita serve Gaura, transcendentally and supremely marvelously. The Gaura-gaṇoddeśa-dīpikā (11–16): "Gauracandra is in the form of a devotee, for He is the son of Nanda. Nityānanda, who in Vraja is Śrī Halāyudha, is a devotee by His very nature. Ācārya Advaita, who is Śrī Sadāśiva, is the avatāra of a devotee. Śrīnivāsa and the others are called devotees, for they are in the form of devotees. The foremost of the twice-born, Śrī Gadādhara Paṇḍita, is the potency of a devotee. Śrīmad Viśvambhara, Advaita and the avadhūta Nityānanda — here three vigrahas are to be recognised, and all three are prabhus. One is Mahāprabhu, Śrī Caitanya, the ocean of mercy; two are prabhus, the illustrious great souls Nityānanda and Advaita. They are gosvāmīs and vigrahas; and together with Gadādhara, the twice-born, and Śrīnivāsa Paṇḍita, they make up the Pañca-tattva. On this the Gosvāmī Śrī Svarūpa, whose feet are lotuses, said: 'Here three vigrahas are to be known, and these three are prabhus: one is Mahāprabhu, and two are prabhus; so the saintly hold.'" Ibid., verses 23–24: Śrī Īśvara Purī served in śṛṅgāra-rasa, Advaita Prabhu in dāsya- and sakhya-rasa, and Śrī Raṅgapurī in pure vātsalya-rasa. See Ādi 7.10–17.

303 Therefore the Lord Himself, taking on the mood of the gopīs, calls the son of Vraja's king "Lord of My life".

Without following those who follow Rūpa, Gaura's rasa of separation (vipralambha) cannot be fathomed —

সেই কৃষ্ণ, সেই গোপী, — পরম বিরোধ । অচিন্ত্য চরিত্র প্রভুর অতি সুদুর্ব্বোধ ॥ ৩০৪ ॥

sei kṛṣṇa, sei gopī, — parama virodha that Kṛṣṇa that gopī supreme contradiction acintya caritra prabhura ati sudurbodha inconceivable the character of the Lord very hard to understand

304 He is Kṛṣṇa, and He is a gopī — a supreme contradiction! The Lord's inconceivable ways are very hard to understand.

Anubhāṣya.
See Ādi 17.276–278.

Gaura's inconceivable moods, full of supreme and wondrous variety, are beyond logic —

ইথে তর্ক করি' কেহ না কর সংশয়। কৃষ্ণের অচিন্ত্য শক্তি এই মত হয় ॥ ৩০৫ ॥

ithe tarka kari' keha nā kara saṁśaya in this argument making anyone not make doubt kṛṣṇera acintya śakti ei mata haya Kṛṣṇa's inconceivable potency this way is 305 Let no one raise doubts about this by argument: such is Kṛṣṇa's inconceivable potency.

অচিন্ত্য, অদ্ভুত কৃষ্ণচৈতন্য-বিহার। চিত্র ভাব, চিত্র গুণ, চিত্র ব্যবহার ॥ ৩০৬ ॥

acintya, adbhuta kṛṣṇa-caitanya-vihāra inconceivable wondrous Kṛṣṇa Caitanya's pastimes citra bhāva, citra guṇa, citra vyavahāra wondrous moods wondrous qualities wondrous conduct

306 Inconceivable and wondrous are the pastimes of Kṛṣṇa Caitanya — wondrous His moods, wondrous His qualities, wondrous His ways.

The wretched fate of the logician: "The doubter perishes"[11] —

তর্কে ইহা নাহি মানে যেই দুরাচার। কুম্ভীপাকে পচে সেই, নাহিক নিস্তার ॥ ৩০৭ ॥

tarke ihā nāhi māne yei durācāra by argument this not accepts who the wicked man kumbhīpāke pace sei, nāhika nistāra
in Kumbhīpāka rots he there is not deliverance

307 The wicked man who rejects this by argument rots in Kumbhīpāka, with no way out.

Anubhāṣya.

Kumbhīpāka — a particular hell, where sinners are cooked in a special vessel called a kumbhī. (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 5.26.13): "One who in this world cruelly cooks animals or birds alive — merciless, despised even by man-eaters — is cooked in the next world by the servants of Yama in Kumbhīpāka, in boiling oil." The jīva who kills living beings deserves Yama's punishment and is cooked in Kumbhīpāka.

(Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, the wave on sthāyi-bhāva, 93)

অচিন্ত্যাঃ খলু যে ভাবা ন তাংস্তর্কেণ যোজয়েৎ ৷
প্রকৃতিভ্যঃ পরং যচ্চ তদচিন্ত্যস্য লক্ষণম্ ॥ ৩০৮ ॥

acintyāḥ khalu ye bhāvā inconceivable indeed which states na tāṁs tarkeṇa yojayet not them by argument one should test prakṛtibhyaḥ paraṁ yac ca material nature beyond what and tad acintyasya lakṣaṇam that of the inconceivable the mark

308 "What is inconceivable should not be put to the test of argument. And what lies beyond material nature — that is the mark of the inconceivable." (Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 2.5.93)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

The truth that lies beyond prakṛti — that is the mark of the inconceivable. Logic (tarka) is material, and so it cannot touch that truth. Therefore one should not apply logic to what is inconceivable.

Thus ends the seventeenth chapter of the "Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya."

Anubhāṣya.

Dhṛtarāṣṭra wished to hear the names of the rivers, mountains, forests and other things on the earth, and in reply to his question Sañjaya said: ye bhāvāḥ acintyāḥ (beyond thought that is full of material enjoyment) khalu (certainly), tān acintya-bhāvān tarkeṇa na yojayet (meaning: one should not assail them with arguments); yat ca prakṛtibhyaḥ param (other, beyond — in short, transcendental), tat eva acintyasya lakṣaṇam.

Only one who has faith attains service —

অদ্ভুত চৈতন্যলীলায় যাহার বিশ্বাস । সেই জন যায় চৈতন্যের পদ-পাশ ॥ ৩০৯ ॥

adbhuta caitanya-līlāya yāhāra viśvāsa wondrous in Caitanya's pastimes whose faith sei jana yāya caitanyera pada-pāśa that person goes Caitanya's feet near 309 Whoever has faith in Caitanya's wondrous pastimes comes to His feet.

প্রসঙ্গে কহিল এই সিদ্ধান্তের সার । ইহা যেই শুনে, শুদ্ধভক্তি হয় তার ॥ ৩১০ ॥

prasaṅge kahila ei siddhāntera sāra in the course I have told this of the conclusion the essence ihā yei śune, śuddha-bhakti haya tāra this whoever hears pure devotion is his 310 In the course of the story I have told the essence of this conclusion; whoever hears it attains pure devotion.

Repetition —

লিখিত গ্রন্থের যদি করি অনুবাদ । তবে সে গ্রন্থের অর্থ পাইবে আস্বাদ ॥ ৩১১ ॥

likhita granthera yadi kari anuvāda written of the book if I make restatement tabe se granthera artha pāibe āsvāda
then that of the book the meaning will get taste

311 When I restate what the book has already told, the reader comes to taste its meaning.

The chapters described after the manner of Śrī Vyāsa in the Bhāgavatam —

অতএব ভাগবতে ব্যাসের আচার । কথা কহি' অনুবাদ করে বার বার ॥ ৩১২ ॥

ataeva bhāgavate vyāsera ācāra therefore in the Bhāgavata Vyāsa's practice kathā kahi' anuvāda kare vāra vāra
the story telling restatement makes again and again

312 So it is Vyāsa's way in the Bhāgavatam: as he tells the story, he restates it again and again.

Anubhāṣya.
At the end of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, in the twelfth chapter of the twelfth canto, Śrī Kṛṣṇa Dvaipāyana Vedavyāsa summarised the entire Bhāgavatam from beginning to end in 52 verses and so concluded the book. Following the path shown by that mahājana, the author too briefly recapitulates Śrī Caitanya's Ādi-līlā.

Repetition, briefly describing the chapters —

তাতে আদি-লীলার করি পরিচ্ছেদ গণন । প্রথম পরিচ্ছেদে কৈল 'মঙ্গলাচরণ' ॥ ৩১৩ ॥

tāte ādi-līlāra kari paricchеda gaṇana therefore of the Ādi-līlā I make of the chapters counting prathama paricchede kaila 'maṅgalācaraṇa'
in the first chapter I made the auspicious invocation

313 So now I shall count the chapters of the Ādi-līlā. In the first chapter I made the "auspicious invocation";

দ্বিতীয় পরিচ্ছেদে ‘চৈতন্যতত্ত্ব-নিরূপণ’ । স্বয়ং ভগবান্ যেই ব্রজেন্দ্রনন্দন ॥ ৩১৪ ॥

dvitīya paricchede ‘caitanya-tattva-nirūpaṇa’
in the second chapter determining the truth of Caitanya
svayaṁ bhagavān yei vrajendra-nandana
Svayam Bhagavān who the son of Vraja’s king

314 the second chapter is the “determining of the truth of Caitanya”: He who is Svayam Bhagavān, the son of Vraja’s king,

তিঁহ ত’ চৈতন্য-কৃষ্ণ — শচীর নন্দন । তৃতীয় পরিচ্ছেদে জন্মের ‘সামান্য’ কারণ ॥ ৩১৫ ॥

tiṁha ta’ caitanya-kṛṣṇa — śacīra nandana
He indeed Caitanya-Kṛṣṇa of Śacī the son tṛtīya paricchede janmera ‘sāmānya’ kāraṇa
in the third chapter of the birth the general cause

