“Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta”

Madhya-līlā

Chapter 4

Relishing the Life of Śrī Mādhavendra Purī

(English translation from the Bengali, following the Gauḍīya Maṭha edition and the Anubhāṣya, 2026)

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya

Summary. Śrīman Mahāprabhu went by the Chatrabhoga road, passed Vṛddha-mantreśvara, and entered the borders of the kingdom of Utkala. Along the way He joyfully sang kīrtana in many ways and gathered alms, and on reaching the village of Remuṇā He had darśana of Śrī Gopīnātha. In supreme bliss He told His devotees about Śrī Mādhavendra Purī, as He had heard it from Śrī Īśvara Purī. Long before, Śrī Mādhava Purī[15] had gone to Vṛndāvana, and one night at Govardhana he dreamed: “Gopāla is in the forest.” The next morning, after this dream, he gathered the residents of Govardhana, brought the Deity of Śrī Gopāla out of the forest, and installed Him on top of the hill. Gopāla was worshipped with great pomp, and the great festival of Annakūṭa was held. As word of it gradually spread, many people came from the villages and held festivals for Gopāla. One night Gopāla gave Purī this command in a dream: “Go to Nīlācala at once, obtain malayaja sandalwood, anoint Me with it, and relieve My heat.” On receiving this command Purī Gosvāmī went through Gauḍa and reached the village of Remuṇā in Utkala. There he received the kṣīra-prasāda that Śrī Gopīnātha gave him, and he went on to Śrī Puruṣottama. Because Gopīnātha stole kṣīra and gave it to Mādhavendra Purī, He is called “Kṣīra-corā Gopīnātha.” Having reached Nīlācala, Purī obtained, through the servants of Śrī Jagannātha, one maund of sandalwood and twenty tolās of camphor (śrī-karpūra) from the king’s officers, and with two porters he brought these as far as Remuṇā. Then Gopāla, the Holder of Govardhana, again commanded him in a dream: “Smear this sandalwood and camphor on the body of Gopīnātha, and My heat will go away.” Mādhavendra Purī obeyed this command and went back to Nīlācala. Mahāprabhu told this story to Śrī Nityānanda and the other devotees and praised Śrī Mādhavendra Purī's pure prema-bhakti at length. When He recited the verse Purī had composed, the madness of love (premonmāda) came over Him. Seeing the crowd, the Lord returned to outward consciousness. He honoured the prasāda of kṣīra (sweet rice, paramānna), spent that night there, and the next day set out for Nīlācala.

Obeisance to Mādhavendra Purī, the servant of "Kṣīra-corā Gopīnātha" —

Śrī Gopāla appeared conquered being yat-premṇā taṁ mādhavendraṁ nato 'smi
by whose love to that Mādhavendra bowed down am I

1 I bow down to Mādhavendra Purī, for whose sake Gopīnātha stole a pot of sweet rice and so became known as Kṣīra-corā, "the thief of sweet rice", and conquered by whose love Śrī Gopāla revealed Himself.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

To give him kṣīra, Śrī Gopīnātha stole a pot of kṣīra and received the name "Kṣīra-corā"; conquered by his devotion, Śrī Gopāladeva manifested Himself. To that Mādhavendra Purī I bow down.

Anubhāṣya.

gopīnāthaḥ (the famous Deity of that name in the village of Remuṇā) kṣīra-bhāṇḍaṁ (a vessel full of pāyasa) corayan (stealing) yasmai (for Śrī Mādhavendra) dātuṁ (to give) kṣīra-corābhidhaḥ abhūt (received the name "Kṣīra-corā Gopīnātha"); yat (whose — Mādhavendra's) premṇā (by the love)

vaśaḥ (conquered) śrī gopālaḥ (the Deity installed by Vajra, the Holder of Govardhana) prādurāsīt (appeared), taṁ mādhavendraṁ (to that Mādhavendra Purī — the disciple of Lakṣmīpati, the guru of the Mādhva-sampradāya) nataḥ asmi (I bow down).

The Lord's other pastimes after His arrival in Nīlācala are sweetly described in the Caitanya-bhāgavata —

3–4 The Lord's coming to Nīlādri, His seeing Jagannātha, His meeting with Sārvabhauma Bhaṭṭācārya — all these pastimes Śrī Vṛndāvana dāsa has described in detail, and his description is excellent.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

All these pastimes — see the Śrī Caitanya-bhāgavata, Antya-khaṇḍa, Chapters 2 and 3.

5 The pastimes of Caitanya are by their very nature wonderful and sweet, and from the lips of Vṛndāvana dāsa they flow as a stream of nectar.

Fearing repetition, pride, and contradiction of the path of śrauta, the author refrains [from describing them] —

অতএব তাহা বর্ণিলে হয় পুনরুক্তি । দম্ভ করি' বর্ণি যদি নাহি তৈছে শক্তি ॥ ৬ ॥

ataeva tāhā varṇile haya punarukti
therefore them if I describe there will be repetition

pride showing I describe if there is not such power

6 Therefore to describe them again would be mere repetition; and should I presume to describe them out of pride, I have no such power.

What is told at length in the Caitanya-bhāgavata is told briefly in this book, and what is told briefly there is described at length here —

8 As best I can, I shall tell those pastimes he mentioned in his summary but did not describe.

The author's incomparable humility of giving honour to others (mānada-dharma) — obeisance to Vṛndāvana dāsa —

অতএব তাঁর পায়ে করি নমস্কার ।

9 Therefore I bow down at his feet, praying that I may not offend him.

With Nityānanda and three others, the Lord sets out on the road to Purī —

12 On the way the many powerful ferrymen at the crossings did not hinder Him; bestowing His mercy on them all, He came to Remuṇā.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Dānī — the ferrymen at the river crossings.

Anubhāṣya.
Remuṇā — see the Anubhāṣya on Madhya 1.97. The Deity Gopīnātha resides here, and the samādhi of Rasikānanda Prabhu, the servant of Śyāmānanda Prabhu, still exists here.

17 Lovingly they served the Lord in many ways, and the Lord spent that night there.

Anubhāṣya.
Vañcana — spent (the night).

The Lord stays there to honour the kṣīra-prasāda, which, as He had heard from His guru, awakens remembrance of Kṛṣṇa's love for His devotees —

মহাপ্রসাদ-ক্ষীর-লোভে রহিলা প্রভু তথা । পূর্ব্বে ঈশ্বরপুরী তাঁরে কহিয়াছেন কথা ॥ ১৮ ॥

mahāprasāda-kṣīra-lobhe rahilā prabhu tathā for the mahā-prasāda sweet rice out of eagerness stayed the Lord there before Īśvara Purī to Him had told the story

18 The Lord stayed there out of eagerness for the mahā-prasāda of sweet rice, for Īśvara Purī had once told Him its story.

The Lord tells the devotees why Gopīnātha was called "Kṣīra-corā" for the sake of His devotee Mādhavendra Purī —

'ক্ষীরচোরা গোপীনাথ' প্রসিদ্ধ তাঁর নাম । ভক্তগণে কহে প্রভু সেই ত' আখ্যান ॥ ১৯ ॥

'kṣīra-corā gopīnātha' prasiddha tāṅra nāma Kṣīra-corā Gopīnātha famous His name
bhakta-gaṇe kahe prabhu sei ta' ākhyāna
to the devotees tells the Lord that very story

19 His famous name is "Kṣīra-corā Gopīnātha", and the Lord told the devotees the story behind it.

ataeva nāma haila 'kṣīra-corā hari'
therefore the name became Kṣīra-corā Hari

20 Long ago He stole sweet rice for Mādhava Purī, and so He came to be called "Kṣīra-corā Hari", Hari the thief of sweet rice.[3]

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Mādhava Purī — Mādhavendra Purī.

21 Once Śrī Mādhava Purī came to Vṛndāvana, and wandering on and on, he reached Govardhana.

Mādhavendra Purī, always intoxicated with love for Kṛṣṇa —

22 Mad with love, he could not tell night from day. Now he would rise, now he would fall, with no thought of where he was.

23 After walking around the hill, he came to Govinda-kuṇḍa and bathed there, and in the evening he sat beneath a tree.

Anubhāṣya.
Śaila — Govardhana Hill, eight krośas from Mathurā.

Kṛṣṇa, dressed as a cowherd boy, gives milk to Purī, His devotee —

গোপ-বালক এক দুগ্ধ-ভাণ্ড লঞা ।

24 A cowherd boy came carrying a pot of milk. Holding it out before him, He smiled and said:

পুরী, এই দুগ্ধ লঞা কর তুমি পান । মাগি' কেনে নাহি খাও, কিবা কর ধ্যান ॥ ২৫ ॥

purī, ei dugdha lañā kara tumi pāna Purī this milk taking do you drinking māgi' kene nāhi khāo, kibā kara dhyāna having begged why not you eat what do you meditate on 25 "Purī, take this milk and drink it. Why do you not beg for food and eat? What are you meditating on?"

বালকের সৌন্দর্য্যে পুরীর হইল সন্তোষ ।

tāhāra madhura-vākye gela bhoga-śoṣa
His by the sweet words went away hunger and thirst

26 Purī was delighted by the boy's beauty, and at His sweet words his hunger and thirst vanished.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Bhoga-śoṣa — the desire for food.

Purī asks the boy who He is —

পুরী কহে, — কে তুমি, কাঁহা তোমার বাস । কেমতে জানিলে, আমি করি উপবাস ॥ ২৭ ॥

purī kahe, — ke tumi, kāṁhā tomāra vāsa Purī said who You where Your dwelling ke-mate jānile, āmi kari upavāsa
how did You know I keep a fast

27 Purī said, “Who are You? Where do You live? How did You know that I was fasting?”

The boy conceals who He is —

বালক কহে, — গোপ আমি, এই গ্রামে বসি । আমার গ্রামেতে কেহ না রহে উপবাসী ॥ ২৮ ॥

bālaka kahe, — gopa āmi, ei grāme vasi
the boy said a cowherd I in this village live
āmāra grāmete keha nā rahe upavāsī
My in the village anyone not remains fasting

28 The boy said, “I am a cowherd and live in this village. In My village no one goes hungry.

কেহ অন্ন মাগি’ খায়, কেহ দুগ্ধাহার । অযাচক-জনে আমি দিয়ে ত’ আহার ॥ ২৯ ॥

keha anna māgi’ khāya, keha dugdhāhāra

cow-milking to do I want quickly I shall go punaḥ āsi' āmi ei bhāṇḍa laiba again coming I this pot shall take

31 I must go now to milk the cows, but I will come back and take this pot."

Having given the milk, the boy disappears —

এত বলি' গেলা বালক না দেখিয়ে আর । মাধব-পুরীর চিত্তে হইল চমৎকার ॥ ৩২ ॥

eta bali' gelā bālaka nā dekhiye āra
this saying went the boy not was seen any more mādhava-purīra citte haila camatkāra Mādhava Purī's in the heart arose wonder

32 Saying this, the boy went away and was seen no more, and Mādhava Purī's heart was filled with wonder.

After drinking the milk, Purī waits for the boy —

দুগ্ধ পান করি’ ভাণ্ড ধুঞা রাখিল । বাট দেখে, সে বালক পুনঃ না আইল ॥ ৩৩ ॥

dugdha pāna kari’ bhāṇḍa dhuñā rākhila milk drinking having done the pot washing set aside bāṭa dekhe, se bālaka punaḥ nā āila
the path he watches that boy again not came

33 He drank the milk, washed the pot and set it aside. He kept watching the path, but the boy did not come back.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Bāṭa — road; a word of the Utkala language.

In samādhi Purī receives darśana of Kṛṣṇa in the form of a boy —

বসি’ নাম লয় পুরী, নাহি নিদ্রা হয় ।
শেষ রাত্রে তন্দ্রা হৈল, — বাহ্যবৃত্তি-লয় ॥ ৩৪ ॥

vasi’ nāma laya purī, nāhi nidrā haya sitting the Name takes Purī no sleep comes śeṣa rātre tandrā haila, — bāhya-vṛtti-laya
at the end of the night a trance came of the outward senses the stilling

34 Purī sat chanting the Name, and no sleep came to him. At the end of the night a trance came over him, and his outward senses were stilled.

Anubhāṣya.
Nāma — the name of Hari. Bāhya-vṛtti-laya (“his outward faculties ceased”) — he became absorbed in the samādhi of devotion.

In a dream Kṛṣṇa, in the form of a boy, leads Mādhavendra to a grove (kuñja) —

স্বপ্নে দেখে, সেই বালক সম্মুখে আসিঞা । এক কুঞ্জে লঞা গেল হাতেতে ধরিঞা ॥ ৩৫ ॥

svapne dekhe, sei bālaka sammukhe āsiñā
in a dream he sees that boy before him coming eka kuñje lañā gela hātete dhariñā to a grove taking went by the hand holding

35 In a dream he saw that same boy come before him, take him by the hand and lead him into a grove.

Giridhārī tells of His suffering, for His service has fallen into neglect —

কুঞ্জ দেখাঞা কহে, — আমি এই কুঞ্জে রই । শীত-বৃষ্টি-বাতাগ্নিতে মহা-দুঃখ পাই ॥ ৩৬ ॥

kuñja dekhāñā kahe, — āmi ei kuñje rai
the grove showing He says I in this grove stay śīta-vṛṣṭi-vātāgnite mahā-duḥkha pāi from cold, rain, wind and heat great suffering I get 36 Pointing to the grove, He said, “This is where I stay, and I suffer greatly from cold and rain, wind and heat.

The command to build a temple (maṭha) on the hill and install Giridhārī Gopāla in it —

গ্রামের লোক আনি’ আমা কাঢ় কুঞ্জ হৈতে । পর্ব্বত-উপরি লঞা রাখ ভালমতে ॥ ৩৭ ॥

grāmera loka āni’ āmā kāḍha kuñja haite of the village the people bringing Me take out the grove from parvata-upari lañā rākha bhāla-mate
on top of the hill taking keep properly

37 Bring the people of the village and take Me out of the grove. Carry Me up the hill and settle Me there with care.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Kāḍha — bring out; maṭha — a temple.

এক মঠ করি’ তাঁহা করহ স্থাপন । বহু শীতল জলে কর শ্রীঅঙ্গ মার্জ্জন ॥ ৩৮ ॥

eka maṭha kari’ tāṁhā karaha sthāpana
a temple making there do installation bahu śītala jale kara śrī-aṅga mārjana
with much cool water do of the holy body bathing

38 Build a temple there and install Me in it, and bathe My body with plenty of cool water.

Bhagavān waits for His devotee —

বহুদিন তোমার পথ করি নিরীক্ষণ । কবে আসি’ মাধব আমা করিবে সেবন ॥ ৩৯ ॥

bahu-dina tomāra patha kari nirīkṣaṇa for many days your path I do watching kabe āsi’ mādhava āmā karibe sevana
when coming Mādhava Me will do service

39 For many days I have been watching the path for you, Mādhava, wondering when you would come and serve Me.

তোমার প্রেমবশে করি’ সেবা অঙ্গীকার । দর্শন দিয়া নিস্তারিব সকল সংসার ॥ ৪০ ॥

tomāra prema-vaśe kari’ sevā aṅgīkāra
your conquered by love making of service acceptance darśana diyā nistāriba sakala saṁsāra
darśana giving I shall deliver all the world

40 Conquered by your love, I shall accept your service, and by giving My darśana I shall deliver the whole world.

Giridhārī reveals who He is —

'শ্রীগোপাল' নাম মোর, — গোবর্দ্ধনধারী । বজ্রের স্থাপিত, আমি ইঁহা অধিকারী ॥ ৪১ ॥

'śrī-gopāla' nāma mora, — govarddhana-dhārī
Śrī Gopāla name My the Holder of Govardhana vajrera sthāpita, āmi iṁhā adhikārī
by Vajra installed I here the master

41 My name is Śrī Gopāla; I am the Holder of Govardhana. I was installed by Vajra, and I am the master here.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

Installed by Vajra. Vajra was the son of Aniruddha, Śrī Kṛṣṇa's grandson. The Pāṇḍavas brought him from Dvārakā and made him king in Mathurā. Śrī Gopāla, the Holder of Govardhana, is one of those Deities [that Vajra installed].

শৈল-উপরি হৈতে আমা কুঞ্জে লুকাঞা । ম্লেচ্ছ-ভয়ে সেবক মোর গেল পলাঞা ॥ ৪২ ॥

Anubhāṣya.
Cleansing (sammārjana) is done with powdered barley, wheat flour, lodhra, kuṅkuma, lentils (masūra) or māṣa beans. Dirt is removed from the body by rubbing with a paste (udvartana, or ābāṭā) of kalāya peas and ground flour, and with brushes (kūrcas) made of uśīra and the like, brushes made of the hair of a cow's tail, and so on. The same Hari-bhakti-vilāsa says: "There, first of all, let him with devotion gently anoint Śrī Hari (perform abhyaṅga) with divine fragrant substances such as oils." The substances for abhyaṅga: "People who with devotion take mālatī and yūthī, or other fragrant flowers, or flowers of other kinds… He who anoints Viṣṇu with flower oil mixed with divine herbs, adding kuṅkuma to it… Scented oils, divine, fragrant and pure."

61 He bathed Him with pañca-gavya and pañcāmṛta, and then performed the great bath (mahā-snāna) with a hundred pots of water.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Pañca-gavya — milk, yogurt, ghee, cow's urine and cow dung; pañcāmṛta — yogurt, milk, ghee, honey and sugar.

Anubhāṣya.
The same Hari-bhakti-vilāsa (vilāsa 6): "Then let him bathe [the Lord] in order with milk poured from a conch, and with yogurt, ghee, honey and sugar, each separately."

Mahā-snāna. In the same sixth vilāsa: "And for the mahā-snāna the measure is two thousand palas." The Deity (pratimā) is bathed with ghee. For the mahā-snāna both the ghee and the bathing water amount to two thousand palas each. If a pala equals four tolās, the mahā-snāna will require two and a half maunds of water.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Śaṅkha-gandhodaka. Śaṅkhodaka is water kept in a conch; gandhodaka is water made fragrant with flowers and sandalwood.

Anubhāṣya.

The same Hari-bhakti-vilāsa (vilāsa 6, verse 50): "Then, having bathed [the Lord] with warm, purified, fragrant water, let him bathe Him again with cool water from a conch. When he has the means, the knower of mantras should always bathe Him with water scented with sandalwood, uśīra, camphor, kuṅkuma and aguru." On the measure of water: "For the bath let him give a hundred palas, for abhyaṅga twenty-five; and two thousand palas is called the mahā-snāna."

former Annakūṭa as if became visible

86 Seeing Purī's power, the people were amazed: it was as if the Annakūṭa of old had come before their eyes.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
In the Dvāpara-yuga the cowherds of Vraja used to worship Indra. Śrī Kṛṣṇa stopped that worship and arranged instead for Govardhana Hill to be worshipped and fed (Girirāja) with an annakūṭa. Enraged, Indra poured rain for seven days, trying to destroy Gokula. Śrī Kṛṣṇa held Govardhana Hill on His little finger like an umbrella against the rain and so protected Gokula. Mādhavendra Purī held an annakūṭa as great as the one held at that worship of Govardhana.