315 is Caitanya-Kṛṣṇa, the son of Śacī. The third chapter gives the “general” cause of His birth, তহিঁ মধ্যে প্রেমদান — ‘বিশেষ’ কারণ । যুগধর্ম্ম — কৃষ্ণনাম-প্রেম-প্রচারণ ॥ ৩১৬ ॥

tahiṁ madhye prema-dāna — ‘viśeṣa’ kāraṇa of it within the gift of prema the special cause yuga-dharma — kṛṣṇa-nāma-prema-pracāraṇa
the religion of the age the preaching of Kṛṣṇa’s name and of prema

316 and within it the “special” cause, the gift of prema; the religion of the age is the preaching of Kṛṣṇa’s name and of prema.

চতুর্থে কহিল জন্মের ‘মূল’ কারণ । স্বমাধুর্য্য-প্রেমানন্দরস-আস্বাদন ॥ ৩১৭ ॥

caturthe kahila janmera 'mūla' kāraṇa in the fourth I told of the birth the root cause sva-mādhurya-premānanda-rasa-āsvādana
the tasting of the rasa of the bliss of love for His own sweetness

317 In the fourth I told the "root" cause of His birth: to taste the blissful rasa of love for His own sweetness.

পঞ্চমে 'শ্রীনিত্যানন্দ'-তত্ত্ব নিরূপণ । নিত্যানন্দ হৈলা রাম রোহিণীনন্দন ॥ ৩১৮ ॥

pañcame 'śrī-nityānanda'-tattva nirūpaṇa in the fifth of Śrī Nityānanda the truth determining nityānanda hailā rāma rohiṇī-nandana
Nityānanda was Rāma Rohiṇī's son

318 The fifth determines the truth of Śrī Nityānanda: Nityānanda was Rāma, the son of Rohiṇī.

ষষ্ঠ পরিচ্ছেদে 'অদ্বৈত-তত্ত্বে'র বিচার । অদ্বৈত-আচার্য্য — মহাবিষ্ণু-অবতার ॥ ৩১৯ ॥

ṣaṣṭha paricchede 'advaita-tattve'ra vicāra in the sixth chapter of the truth of Advaita the consideration
advaita-ācārya — mahā-viṣṇu-avatāra
Advaita Ācārya of Mahā-Viṣṇu the avatāra

319 The sixth chapter considers the truth of Advaita: Advaita Ācārya is the avatāra of Mahā-Viṣṇu.

সপ্তম পরিচ্ছেদে 'পঞ্চতত্ত্বে'র আখ্যান । পঞ্চতত্ত্ব মিলি' যৈছে কৈল প্রেমদান ॥ ৩২০ ॥

saptama paricchede 'pañca-tattve'ra ākhyāna in the seventh chapter of the Pañca-tattva the account pañca-tattva mili' yaiche kaila prema-dāna
the Pañca-tattva joining how made the gift of prema

320 The seventh chapter gives the account of the Pañca-tattva — how the five truths together gave away prema.

অষ্টমে ‘চৈতন্যলীলা-বর্ণন’-কারণ । এক কৃষ্ণনামের মহা-মহিমা-কথন ॥ ৩২১ ॥

aṣṭame ‘caitanya-līlā-varṇana’-kāraṇa in the eighth the reason for describing Caitanya’s pastimes eka kṛṣṇa-nāmera mahā-mahimā-kathana one of Kṛṣṇa’s name the great glory telling

321 The eighth gives the reason for describing Caitanya’s pastimes and tells the great glory of a single name of Kṛṣṇa.

নবমেতে ‘ভক্তিকল্পবৃক্ষের বর্ণন’ । শ্রীচৈতন্য-মালী কৈল বৃক্ষ আরোপণ ॥ ৩২২ ॥

navamete ‘bhakti-kalpa-vṛkṣera varṇana’
in the ninth the description of the wish-fulfilling tree of devotion śrī-caitanya-mālī kaila vṛkṣa āropaṇa
Śrī Caitanya the gardener made of the tree the planting

322 The ninth describes the wish-fulfilling tree of devotion, which Śrī Caitanya, the gardener, planted.

দশমেতে মূল-স্কন্ধের ‘শাখাদি-গণন’ । সর্ব্বশাখাগণের যৈছে ফল-বিতরণ ॥ ৩২৩ ॥

daśamete mūla-skandhera ‘śākhādi-gaṇana’
in the tenth of the main trunk the counting of the branches sarva-śākhā-gaṇera yaiche phala-vitaraṇa of all the branches how the distribution of fruit