Anubhāṣya.
The Annakūṭa of old. At the end of the Dvāpara-yuga, on Śrī Kṛṣṇa's advice, the cowherds gave up the worship of Indra and worshipped the cows, the brāhmaṇas and Govardhana Hill. Śrī Kṛṣṇa assumed another form, said, "I am the hill," and ate the abundant offerings. (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.24.26, 31–33): "Let various dishes be cooked, from pāyasa to soup; let saṁyāva, āpūpas and śaṣkulīs be made, and let all the milk be collected. Hearing these words, Nanda and the other cowherds accepted them as good and did everything as Madhusūdana had said. Having had [the brāhmaṇas] recite blessings (svastyayana), with those provisions they respectfully presented offerings to the hill and to the twice-born, and gave grass to the cows.”

By Purī’s mercy the brāhmaṇas became Vaiṣṇavas —

সকল ব্রাহ্মণে পুরী বৈষ্ণব করিল । সেই সেই সেবা-মধ্যে সবা নিয়োজিল ॥ ৮৭ ॥

sakala brāhmaṇe purī vaiṣṇava karila

a little food offered gave water to drink

88 At the close of the day he had the Lord woken again, offered Him a little food and gave Him water to drink.

Word of Gopāla’s appearance spreads everywhere, and annakūṭa is offered to Him —

গোপাল প্রকট হৈল, — দেশে শব্দ হৈল । আশ-পাশ-গ্রামের লোক দেখিতে আইল ॥ ৮৯ ॥

gopāla prakaṭa haila, — deśe śabda haila Gopāla has appeared in the land the word spread āśa-pāśa-grāmera loka dekhite āila of the surrounding villages the people to see came

89 The word spread through the land: “Gopāla has appeared!” And people from all the villages around came to see Him.

একেক দিন একেক গ্রামে লইল মাগিঞা । অন্নকূট করে সবে হরষিত হঞা ॥ ৯০ ॥

ekeka dina ekeka grāme laila māgiñā each day each village took asking anna-kūṭa kare sabe haraṣita hañā Annakūṭa hold all joyful becoming

90 Each village asked for a day of its own, and all of them joyfully held the Annakūṭa.

Purī Gosāñi’s evening meal —

পুরী গোসাঞি কৈল কিছু গব্য ভোজন ॥ ৯১ ॥

rātri-kāle ṭhākura karāiyā śayana
at night the Deity having made lie down
purī gosāñi kaila kichu gavya bhojana
Purī Gosāñi took a little milk food

91 At night, after putting the Deity to rest, Purī Gosāñi would take a little milk.

Anubhāṣya.
Gavya — milk.

The next morning too, the same service as the day before —

প্রাতঃকালে পুনঃ তৈছে করিল সেবন । অন্ন লঞা এক গ্রামের আইল লোকগণ ॥ ৯২ ॥

prātaḥ-kāle punaḥ taiche karila sevana
in the morning again likewise did service
anna lañā eka grāmera āila loka-gaṇa
food taking of one village came the people

92 In the morning the service went on again in the same way, and the people of another village came, bringing food.

অন্ন, ঘৃত, দধি, দুগ্ধ, — গ্রামে যত ছিল । গোপালের আগে লোক আনিঞা ধরিল ॥ ৯৩ ॥

anna, ghṛta, dadhi, dugdha, — grāme yata chila grain ghee yogurt milk in the village as much as there was gopālera āge loka āniñā dharila of Gopāla before the people bringing placed

93 The people brought all the grain, ghee, yogurt and milk there was in their village and set it before Gopāla.

পূর্ব্বদিন-প্রায় ব্রাহ্মণ করিল রন্ধন ।

likewise Annakūṭa Gopāla made eating

94 The brāhmaṇas cooked as on the day before, and Gopāla ate the Annakūṭa in the same way.

The natural love of the people of Vraja and Kṛṣṇa for each other —

ব্রজবাসী লোকের কৃষ্ণে সহজ-প্রীতি । গোপালের সহজ-প্রীতি ব্রজবাসী-প্রতি ॥ ৯৫ ॥

vraja-vāsī lokera kṛṣṇe sahaja-prīti of Vraja the people's for Kṛṣṇa natural love
gopālera sahaja-prīti vraja-vāsī-prati
Gopāla's natural love for the Vrajavāsīs

95 The people of Vraja have a natural love for Kṛṣṇa, and Gopāla has a natural love for the people of Vraja.

Everyone honours the mahā-prasāda —

মহাপ্রসাদ খাইল আসিয়া সব লোক । গোপাল দেখিয়া সবার খণ্ডে দুঃখ-শোক ॥ ৯৬ ॥

mahā-prasāda khāila āsiyā saba loka mahā-prasāda ate coming all the people
gopāla dekhiyā sabāra khaṇḍe duḥkha-śoka
Gopāla seeing of all are dispelled sorrow and grief

96 Everyone came and ate the mahā-prasāda, and seeing Gopāla, they were all freed from sorrow and grief.

A great festival every day —

Gopāla's appearance hearing various lands from nānā dravya lañā loka lāgila āsite various goods bringing people began to come

98 Hearing that Gopāla had appeared, people began to come from many lands, bringing all kinds of gifts.

The gifts of the wealthy men of Mathurā —

মথুরার লোক সব বড় বড় ধনী । ভক্তি করি' নানা দ্রব্য ভেট দেয় আনি' ॥ ৯৯ ॥

mathurāra loka saba baḍa baḍa dhanī of Mathurā the people all great great rich
bhakti kari' nānā dravya bheṭa deya āni' devotion with various goods as gifts give bringing

99 All the great and wealthy people of Mathurā brought gifts of every kind and offered them with devotion.

Gifts of every kind —

স্বর্ণ, রৌপ্য, বস্ত্র, গন্ধ, ভক্ষ্য-উপহার । অসংখ্য আইসে, নিত্য বাড়িল ভাণ্ডার ॥ ১০০ ॥

svarṇa, raupya, vastra, gandha, bhakṣya-upahāra
gold silver cloth fragrances gifts of food asaṅkhya āise, nitya bāḍila bhāṇḍāra
countless come daily grew the storehouse

100 Gold, silver, cloth, fragrances and gifts of food came in countless numbers, and the storehouse grew day by day.

The building of Gopāla's temple —

এক মহাধনী ক্ষত্রিয় করাইল মন্দির । কেহ পাক-ভাণ্ডার কৈল, কেহ ত' প্রাচীর ॥ ১০১ ॥

eka mahā-dhanī kṣatriya karāila mandira
one very wealthy kṣatriya had built a temple
keha pāka-bhāṇḍāra kaila, keha ta' prācīra someone kitchen and storehouse made someone indeed a wall

101 A very wealthy kṣatriya had a temple built; someone built the kitchen and storehouse, and someone else the surrounding wall.

Gopāla's many cows —

এক এক ব্রজবাসী এক এক গাভী দিল । দশসহস্র গাভী গোপালের হৈল ॥ ১০২ ॥

eka eka vraja-vāsī eka eka gābhī dila each Vrajavāsī one each cow gave daśa-sahasra gābhī gopālera haila ten thousand cows Gopāla's became 102 Every Vrajavāsī gave a cow, and Gopāla came to have ten thousand cows.

Purī shows mercy to two renounced brāhmaṇas and entrusts them with the service —

গৌড় হইতে আইলা দুই বৈরাগী ব্রাহ্মণ । পুরী-গোসাঞি রাখিল তারে করিয়া যতন ॥ ১০৩ ॥

gauḍa haite āilā dui vairāgī brāhmaṇa Gauḍa from came two renounced brāhmaṇas
purī-gosāñi rākhila tāre kariyā yatana
Purī Gosāñi kept them showing care

103 Two renounced brāhmaṇas came from Gauḍa, and Purī Gosāñi kept them with him, caring for them affectionately.

সেই দুই শিষ্য করি' সেবা সমর্পিল । রাজ-সেবা হয়, — পুরীর আনন্দ বাড়িল ॥ ১০৪ ॥

sei dui śiṣya kari' sevā samarpila those two disciples making service entrusted rāja-sevā haya, — purīra ānanda bāḍila
royal service takes place Purī's joy grew

104 He made those two his disciples and entrusted the service to them. The Deity was now served in royal style, and Purī's joy grew.

For two years Purī serves Gopāla —

এইমত বৎসর দুই করিল সেবন । একদিন পুরী-গোসাঞি দেখিল স্বপন ॥ ১০৫ ॥

ei-mata vatsara dui karila sevana
in this way years two did service
ekadina purī-gosāñi dekhila svapana
one day Purī Gosāñi saw a dream

105 In this way he served for two years. Then one day Purī Gosāñi had a dream.

In a dream Gopāla tells Purī that He desires sandalwood —

গোপাল কহে, পুরী আমার তাপ নাহি যায় । মলয়জ-চন্দন লেপ', তবে সে জুড়ায় ॥ ১০৬ ॥

gopāla kahe, purī āmāra tāpa nāhi yāya Gopāla says Purī My heat not goes away
malayaja-candana lepa', tabe se juḍāya
Malaya sandalwood smear then it will cool

106 Gopāla said, "Purī, My heat does not go away. Anoint Me with sandal paste from the Malaya hills, and then it will cool.

Anubhāṣya.

Malayaja — born in the land of Malaya, which is called “Candana-giri.” The land of Malaya, or Malabar, is the southern part of the mountain range called the “Western Ghats.” Some call the Nilgiris the Malaya Hills. The word malayaja also means sandalwood itself.

মলয়জ আন, যাঞা নীলাচল হৈতে । অন্যে হৈতে নহে, তুমি চলহ ত্বরিতে ॥ ১০৭ ॥

malayaja āna, yāñā nīlācala haite svapna dekhi’ purī-gosāñira haila premāveśa

the dream seeing Purī Gosāñi’s there was absorption in love
prabhu-ājñā pālibāre gelā pūrva-deśa
the Lord’s order to carry out he went to the eastern land

108 Seeing this dream, Purī Gosāñi was overwhelmed with love, and to carry out the Lord’s order he set out for the eastern land.

On the way to Purī, Purī Gosāñi comes to Gauḍa —

সেবায় নিযুক্ত লোক করিল স্থাপন । আজ্ঞা মাগি’ গৌড়-দেশে করিল গমন ॥ ১০৯ ॥

sevāya niyukta loka karila sthāpana in the service engaged people he did appointing ājñā māgi’ gauḍa-deśe karila gamana leave begging to the land of Gauḍa he made going

109 He appointed people to carry on the service and, begging leave of the Deity, set out for the land of Gauḍa.

Purī comes to Advaita's house in Śāntipura and initiates Advaita —

শান্তিপুর আইলা অদ্বৈতাচার্য্যের ঘরে ।
পুরীর প্রেম দেখি' আচার্য্য আনন্দ অন্তরে ॥ ১১০ ॥

śāntipura āilā advaitācāryera ghare
to Śāntipura he came Advaitācārya's to the house
purīra prema dekhi' ācārya ānanda antare Purī's love seeing the Ācārya bliss within 110 He came to Śāntipura, to the house of Advaitācārya. Seeing Purī's love, the Ācārya felt bliss within.

From Śāntipura Purī sets out on the road to Purī —

তাঁরি ঠাঞি মন্ত্র লৈল যত্ন করিয়া । চলিলা দক্ষিণে পুরী তাঁরে দীক্ষা দিঞা ॥ ১১১ ॥

tāṁri ṭhāñi mantra laila yatna kariyā from him indeed the mantra he took care taking calilā dakṣiṇe purī tāṁre dīkṣā diñā went on southward Purī to him initiation having given

111 The Ācārya eagerly received the mantra from him, and Purī, having initiated Him, went on to the south.

Anubhāṣya.
Advaita Prabhu received the mantra of initiation from Śrī Mādhavendra Purī, the king of ascetics (yatirāja) and guru of the Mādhva-sampradāya. And Śrī Mahāprabhu, in keeping with Śrī Mādhavendra Purī's intention, taught: "Whether one is a vipra, a sannyāsī or a śūdra — whoever knows the truth of Kṛṣṇa is a guru."[17]

According to the Pañcarātra, no one but a householder brāhmaṇa has the right to give initiation (dīkṣā). For one who receives dīkṣā attains the brāhmaṇa status of initiation (daikṣa brāhmaṇa status), and a non-brāhmaṇa has no power to pass brāhmaṇa status on to another. Brāhmaṇa status is therefore, as a matter of course, a necessary quality of the one who gives initiation and is inseparable from the position of a Vaiṣṇava ācārya. A householder living in varṇāśrama can gather the various articles of worship (upacāras) with honest money he has earned himself and worship Bhagavān with mantras. A disciple engaged in worldly affairs learns from such an experienced householder guru that the sole aim of varṇāśrama is the service of Bhagavān, and he asks for initiation into the mantra so that he himself may be freed from the desires of household life. That is why the guru must be a genuine Vaiṣṇava householder. A sannyāsī guru who devotes himself to Deity worship (arcana) meets with many difficulties.

When one accepts a guru who leads to the highest goal (pāramārthika-guru), the general rule may seem almost disregarded, but in reality it is not disregarded. Brāhmaṇa status by birth (śaukra-vipratva) or śūdra status by birth (śaukra-śūdratva) is not at all the brāhmaṇa qualification meant where a guru is concerned; what is meant is sāvitrya and daikṣya brāhmaṇa status. Śrī Mahāprabhu saw the weakness of the hearts of the jīvas and of society. He knew that common people's notion of caste rests entirely on birth from seed, and therefore He spoke as He did in the verse kibā vipra. He only explained the purport of the scriptures, for there is no doubt that one who knows the truth of Kṛṣṇa is a sāvitrya or daikṣya brāhmaṇa. "Because it gives divine knowledge and destroys sin, the teachers who know the truth call it dīkṣā." "Householder guru" does not mean gṛhavratas, slaves of the senses; nor does "Vaiṣṇava sannyāsī" mean a person proud of his place in varṇāśrama.

In Remuṇā Purī has darśana of Gopīnātha, dances and sings —

রেমুণাতে কৈল গোপীনাথ দরশন । তাঁর রূপ দেখিঞা হৈল বিহ্বল-মন ॥ ১১২ ॥

remuṇāte kaila gopīnātha daraśana
in Remuṇā he had of Gopīnātha darśana
tāṁra rūpa dekhiñā haila vihvala-mana
His form seeing became overwhelmed at heart

112 In Remuṇā he had darśana of Gopīnātha, and the sight of His beauty overwhelmed his heart.

The joy of hearing how excellently the bhoga is offered —

নৃত্যগীত করি' জগমোহনে বসিলা । ক্যা ক্যা ভোগ লাগে — ব্রাহ্মণে পুছিলা ॥ ১১৩ ॥

nṛtya-gīta kari' jaga-mohane vasilā dancing and singing having done in the jagamohana he sat
kyā kyā bhoga lāge — brāhmaṇe puchilā what what offerings are made of the brāhmaṇa he asked

113 After dancing and singing he sat down in the jagamohana and asked the brāhmaṇa, "What offerings are made to the Deity?"

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Jagamohana is the name of the hall in front of the temple from which one has darśana of Bhagavān. Kyā kyā — in another reading, kāhā kāhā. The sense is keyā keyā ("what, what") — what bhoga is offered.

সেবার সৌষ্ঠব দেখি' আনন্দিত মনে । উত্তম ভোগ লাগে, — ইহা কৈল অনুমানে ॥ ১১৪ ॥ sevāra sauṣṭhava dekhi' ānandita mane

of the service the excellence seeing joyful at heart
uttama bhoga lāge, — ihā kaila anumāne excellent offerings are made this he made by inference

114 Seeing the excellence of the service, he was joyful at heart and concluded that the finest offerings must be made here.

Wishing to offer such bhoga to Gopāla, Purī questions the priest —

যেমন ইহা ভোগ লাগে, সকল শুনিব । তেমন অনুমানে ভোগ গোপালকে লাগাইব ॥ ১১৫ ॥

yemana ihā bhoga lāge, sakala śuniba
as here offerings are made all I shall hear temana anumāne bhoga gopālake lāgāiba
likewise on that model offerings to Gopāla I shall offer

115 “I shall learn all that is offered here, and then I can offer the like to Gopāla.”

The priest tells of the glory of Gopīnātha’s kṣīra-bhoga and praises it —

এই লাগি’ পুছিলেন ব্রাহ্মণের স্থানে । ব্রাহ্মণ কহিল সব ভোগ-বিবরণে ॥ ১১৬ ॥

ei lāgi’ puchilena brāhmaṇera sthāne
for this he asked of the brāhmaṇa in the presence brāhmaṇa kahila saba bhoga-vivaraṇe
the brāhmaṇa told all of the offerings in description

116 For this reason he questioned the brāhmaṇa, and the brāhmaṇa described all the offerings in detail.

সন্ধ্যায় ভোগ লাগে ক্ষীর — ‘অমৃতকেলি’-নাম । দ্বাদশ মৃৎপাত্রে ভরি’ অমৃত-সমান ॥ ১১৭ ॥

sandhyāya bhoga lāge kṣīra — ‘amṛta-keli’-nāma
in the evening as an offering is offered sweet rice “Amṛta-keli” by name dvādaśa mṛt-pātre bhari’ amṛta-samāna
twelve in earthen pots filling equal to nectar

117 “In the evening sweet rice called ‘Amṛta-keli’ is offered. It fills twelve earthen pots and is just like nectar.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Kṣīra — paramānna.

‘গোপীনাথের ক্ষীর’ বলি’ প্রসিদ্ধ নাম যার ।

in the world such an offering anywhere there is not other

118 It is famous as ‘Gopīnātha’s kṣīra’, and nowhere else in the world is there such an offering.”

Purī’s desire to please Kṛṣṇa —

হেনকালে সেই ভোগ ঠাকুরে লাগিল । শুনি’ পুরী-গোসাঞি কিছু মনে বিচারিল ॥ ১১৯ ॥

hena-kāle sei bhoga ṭhākure lāgila
at that time that offering to the Deity was offered śuni’ purī-gosāñi kichu mane vicārila hearing Purī Gosāñi something in his mind considered

119 Just then that very offering was set before the Deity. Hearing of it, Purī Gosāñi thought to himself:

The desire to offer Gopāla bhoga like Gopīnātha’s kṣīra-bhoga —

অযাচিত ক্ষীর-প্রসাদ অল্প যদি পাই । স্বাদ জানি’ তৈছে ক্ষীর গোপালে লাগাই ॥ ১২০ ॥

ayācita kṣīra-prasāda alpa yadi pāi unasked sweet-rice prasāda a little if I get svāda jāni’ taiche kṣīra gopāle lāgāi
the taste knowing likewise sweet rice to Gopāla I could offer

120 “If, without my asking, I could get a little of this sweet-rice prasāda, I would know its taste and could offer the same to Gopāla.”