323 The tenth counts the branches of the main trunk and tells how all the branches gave out the fruit.

একাদশে ‘নিত্যানন্দশাখা-বিবরণ’ । দ্বাদশে ‘অদ্বৈতস্কন্ধ শাখার বর্ণন’ ॥ ৩২৪ ॥

ekādaśe ‘nityānanda-śākhā-vivaraṇa’
in the eleventh the account of Nityānanda’s branches dvādaśe ‘advaita-skandha śākhāra varṇana’
in the twelfth the description of the branches of Advaita’s trunk

324 The eleventh gives the account of Nityānanda’s branches, and the twelfth describes the branches of Advaita’s trunk.

ত্রয়োদশে মহাপ্রভুর ‘জন্ম-বিবরণ’ । কৃষ্ণনাম সহ যৈছে প্রভুর জনম ॥ ৩২৫ ॥

trayodaśe mahāprabhura ‘janma-vivaraṇa’
in the thirteenth of Mahāprabhu the account of the birth
kṛṣṇa-nāma saha yaiche prabhura janama
Kṛṣṇa’s name with how of the Lord the birth

325 The thirteenth gives the account of Mahāprabhu’s birth — how the Lord was born amid the chanting of Kṛṣṇa’s name.

চতুর্দ্দশে ‘বাল্যলীলা’র কিছু বিবরণ । পঞ্চদশে ‘পৌগণ্ডলীলা’র সংক্ষেপে কথন ॥ ৩২৬ ॥

saptadaśe 'yauvana-līlā' kahila viśeṣa in the seventeenth the pastimes of young manhood I told especially 327 In the sixteenth I gave an outline of the pastimes of youth, and in the seventeenth I told especially of the pastimes of young manhood.

Anubhāṣya.
Verses 313 to 327 list the chapters. In the first chapter — the maṅgalācaraṇa, with obeisance to the gurus and others. In the second — the maṅgalācaraṇa that points to the truth of Gaura. In the third — the general cause of the avatāra: the gift of prema. In the fourth — the root cause of the avatāra. In the fifth — the truth of Nityānanda. In the sixth — the truth of Advaita set forth. In the seventh — the Pañca-tattva set forth, and its preaching. In the eighth — the introduction and the glory of the name. In the ninth — the description of the wish-fulfilling tree of devotion, and its preaching. In the tenth — the list of Gaura's associates. In the eleventh — the list of Nityānanda's associates. In the twelfth — the list of Advaita's and Gadādhara's associates. In the thirteenth — Gaura's birth pastime. In the fourteenth — the pastimes of childhood. In the fifteenth — the paugaṇḍa pastimes. In the sixteenth — the kaiśora pastimes. In the seventeenth — the pastimes of youth.

saṅkṣepe kahila ati, — nā kaila vistṛta
in brief I told very not I made extensive

329 In five chapters I have told the deeds of the five ages, very briefly, without going into detail.

Anubhāṣya.
The Ādi-līlā has seventeen chapters, or sections (prabandhas). Of these, the first twelve are only the preface, or introduction, to the book. The following five chapters, from the thirteenth to the seventeenth, are five sections on the five ages: "birth," "childhood" (bālya), "boyhood" (paugaṇḍa), "youth" (kaiśora) and "young manhood" (yuvā).

330 Vṛndāvana dāsa has described all this in detail in the Caitanya-maṅgala, by the strength of Nityānanda's order.[6]

Gaura's pastimes are boundless —

শ্রীকৃষ্ণচৈতন্যলীলা — অদ্ভুত, অনন্ত । ব্রহ্মা-শিব-শেষ যাঁর নাহি পায় অন্ত ॥ ৩৩১ ॥

śrī-kṛṣṇa-caitanya-līlā — adbhuta, ananta Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya's pastimes wondrous endless brahmā-śiva-śeṣa yāṁra nāhi pāya anta
Brahmā Śiva Śeṣa whose not reach the end

331 The pastimes of Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya are wondrous and endless; even Brahmā, Śiva and Śeṣa cannot reach their end.

Anubhāṣya.

See Madhya 21.10 and 12, and Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 2.7.41, 10.14.7 and other verses.

The supreme good for those who hear and chant Gaura's pastimes —

335–336 Placing on my head the feet of Śrī Svarūpa, Śrī Rūpa, Śrī Sanātana, Śrī Raghunātha dāsa and Śrī Jīva, I bow to them, and ever hoping for their mercy, I, Kṛṣṇadāsa, narrate the Caitanya-caritāmṛta.

Anubhāṣya.

Śrī Svarūpa — Śrī Svarūpa Dāmodara; see Madhya 10.102–127 and the Anubhāṣya.

Thus ends the seventeenth chapter of the "Anubhāṣya."