Anubhāṣya.
Ayācita — without asking.

Deeming this desire an urge of the tongue, Purī feels ashamed —

এই ইচ্ছায় লজ্জা পাঞা বিষ্ণুস্মরণ কৈল । হেনকালে ভোগ সরি’ আরতি বাজিল ॥ ১২১ ॥

ei icchāya lajjā pāñā viṣṇu-smaraṇa kaila
at this desire shame feeling remembrance of Viṣṇu he made hena-kāle bhoga sari' ārati bājila
at that time the offering being over the ārati sounded

121 Ashamed of this desire, he remembered Viṣṇu. Meanwhile the offering came to an end, and the music of the ārati began.

Anubhāṣya.
Sari — when [the offering] was completed.

Having seen Gopīnātha's bhoga and ārati, Purī leaves —

আরতি দেখিয়া পুরী কৈল নমস্কার । বাহির হৈলা, কারে কিছু না কহিল আর ॥ ১২২ ॥

ārati dekhiyā purī kaila namaskāra
the ārati seeing Purī made obeisance
bāhira hailā, kāre kichu nā kahila āra went out to anyone anything not said more

122 Purī watched the ārati, offered his obeisance and went out, without saying anything more to anyone.

Purī's conduct —

অযাচিত-বৃত্তি-পুরী — বিরক্ত, উদাস । অযাচিত পাইলে খা'ন, নহে উপবাস ॥ ১২৩ ॥

ayācita-vṛtti-purī — virakta, udāsa living on what comes unasked Purī detached indifferent ayācita pāile khā'na, nahe upavāsa
unasked if he gets he eats otherwise fasting

123 Purī lived on whatever came unasked. Detached and indifferent to the world, he ate if food came of itself, and otherwise he fasted.

Anubhāṣya.

The natural (sahaja) state of a paramahaṁsa in Śrī Mādhavendra Purī Prabhu: he delighted in the name of Kṛṣṇa and was indifferent (udāsa), that is, detached (udāsīna), towards matter.

প্রেমামৃতে তৃপ্তি, নাহি ক্ষুধা-তৃষ্ণা বাধে ।

premāmṛte tṛpti, nāhi kṣudhā-tṛṣṇā bādhe
in the nectar of love satisfaction not hunger and thirst trouble kṣīra-icchā haila, tāhe māne aparādhe
the desire for sweet rice arose that he considers an offence

124 He was satisfied by the nectar of love, and hunger and thirst did not trouble him. He counted it an offence that a desire for sweet rice had arisen in him.

Anubhāṣya.
Nāhi kṣudhā-tṛṣṇā bādhe ("hunger and thirst did not trouble him") — he was beyond hunger and thirst, having conquered the six qualities (ṣaḍ-guṇa).

Solitary kīrtana in seclusion —

গ্রামের শূন্যহট্টে বসি' করেন কীর্ত্তন । এথা পূজারী করাইল ঠাকুরের শয়ন ॥ ১২৫ ॥

here the pūjārī arranged the Deity's lying down

125 He sat in the deserted marketplace of the village and sang kīrtana. Meanwhile the pūjārī laid the Deity to rest.[6]

In a dream Gopīnātha orders the priest to give Purī the stolen kṣīra —

নিজ কৃত্য করি' পূজারী করিল শয়ন । স্বপ্নকালে ঠাকুর আসি' বলিলা বচন ॥ ১২৬ ॥

nija kṛtya kari' pūjārī karila śayana
his own duties having done the pūjārī did lying down svapna-kāle ṭhākura āsi' balilā vacana
in a dream the Deity coming spoke words

126 When he had finished his own duties, the pūjārī lay down to sleep, and in a dream the Deity came and spoke to him:

উঠহ, পূজারী, কর দ্বার বিমোচন । ক্ষীর এক রাখিয়াছি সন্ন্যাসি-কারণ ॥ ১২৭ ॥

uṭhaha, pūjārī, kara dvāra vimocana get up pūjārī do of the door opening

127 "Get up, pūjārī, and open the door! I have kept back one pot of sweet rice for a sannyāsī.

Anubhāṣya.
Kāraṇa — for the sake of.

ধড়ার অঞ্চলে ঢাকা ক্ষীর এক হয় । তোমরা না জানিলা তাহা আমার মায়ায় ॥ ১২৮ ॥

dhaḍāra añcale ḍhākā kṣīra eka haya

tomarā nā jānilā tāhā āmāra māyāya
you not knew of it by My māyā

128 One pot of sweet rice is there, covered by the edge of My cloth; by My own māyā none of you noticed it.

Anubhāṣya.
Dhaḍā — cloth. Eka — one full pot.

to him indeed this sweet rice quickly give taking 129 A sannyāsī named Mādhava Purī is sitting in the marketplace. Take this sweet rice to him at once."

The priest wakes up and finds the kṣīra stolen by Gopīnātha —

স্বপ্ন দেখি' পূজারী উঠি' করিলা বিচার ।
স্নান করি' কপাট খুলি' মুক্ত কৈল দ্বার ॥ ১৩০ ॥

131 Beneath the edge of the Deity's cloth he found the sweet rice. He cleansed the spot, took the pot and came out.

Kṣīra in hand, the priest searches for Mādhavendra —

দ্বার দিয়া গ্রামে গেলা সেই ক্ষীর লঞা । হাটে-হাটে বুলে মাধব পুরীকে চাহিঞা ॥ ১৩২ ॥

from market to market he wanders Mādhava Purī seeking 132 Closing the door, he went into the village with the sweet rice and wandered from market to market, looking for Mādhava Purī.

Anubhāṣya.
Bule — wanders about, goes around.

ক্ষীর লহ এই, যার নাম 'মাধবপুরী' ।

tomā lāgi' gopīnātha kṣīra kaila curi
for you Gopīnātha the sweet rice did theft

133 "Let whoever is named Mādhava Purī come and take this sweet rice! Gopīnātha has stolen it for you.

ক্ষীর লঞা সুখে তুমি করহ ভক্ষণে । তোমা-সম-ভাগ্যবান্ নাহি ত্রিভুবনে ॥ ১৩৪ ॥

kṣīra lañā sukhe tumi karaha bhakṣaṇe
the sweet rice taking happily you do eating tomā-sama-bhāgyavān nāhi tribhuvane
equal to you fortunate there is not in the three worlds

134 Take it and eat it happily. In the three worlds there is no one as fortunate as you!"

Purī makes himself known, and the priest bows to him with reverence —

এত শুনি' পুরী-গোসাঞি পরিচয় দিল । ক্ষীর দিয়া পূজারী তাঁরে দণ্ডবৎ হৈল ॥ ১৩৫ ॥

eta śuni' purī-gosāñi paricaya dila this hearing Purī Gosāñi his identity gave kṣīra diyā pūjārī tāṁre daṇḍavat haila
the sweet rice giving the pūjārī to him prostrate became 135 Hearing this, Purī Gosāñi made himself known. The pūjārī gave him the sweet rice and fell flat before him like a rod.

Anubhāṣya.
Daṇḍavat — fallen flat like a rod.

Hearing from the priest of Gopīnātha's theft, Purī is filled with love —

ক্ষীরের বৃত্তান্ত তাঁরে কহিল পূজারী । শুনি' প্রেমাবিষ্ট হৈলা শ্রীমাধবপুরী ॥ ১৩৬ ॥

kṣīrera vṛttānta tāṁre kahila pūjārī
of the sweet rice the story to him told the pūjārī
śuni' premāviṣṭa hailā śrī-mādhava-purī hearing absorbed in love became Śrī Mādhava Purī

136 The pūjārī told him the story of the sweet rice, and as he listened, Śrī Mādhava Purī was overcome with love.

The priest understands that Purī is a devotee who has conquered Kṛṣṇa —

প্রেম দেখি' সেবক কহে হইয়া বিস্মিত । কৃষ্ণ যে ইঁহার বশ, — হয় যথোচিত ॥ ১৩৭ ॥

prema dekhi' sevaka kahe haiyā vismita
the love seeing the servant says becoming astonished kṛṣṇa ye iṁhāra vaśa, — haya yathocita
Kṛṣṇa that his under the sway it is fitting

137 Seeing his love, the servant said in amazement, “No wonder Kṛṣṇa is under his sway!”

Anubhāṣya.
Yathocita — fitting, worthy.

Purī honours the kṣīra-prasāda not to gratify his own senses —

এত বলি’ নমস্করি’ করিলা গমন । আবেশে করিলা পুরী সে ক্ষীর ভক্ষণ ॥ ১৩৮ ॥

eta bali’ namaskari’ karilā gamana
thus saying bowing he went away
āveśe karilā purī se kṣīra bhakṣaṇa
in ecstasy did Purī that sweet rice eating

138 With these words he bowed and went away, and Purī ate the sweet rice in ecstasy.

পাত্র প্রক্ষালন করি’ খণ্ড খণ্ড কৈল । বহির্ব্বাসে বান্ধি’ সেই ঠিকারি রাখিল ॥ ১৩৯ ॥

pātra prakṣālana kari’ khaṇḍa khaṇḍa kaila
the pot washing having done pieces pieces he made bahir-vāse bāndhi’ sei ṭhikāri rākhila in his outer cloth tying those shards he kept

139 He washed the pot, broke it into pieces and kept the shards tied in his outer cloth.

Anubhāṣya.
Ṭhikāri — potsherds, fragments.

প্রতিদিন একখানি করেন ভক্ষণ । খাইলে প্রেমাবেশ হয়, — অদ্ভুত-কথন ॥ ১৪০ ॥

prati-dina eka-khāni karena bhakṣaṇa
every day one piece he does eating khāile premāveśa haya, — adbhuta-kathana
on eating absorption in love arises a wonderful tale

140 Every day he ate one piece, and each time he ate it he was overwhelmed with love — a wonderful tale!

Purī fears fame —

‘ঠাকুর আমাকে ক্ষীর দিল’ — লোক সব শুনি’ ।
দিনে লোক ভিড় হবে মোর প্রতিষ্ঠা জানি ॥ ১৪১ ॥

‘ṭhākura āmāke kṣīra dila’ — loka saba śuni’
“the Deity to me sweet rice gave” the people all hearing
dine loka bhiḍa habe mora pratiṣṭhā jāni
by day of people a crowd there will be my fame knowing

141 “When people hear that the Deity gave me sweet rice,” he thought, “my name will spread, and by day crowds will gather.”

Purī sets out for Purī-dhāma —

সেই ভয়ে রাত্রি-শেষে চলিলা শ্রীপুরী । সেইখানে গোপীনাথে দণ্ডবৎ করি’ ॥ ১৪২ ॥

sei bhaye rātri-śeṣe calilā śrī-purī of that in fear at the end of the night set out Śrī Purī sei-khāne gopīnāthe daṇḍavat kari’
in that very place to Gopīnātha obeisance making

142 Fearing this, Śrī Purī bowed down to Gopīnātha right there and set out at the end of the night.

Purī’s love on seeing Jagannātha in Purī-dhāma —

চলি’ চলি’ আইলা পুরী শ্রীনীলাচল । জগন্নাথ দেখি’ হৈলা প্রেমেতে বিহ্বল ॥ ১৪৩ ॥

cali' cali' āilā purī śrī-nīlācala going going came Purī to Śrī Nīlācala
jagannātha dekhi' hailā premete vihvala
Jagannātha seeing became with love overwhelmed

143 Walking on and on, Purī came to Śrī Nīlācala, and when he saw Jagannātha he was overwhelmed with love.

প্রেমাবেশে উঠে, পড়ে, হাসে, নাচে, গায়। জগন্নাথ-দরশনে মহাসুখ পায় ॥ ১৪৪ ॥

premāveśe uṭhe, paḍe, hāse, nāce, gāya
in the ecstasy of love he rises falls laughs dances sings jagannātha-daraśane mahā-sukha pāya
in the sight of Jagannātha great joy he finds

144 In the ecstasy of love he would rise and fall, laugh, dance and sing. The sight of Jagannātha filled him with great joy.

News of Purī's arrival spreads everywhere —

'মাধবপুরী শ্রীপাদ আইল', — লোকে হৈল খ্যাতি। সব লোক আসি' তাঁরে করে বহু ভক্তি ॥ ১৪৫ ॥

'mādhava-purī śrīpāda āila', — loke haila khyāti
"Mādhava Purī Śrīpāda has come" among the people there was report
saba loka āsi' tāṁre kare bahu bhakti
all the people coming to him show much devotion

145 The news spread among the people: "Mādhava Purī Śrīpāda has come!" Everyone came and showed him great devotion.

Though Purī did not want fame, fame came to him —

প্রতিষ্ঠার স্বভাব এই জগতে বিদিত। যে না বাঞ্ছে, তার হয় বিধাতা-নির্ম্মিত ॥ ১৪৬ ॥

pratiṣṭhāra svabhāva ei jagate vidita of fame the nature this in the world known ye nā vāñche, tāra haya vidhātā-nirmita who not desires to him it comes by Providence ordained

146 This is the nature of fame, as all the world knows: Providence brings it to the one who does not desire it.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
The fame created by the Creator (vidhātā) comes precisely to one who does good without desiring fame. But one who does good deeds in the hope of fame does not attain fame — this is the secret of fame.

প্রতিষ্ঠার ভয়ে পুরী রহে পলাঞা ।
কৃষ্ণ-প্রেমে প্রতিষ্ঠা চলে সঙ্গে গড়াঞা ॥ ১৪৭ ॥

pratiṣṭhāra bhaye purī rahe palāñā of fame in fear Purī keeps fleeing kṛṣṇa-preme pratiṣṭhā cale saṅge gaḍāñā
with love for Kṛṣṇa fame goes along rolling

147 For fear of fame Purī kept running away, yet together with his love for Kṛṣṇa, fame came rolling after him.

Anubhāṣya.
Many conditioned souls are envious (matsara) by nature. Against anyone who gains a good name, the envious are by nature inclined to act. Therefore one who craves fame (pratiṣṭhā) usually meets with ill will from spiteful people instead of fame. But those who out of humility do not desire fame are encouraged by the society of the envious, who think them quite incapable and wretched (dīna) and pity them — and so bring them fame. Vaiṣṇavas in the material world do not beg for such fame. So as not to gain worldly fame, Śrī Mādhavendra, the king of Vaiṣṇavas, tried to hide from people's eyes the incident that showed how dear he was to Bhagavān. But seeing his other displays of love for Kṛṣṇa, all the people of the world say that it is a sign of Śrī Bhagavān's eagerness and care for His own devotee (tadīya-bhakta). In truth the highest fame rightly belongs to Śrī Purīpāda. But some imitate him: they hide behind the walls of his mood, put on a false humility, and pretend that they have nothing to do with fame. It is impossible for them to become established in the humility that befits a Vaiṣṇava.

Though unwilling to stay where he is honoured, Purī remains for the sake of the Lord's service —

যদ্যপি উদ্বেগ হইল পলাইতে মন । ঠাকুরের চন্দন-সাধন হইল বন্ধন ॥ ১৪৮ ॥

yadyapi udvega haila palāite mana although uneasiness arose to flee the mind ṭhākurera candana-sādhana haila bandhana
the Deity's sandalwood procuring became a bond

148 Though he grew uneasy and wished to flee, the task of procuring sandalwood for the Deity held him bound.

Anubhāṣya.
Śrī Mādhavendra Purī, wishing to escape the grip of fame, began to look for a way to flee from Purī. Yet the service of Gopāla — gathering sandalwood — became the cause of his bondage and kept him in Nīlācala, beset with fame.

Purī tells the servants of Jagannātha what Gopāla desires —

জগন্নাথের সেবক যত, যতেক মহান্ত । সবাকে কহিল সব গোপাল বৃত্তান্ত ॥ ১৪৯ ॥

jagannāthera sevaka yata, yateka mahānta Jagannātha's servants as many as all the great souls sabāke kahila saba gopāla vṛttānta to all he told the whole of Gopāla story

149 To all the servants of Jagannātha and all the great devotees he told the whole story of Gopāla.

The devotees make every effort to gather sandalwood —

গোপাল চন্দন মাগে, — শুনি' ভক্তগণ । আনন্দে চন্দন লাগি' করিল যতন ॥ ১৫০ ॥

gopāla candana māge, — śuni' bhakta-gaṇa Gopāla sandalwood asks for hearing the devotees
ānande candana lāgi' karila yatana joyfully sandalwood for made effort

150 When the devotees heard that Gopāla was asking for sandalwood, they joyfully set about obtaining it.

রাজপাত্র-সনে যার যার পরিচয় । তারে মাগি কর্পূর-চন্দন করিলা সঞ্চয় ॥ ১৫১ ॥

rāja-pātra-sane yāra yāra paricaya with the king's officers whose whose acquaintance tāre māgi karpūra-candana karilā sañcaya
from them begging camphor and sandalwood made collection

151 Those who knew the king's officers begged from them, and so the camphor and sandalwood were gathered.

Purī is sent off with the sandalwood and helpers —

এক বিপ্র, এক সেবক, চন্দন বহিতে । পুরী-গোসাঞির সঙ্গে দিল সম্বল-সহিতে ॥ ১৫২ ॥

eka vipra, eka sevaka, candana vahite one brāhmaṇa one servant the sandalwood to carry purī-gosāñira saṅge dila sambala-sahite of Purī Gosāñi in the company they gave provisions together with 152 To carry the sandalwood they sent a brāhmaṇa and a servant with Purī Gosāñi, and gave money for the journey as well.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

Karpūra — śrī-karpūra, with which ārātrika is performed for Śrī Jagannāthadeva. The servants of Jagannātha obtained this śrī-karpūra and malayaja sandalwood from the king's officers. They sent one brāhmaṇa and one servant with Purī Gosāñi, and gave them money for the journey.

Anubhāṣya.
Sambala — money for the journey.

He is given a pass so that he can travel without hindrance —

ঘাটী-দানী ছাড়াইতে রাজপাত্র-দ্বারে । রাজলেখা করি' দিল পুরী-গোসাঞির করে ॥ ১৫৩ ॥

ghāṭī-dānī chāḍāite rāja-pātra-dvāre from the toll-collectors at the posts and the ferrymen to free (him) of the king's officers through rāja-lekhā kari' dila purī-gosāñira kare
a royal letter making they gave of Purī Gosāñi into the hand

153 So that the toll-collectors and the ferrymen would let him pass, they had the king's officers write a royal letter and placed it in Purī Gosāñi's hand.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
Ghāṭī — the ghāṭoyāls, who collect the road tolls. Dānī — those who take the fare for crossing a river. So that all of these would let him pass — that is, so that Purī Gosāñi could go on without paying them — a royal letter (rāja-lekhā), that is, a paravānā, was placed in his hand through the king's officer.

Purī arrives in Remuṇā, has darśana of Gopīnātha, dances and sings —

চলিল মাধবপুরী চন্দন লঞা । কতদিনে রেমুণাতে উত্তরিল গিয়া ॥ ১৫৪ ॥

calila mādhava-purī candana lañā set out Mādhava Purī the sandalwood taking kata-dine remuṇāte uttarila giyā
in some days at Remuṇā arrived going

154 Mādhava Purī set out with the sandalwood, and after some days he reached Remuṇā.

গোপীনাথ-চরণে কৈল বহু নমস্কার । প্রেমাবেশে নৃত্য-গীত করিলা অপার ॥ ১৫৫ ॥

gopīnātha-caraṇe kaila bahu namaskāra
at Gopīnātha's feet he made many obeisances premāveśe nṛtya-gīta karilā apāra
in the ecstasy of love dancing and singing he did boundless

155 At the feet of Gopīnātha he bowed down again and again, and in the ecstasy of love he danced and sang without end.

পুরী দেখি' সেবক সব সম্মান করিল । ক্ষীরপ্রসাদ দিয়া তাঁরে ভিক্ষা করাইল ॥ ১৫৬ ॥

purī dekhi' sevaka saba sammāna karila Purī seeing the servants all honour showed kṣīra-prasāda diyā tāṁre bhikṣā karāila sweet-rice prasāda giving him a meal they made (him) take 156 Seeing Purī, all the servants received him with honour and fed him with sweet-rice prasāda.

In a dream Gopāla tells Purī to smear the body of Gopīnātha with sandalwood

সেই রাত্রে দেবালয়ে করিল শয়ন । শেষরাত্রি হৈলে পুরী দেখিল স্বপন ॥ ১৫৭ ॥

sei rātre devālaye karila śayana
that night in the temple he did lying down śeṣa-rātri haile purī dekhila svapana
the end of the night when it came Purī saw a dream

157 That night he slept in the temple, and towards the end of the night Purī had a dream.

গোপাল আসিয়া কহে, — শুনহ, মাধব । কর্পূর-চন্দন আমি পাইলাম সব ॥ ১৫৮ ॥

gopāla āsiyā kahe, — śunaha, mādhava Gopāla coming says listen Mādhava karpūra-candana āmi pāilāma saba camphor and sandalwood I have received all

158 Gopāla came and said, "Listen, Mādhava: I have received all the camphor and sandalwood.[7]

কর্পূর সহিত ঘষি, এসব চন্দন । গোপীনাথের অঙ্গে সব করহ লেপন ॥ ১৫৯ ॥

karpūra sahita ghaṣi, esaba candana camphor together with grinding all this sandalwood gopīnāthera aṅge saba karaha lepana
on Gopīnātha's body all do smearing

159 Grind all this sandalwood together with the camphor and smear it on the body of Gopīnātha.

গোপীনাথ আমার সে একই অঙ্গ হয় । ইঁহাকে চন্দন দিলে, আমার তাপ-ক্ষয় ॥ ১৬০ ॥

gopīnātha āmāra se eka-i aṅga haya Gopīnātha and My indeed one and the same body is iṁhāke candana dile, āmāra tāpa-kṣaya
to Him sandalwood if given My heat will abate

160 Gopīnātha's body and Mine are one and the same. If you give Him sandalwood, My heat will abate.

Anubhāṣya.

Gopāla did not wear the sandalwood Himself but had Gopīnātha wear it. The meaning is this. Gopāla's land, Vṛndāvana, lies many yojanas from Remuṇā; moreover, to get there one has to cross regions ruled by mlecchas of another faith, and that means many obstacles. Gopāla, who loves His devotees and is controlled by their love, knew that Purī Gosvāmī, the dearest and best of devotees, would suffer. Therefore He told him to smear the sandalwood on the body of Śrī Gopīnātha, the Deity nondifferent from Himself, and so crowned the devotee's labour with success and lightened it. See verses 176–177 below.

দ্বিধা না ভাবিহ, না করিহ কিছু মনে । বিশ্বাস করি' চন্দন দেহ আমার বচনে ॥ ১৬১ ॥

dvidhā nā bhāviha, nā kariha kichu mane doubt not entertain not hold anything in your mind viśvāsa kari' candana deha āmāra vacane faith having the sandalwood give at My word

161 Do not hesitate or harbour any doubt. Trust My word and give Him the sandalwood."

Purī tells the servants Gopāla's command —

এত বলি' গোপাল গেল, গোসাঞি জাগিলা । গোপীনাথের সেবকগণে ডাকিয়া আনিলা ॥ ১৬২ ॥

eta bali' gopāla gela, gosāñi jāgilā
thus saying Gopāla went Gosāñi awoke gopīnāthera sevaka-gaṇe ḍākiyā ānilā Gopīnātha's servants calling he brought 162 With these words Gopāla went away, and Gosāñi awoke. He called the servants of Gopīnātha together and told them:

প্রভুর আজ্ঞা হৈল, — এই কর্পূর-চন্দন । গোপীনাথের অঙ্গে নিত্য করহ লেপন ॥ ১৬৩ ॥

prabhura ājñā haila, — ei karpūra-candana
the Lord's order has come this camphor and sandalwood gopīnāthera aṅge nitya karaha lepana
on Gopīnātha's body daily do smearing

163 "The Lord has given His order: smear this camphor and sandalwood on Gopīnātha's body every day.

ইঁহাকে চন্দন দিলে, গোপাল হইবে শীতল । স্বতন্ত্র ঈশ্বর, — তাঁর আজ্ঞা সে প্রবল ॥ ১৬৪ ॥

iṁhāke candana dile, gopāla haibe śītala to Him sandalwood if given Gopāla will become cool
svatantra īśvara, — tāṁra ājñā se prabala independent the Lord His order indeed is mighty

164 If you give Him sandalwood, Gopāla will be cooled. The Lord is independent, and His order must prevail."

Anubhāṣya.
Svatantra — acting by His own will.

গ্রীষ্মকালে গোপীনাথ পরিবে চন্দন ।
শুনি' আনন্দিত হৈল সেবকের মন ॥ ১৬৫ ॥

grīṣmakāle gopīnātha paribe candana
in the hot season Gopīnātha will wear sandalwood śuni' ānandita haila sevakera mana hearing delighted became of the servants the hearts

165 Hearing that Gopīnātha would wear sandalwood throughout the hot season, the servants were delighted at heart.

Purī engages his two companions in grinding sandalwood —

পুরী কহে, — এই দুই ঘষিবে চন্দন । আর জনা-দুই দেহ, দিব যে বেতন ॥ ১৬৬ ॥

purī kahe, — ei dui ghaṣibe candana Purī says these two will grind the sandalwood
āra janā-dui deha, diba ye vetana more two persons give I shall give the wages

166 Purī said, “These two will grind the sandalwood. Give two more men as well, and I shall pay their wages.”

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
These two — those who had come with Purī.

At Purī’s word the servants joyfully smear [Gopīnātha] with sandalwood —

এইমত চন্দন দেয় প্রত্যহ ঘষিয়া । পরায় সেবক সব আনন্দ করিয়া ॥ ১৬৭ ॥

ei mata candana deya pratyaha ghaṣiyā
in this way sandalwood they give daily grinding parāya sevaka saba ānanda kariyā
they put on the servants all joy feeling

167 In this way the sandalwood was ground and offered every day, and all the servants joyfully smeared it on the Deity.

All summer, until the sandalwood was used up, Purī stays in Remuṇā —

প্রত্যহ চন্দন পরায়, যাবৎ হৈল অন্ত । তথায় রহিল পুরী তাবৎ পর্য্যন্ত ॥ ১৬৮ ॥

pratyaha candana parāya, yāvat haila anta
daily sandalwood they put on until came the end tathāya rahila purī tāvat paryanta there stayed Purī that long until 168 Every day the Deity wore sandalwood until it was all used up, and all that time Purī stayed there.

When summer is over, Purī spends cāturmāsya in Nīlācala —

গ্রীষ্মকাল অন্তে পুনঃ নীলাচলে গেলা । নীলাচলে চাতুর্ম্মাস্য আনন্দে রহিলা ॥ ১৬৯ ॥

grīṣma-kāla ante punaḥ nīlācale gelā of the hot season at the end again to Nīlācala he went nīlācale cāturmāsya ānande rahilā
in Nīlācala the Cāturmāsya in joy he stayed

169 At the end of the hot season he went back to Nīlācala and joyfully spent the Cāturmāsya there.

Anubhāṣya.

Cāturmāsya — the four lunar months from the Śayana Ekādaśī of the bright fortnight of Āṣāḍha to the Utthāna Ekādaśī of the bright fortnight of Kārttika; or the four lunar months from the full moon of Āṣāḍha to the full moon of Kārttika; or the four solar months from Śrāvaṇa to Kārttika. This time of cāturmāsya is the rainy season. The vow that lasts these four months is to be kept by all four āśramas; its aim is to give up all enjoyment. In Śrāvaṇa one gives up greens (śāka), in Bhādra yogurt, in Āśvina milk, and in Kārttika āmiṣa (foods forbidden in that month). The essence of the teaching of this cāturmāsya is giving up everything fit for material enjoyment.

Anubhāṣya.

All this effort is for Kṛṣṇa's pleasure; it is not an attempt to enjoy material objects.

The Lord rejoices in telling of Purī's life —

শ্রীমুখে মাধবপুরীর অমৃত-চরিত । ভক্তগণে শুনাঞা প্রভু করে আস্বাদিত ॥ ১৭০ ॥

to the devotees telling the Lord relishes

170 With His own holy lips the Lord told the devotees the nectarean story of Mādhava Purī, and relished it Himself.[8]

The Lord tells Nitāi of the greatness of Purī's love —

প্রভু কহে, — নিত্যানন্দ, করহ বিচার । পুরী-সম ভাগ্যবান্ জগতে নাহি আর ॥ ১৭১ ॥

prabhu kahe, — nityānanda, karaha vicāra
the Lord says Nityānanda do consider purī-sama bhāgyavān jagate nāhi āra to Purī equal fortunate in the world there is not another

171 The Lord said, "Consider, Nityānanda: there is no one in the world as fortunate as Purī.

172 On the pretext of bringing him milk, Kṛṣṇa showed Himself to him, and three times He came to him in dreams to give him His orders.

174 For his sake Gopīnātha stole sweet rice, and so He came to be called Kṣīra-corā, "the thief of sweet rice".

175 When camphor and sandalwood were put on His body, Purī Gosāñi's love overflowed with joy.

Why Gopīnātha, and not Gopāla, wore the sandalwood —

176 To bring camphor and sandalwood through the land of the mlecchas would be full of trouble, and Gopāla knew that Purī would suffer.

candana pari' bhakta-śrama karila saphala
sandalwood wearing the devotee's labour made fruitful

177 The Lord is supremely merciful and loving to His devotees: by wearing the sandalwood, He made His devotee's labour bear fruit.

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.

In the land of the mlecchas. A large part of the Medinīpura district belonged to the kingdom of the kings of Utkala: that was the land of a Hindu king. Beyond it almost the whole country was under a mleccha king. Here and there the mleccha king's agents would seize good things from travellers if they carried any. In Gauḍa such camphor and sandalwood are rare. Fearing such trouble, Purī Gosāñi would have found the journey all the way to Vṛndāvana very hard, and to spare him that hardship [Gopāla] told him to offer the sandalwood to Śrī Gopīnātha in Remuṇā.

Purī's love and the greatness of his life —

of Purī of love the utmost limit do consider alaukika prema citte lāge camatkāra unworldly love in the heart strikes wonder

178 Consider the utmost limit of Purī's love! This love, not of this world, fills the heart with wonder.

Anubhāṣya.

Separation from Kṛṣṇa, that is, spiritual vipralambha, is the jīva's only sādhana. Nirveda born of material separation reveals only attachment to matter; but nirveda born of separation from Kṛṣṇa is the highest sign of the desire to please Kṛṣṇa's senses. The incomparable desire of the original mahājana, Śrīpāda Mādhavendra, to please Kṛṣṇa's senses is the only model for a jīva who seeks to serve Kṛṣṇa, and it deserves special attention. It is just this that Śrīman Mahāprabhu and His intimate potencies (antaraṅga-śakti) later showed by Their conduct.

179 He was supremely detached, silent and indifferent to everything, and for fear of worldly talk he kept no companion.

Anubhāṣya.
Grāmya-vārtā — talk of the dealings of men and women, all village gossip. On the word grāmya, the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam (11.25.25) says: "The village is called rājasic," and in verses 28 and 29 of the same chapter: "…and what is dear to the senses is rājasic," "but what is born of sense objects is rājasic." Everything that pleases one's own senses or arises from enjoying sense objects — that is, whatever kindles mundane desire — is rājasic, or grāmya.

The amazing perseverance of Purī, who had not a penny, in obeying the command of the One he served —

186 Such is the natural way of deep love: it takes no account of its own sufferings, obstacles and the like.

Anubhāṣya.
In the natural conduct of those who love deeply one sees that suffering, obstacles and everything contrary to the fulfilment of their own desires do not hinder them. On the contrary, it is amid hundreds of thousands of obstacles and ceaseless suffering that they show their love in full measure. It is because such a person is fit to be freed from the bound perception of this material world and from absorption in "the second" (dvitīyābhiniveśa) that the Bhāgavatam verse tat te 'nukampāṁ susamīkṣamāṇaḥ ("one who earnestly waits for Your mercy") is cited.[18] The intimate beloveds of Bhagavān take no account of any want, obstacle or suffering in the external world. "Whatever suffering you see in a Vaiṣṇava's life, know for certain that it is the happiness of supreme bliss." In Śrīman Mahāprabhu's words āśliṣya vā pāda-ratām ("Let Him embrace me, who am devoted to His feet…")[19] we see just this ultimate teaching.

Kṛṣṇa reveals the greatness of His devotee —

O Beloved wanders what do I

197 "O Lord, melting with compassion for the wretched! O Lord of Mathurā, when shall I see You? My heart, stricken at not seeing You, has lost all rest. O Beloved, what am I to do?" (Padyāvalī, 400)[13]

Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya.
O Lord whose heart melts with compassion for the wretched! O Lord of Mathurā! When shall I see You? Because I do not see You, my afflicted heart has lost all peace! O beloved, what shall I do now?

Purport. The Vaiṣṇavas who proclaim pure devotion and base themselves on Vedānta are divided into four sampradāyas. Of these, Śrī Mādhavendra Purī accepted the sampradāya of Śrī Madhvācārya and took Vaiṣṇava sannyāsa. In that sampradāya, from Madhvācārya down to Lakṣmīpati, Mādhavendra's guru, there was no devotion imbued with śṛṅgāra-rasa. What kind of devotion they had can be seen from the debate Mahāprabhu held with the Tattvavādīs during His travels in the South. By composing this incomparable verse Śrī Mādhavendra Purī sowed the seed of devotion imbued with śṛṅgāra-rasa. Its mood is this: the highest worship of Kṛṣṇa follows the feeling, the surge of great love (mahā-prema), that arose in Śrīmatī Rādhikā in separation from Śrī Kṛṣṇa when He had gained the kingdom of Mathurā. A devotee of this rasa, thinking himself utterly wretched (dīna), will call in this mood to the Lord whose heart melts with compassion for the wretched. For the jīva, the natural worship is the mood of separation from Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa has gone to Mathurā. Not seeing Him, Śrīmatī's heart is in deep distress, and longing to see Him She says: "O beloved (kānta), without Your darśana My heart is in turmoil. Tell Me, what must I do to see You? Knowing that I am wretched, melt with compassion." This mood of Śrī Mādhavendra Purī is easily recognised in the variety of feelings (bhāva-vaicitrya) of Śrīmatī on meeting Uddhava, which is described as manifest in Śrī Mahāprabhu. Therefore the mahājanas say that the root of the tree of śṛṅgāra-rasa is Mādhavendra Purī, Īśvara Purī is its sprout, Śrīman Mahāprabhu is its trunk, and the devotees who follow the Lord are its branches and twigs.

Thus ends the fourth chapter of the "Amṛta-pravāha-bhāṣya."

Anubhāṣya.

ayi (the tender address of the daughter of King Vṛṣabhānu to Her beloved) dīna-dayārdra (O You whose heart melts with compassion for the wretched. The wretched are the gopīs, His own, tormented by separation from Kṛṣṇa; compassion for them is the mercy that drives away the fever of their separation [vipralambha] and lets them directly experience His form, qualities and pastimes. Melted by it, with a heart full of rasa — that is, with a heart made utterly soft by compassion for the gopīs, afflicted by the fever of intense separation) nātha (O Lord — the sole beloved of gopīs like Me), he mathurā-nātha (O Lord of Mathurā, master of the people of Mathurā! If You think of Yourself as the beloved of the gopīs, how is it that, forgetting us gopīs, You stay there out of a desire for majesty [aiśvarya] to please the women of Mathurā, who are only ordinary lovers [sādhāraṇī]? So You have a hard heart, without pity for the gopīs!) tvam (You) kadā (when) avalokyase (will be seen — by the gopī afflicted by separation, and by me, who have taken shelter of Her mood)? he dayita (O beloved — dearer than life itself!) tvad-aloka-kātaraṁ (afflicted at not seeing You) hṛdayaṁ (the heart — the heart of the gopī, distressed and agitated with longing for Your darśana, full of udghūrṇā, citra-jalpa and so on) bhrāmyati (is losing its senses), kiṁ karomi (what shall I do — tell me).

6. The Gauḍīya Maṭha edition reads ṭhākurera śayana (genitive; ed ṭhākure śayana); the sense is the same. ↩
7. Gopāla accepts what was brought as already offered to Him. The address is mādhava, as in 39. ↩
8. The words amṛta-carita ("nectarean life") and āsvādita ("relished") are those of the chapter's colophon (carita-āsvādana) and of verse 211. ↩
9. A krośa is about two miles. ↩
10. A maund is about 37 kg, a tolā about 11.7 g. ↩
11. Dānī — a ferryman, as in 12 and 153; rākhe — "detained" ↩
12. Malayaja — sandal from the Malaya hills (see the note on 106). ↩
13. The source, by the heading in the edition: "tathāhi padyāvalīte catuḥśatāṅka-dhṛta mādhavendrapurī-vākya" — "the words of Mādhavendra Purī, given in the Padyāvalī as number 400". The verse is quoted again in Antya 8. It is Śrī Rādhā's speech (194), hence the capitals, as in Madhya 1.58. ↩
14. Kahilā is the honorific third person: it is Mahāprabhu, who told the story in 170–190, not the author. ↩
15. So in the edition: Mādhava Purī is the same person as Mādhavendra Purī. ↩
16. The subheadings above verses 46 and 47 appear to be transposed in the edition: by content, "Purī weeps with love" belongs to 46 and "Purī strives to bring Giridhārī to light" to 47. They are given as printed. ↩
17. Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya 8.127 (in the numbering of our translation). ↩
18. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.14.8. ↩
19. Śikṣāṣṭaka 8 (Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya 20.47). ↩
